The Protecting LIGHT

This lighted tower is a light shining in the darkness to guide sailors and ships through the night. Our Lord is our light who guides us faithfully through life, even though it be as a stormy sea — He knows the way. His word, as proclaimed in His church, will light your way and bring peace, joy and comfort.

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path." Psalm 119:105.

Attend the church of your choice this coming Sunday and receive the blessings awaiting you.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH — THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

South Sider Eleanor Kirby Named City PTA Prexy

Probably one of the busiest phones in Columbus this coming year will be one in the HI-3 exchange, which will be ringing at 660 Sheldon-av, home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kirby.

A big percentage of the calls will undoubtedly be for Mrs. Eleanor Kirby and will originate from all sections of metropolitan Columbus, for this week's "Outstanding Personality" is the newly-elected president of the Columbus Council of the Parent-Teacher Associations. The installation of the officers of this group will take place on Wednesday, May 1, at the annual meeting to be held at the Youth Building of the fairground.

The local area women will have cause to take pride in the eminent position of their neighbor, as she is only the second South Sider to hold the council's highest office. Mrs. Walter Denney, whom we hope to highlight at some later date, preceded her good friend in the executive seat several years ago. However, during Mrs. Denney's tenure of office, the council also included the Franklin County units.

As president of the Council, Mrs. Kirby will administer to 59,000 members of 132 units. Three units will be particularly familiar to her, Lincoln Park, Barrett Junior High and South High School. As Eleanor Stanton, she was a nupil at the three schools. Her residence then was 674 Sheldon-av, where her widowed mother, Mrs. L. C. Stanton, still resides.

Mrs. Kirby attended OSU for two years, in the college of education, with a minor in music.

On Oct. 25, 1943, she became the bride of a North Side resident, Jack Kirby. This was one time the North capitulated to the South, as evidenced by the South Side address. The early years of the Kirby marriage were spent in California, as Jack was a naval draftee based in that state. Following the three years on the coast, the Columbusites returned to Ohio.

Eleanor, with her droll sense of humor, explains that in 1947, Larry, the Kirby contribution to the "Population Explosion," arrived on the scene. Larry is a ninth grade student in Barrett Junior High School.

Mrs. Kirby's love of music still carries on, and she still gets her violin out occasionally for relaxation. She also sings in the PTA Mothersingers. Other recreations, shared with her husband, are bowling, golfing and swimming. The Kirby family also share an interest in the tours taken by the Franklin County Historical Society, to which they belong. Both are active members of the South Methodist Church as well.

Besides her PTA work, she is a member of the Intermezzo Unit of the Columbus Symphony Orchestra and is chairman of the Adult Membership Committee of the executive board of the Camp Fire Girls.

Her previous experiences in executive positions of the PTA organization include tenures of office as unit president of Lincoln Park School, South District vice-president, Council treasurer, and Council vice-president. Her presidential term of office will be until April, 1964.

She has one sister, Virginia Atkinson, 947 Champion-av.

The PTA president begins an active schedule immediately after her installation, for the national convention is an event of May 19-22, in Miami Beach, Fla. The South Sider will attend the convention, using a plane to reach her destination.

Columbus Chapter 1, American Gold Star Mothers, will celebrate its 16th anniversary with a dinner at the Swiss Home, 1036 S. Front-st, this evening (Thursday, Apr. 25).

The ladies of the Corpus Christi Rosary Altar Society are being entertained by the men of the Holy Name Society at the annual Communion breakfast, Sunday, May 5, following the 8:30 a.m. Communion Mass. Reservations may be made with Mary Turner, HI. 4-2494; Catherine Brown, HI. 3-2072; or Rosemarie Roehrenbeck, HI. 4-0854.

It is with a sense of regret that we say goodbye to Ray, Joan and Brenda Finch, who are moving to Marysville this weekend. However, the company which employs Ray has moved there, so the residents of 909 S. Beech-st had little choice except to follow. Brenda is a seventh grade student of Barrett Junior High.

Meetings, here and there: The Deshler School Parent Education meeting will be held at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, Apr. 30. The topic will be "Ten-Point Protection Against Molesters." A Hawaiian theme will set the mood when all Trudeau guilds meet at the Desert Inn for the traditional spring banquet on Wednesday, May 1, at 6:30. The installation of officers will be held.

Emmanuel Lutheran Circle 3 will meet at 12:30 p.m. today, while Circle 5 will meet at 7:30 p.m. Fidelis Class of Southwood Church of Christ will hold a potluck dinner and business meeting at 6 p.m., Saturday, Apr. 27. Hostesses will be Ethel Spiker and Irene Vanscoy. The youth of that church will be the hosting group for the city-wide monthly "Teens-For-Christ" rally, at 2:30 p.m., Sunday, Apr. 28.

The St. Frances Pomona Society will have a potluck supper Wednesday, May 1, 6:30 p.m., at 543 S. Front-st. Following the supper a meeting will be held.

The Mission Circle of St. Paul's Lutheran Church will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Apr. 30. Mrs. John Feil will conduct the devotions. The serving committee will be Mrs. Gustav Pacht, Mrs. Carl Miller and Mrs. Samuel Glines. Other meetings at that church include the Christian Day School PTO tonight (Thursday, Apr. 25) at 7:45.

The Luther League of St. Paul will participate in the Columbus Conference Luther League Rally to be held on Sunday, Apr. 28, at the Zion Lutheran Church, Obetz.

"Why Cancer," a film strip, will be shown at the 7:30 p.m. meeting of Lincoln Park PTA tonight (Thursday). The election of officers will be held.

Earlier sunrises and later sunsets appeal to these subteens, who have more daylight hours to enjoy their natal days: Elizabeth Temple, Kathy Waddle, Sherry Hill, Jerry O'Connor, Beverly Reed, Joseph Landenfeld, Stephen Schneider, Jeff Leonard, Roland Windmiller III, Victoria Skeen, Dolores Thum and Becky Clark.

Mike Campbell is the lone teenager.

Wedding anniversaries to be noted are those of Leonard and Josephine Farnsworth, Joyce and George Oakley, James and Sharon O'Harra, Sharon and Russell Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Claffey. Special wishes for "Dicky" and Woody Moore, who arrive at "year 25" on Tuesday, Apr. 30.

Ailing community members include Kay Hardy, a recent tonsillectomy patient; Bob Daniels, a patient in Mt. Carmel Hospital for checkup tests; Margie Considine, a patient in Mercy Hospital; Mrs. Farmer, who had been hospitalized; Goldie Cutlip, 390 E. Whittier-st, who entered a hospital for check-up tests earlier in the week; Anna Gulcher, 52 E. Gates; Dorothy Wells, 1319 Studer-av.

Irene and Ed Klein of Sycamore-st spent a two-week vacation in St. Petersburg, Fla., visiting former Columbusites, Mr. and Mrs. John Windnagel.

The premium stamp collection of St. Mary's will end on Wednesday, May 1. Donors may contact Marie Esselstein, chairman, 808 Jaeger-st, or by phone, HI. 3-6903.

Area residents who will soon receive wedding congratulations include Paul Davis, 651 Frebis-av, who will wed Rosemary Murphy, 1465 E. 23rd-av, Saturday, Apr. 27, in St. Augustine Church.

Kathie Scholtes, 904 Reeb-av, will become the bride of Don Bachinsky of Encino, Calif., on the same day, in Martin Luther Church. On Sunday, Apr. 28, Nancy Sue Mitchell, 1682 Parsons-av, will exchange vows with Paul Sark, 2573 Fishinger-rd, in Riverside Methodist Church.

The Friday, Apr. 26, wedding of Pamela Sue Quickel, 1189 Berkeley-rd, and Kenneth David Klopher, 1088 S. Champion-av, will be performed in St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

Congratulations to those youngsters of St. Leo's Church who will participate in their first Communion this Sunday, Apr. 28, at the 8:30 a.m. Communion Mass.

The Fun Festival committee of Stockbridge PTA has worked diligently to provide something for everyone, funwise, in the festival to be held at the school, Friday, Apr. 26, from 5 to 9 p.m. Some of the activities include basketball toss, bowling, darts, cake walk, ring toss, cane toss, fish pond, novelty booth, movies, beauty bar, country store. Food and refreshments will also be available.

Catharine Ingraham, 1341 Kelton-av, will direct the 25-member chorus of the Columbus chapter of Sweet Adelines when that women's singing organization travels to Decatur, Ill., Saturday, Apr. 27, to compete in a five-state chorus contest.

The songstresses have adopted a "broken heart" theme for the contest. This theme will find musical expression in the songs "All Dressed Up In a Broken Heart" and "Wedding Bells Have Broken Up That Old Gang of Mine." Their contest uniforms of red gloves and white dresses ornamented with red broken hearts will complement their presentation.

A Science Night program will be presented at the Roosevelt Junior High 8 p.m. PTA meeting tonight. The election and installation of officers will be held.

Shamrock Club Elects Officers

The Shamrock Club has elected the following officers for the coming year: Edward M. Dempsey, president; Jeremy P. Grady, vice-president; Charles Timlin, treasurer and Tom (Duke) Hinton, secretary.

The annual club picnic will be held Sunday, July 14, at Murphy's Party Barn and Picnic Grounds, 365 Olentangy, Powell, O.

The Glee Club, under the direction of Patrick Walsh, and the Irish dancers, consisting of 20 boys and girls, will be featured in the program. Kay Lehman is instructor of the latter group and her repertoire includes the jig, reel and hornpipe and various group dances.

Veterans Group Plans Conference

Commander Robert E. Connick, Department of Ohio Military Order of the Purple Heart, has announced the spring conference for the state organization will be held in Columbus, Sunday, Apr. 28. Slated for Benson W. Hough Post 3424, VFW, at 2299 S. High-st, the meeting will begin at 1 p.m. and will be followed by a buffet lunch.

The organization is composed exclusively of combat-wounded veterans of all wars and was chartered by an act of Congress.

IT'S NOT A GOLDFISH!

YOU CAN'T PLEASE everyone, little Billy Plank, 4, found out when his big brother Danny held up Billy's catch of the day a bit scornfully. But, after all, they were just fishing in Schiller Pond rather than Indian Lake where Danny caught a "real big catfish" last summer. The boy's dad, William Plank, 351 Hanford-st, thinks that the big cat has grown considerably in his older son's mind since the eventful day.

BLANCHE KLEIN HONORED FOR 2500 HOURS WITH VA

They work 13 hours at a stretch, energetically and with unflagging enthusiasm.

Blanche and Charles Klein drive down to Chillicothe every Thursday.

There they are volunteer recreation workers at Veteran's Hospital.

Mrs. Klein will receive a silver pin Sunday in recognition of having given more than 2500 hours to the hospital.

She is the only member of the American Legion Auxiliary in Franklin County to receive this honor and has more hours to her credit than all but one Ohio member.

Blanche Klein

Charles Klein who, until his retirement from the railroad in 1958 had only one day a year to devote to this service, has already logged 626 hours.

When Mrs. Klein first started at the hospital, many of the patients were older men, veterans of World War I, but now the group is younger and includes many who fought in Korea.

However, the work remains the same. Starting with a class at 8:30 a.m. the volunteers work with four groups of 40 or 50 ex-service men through the day.

"When I was a little younger, I even played soft ball with them," she laughed, "but keeping bowling scores and playing pinochle is more my speed now."

And the day always winds up with a dance in which the Kleins are anything but wall flowers.

"She dances with the patients and I watch out for employes and other volunteer workers who need a partner," Cline explained.

He is a member of the "Swing Club," one of the groups that is part of the United Voluntary Service who play golf with the veterans. This past week Klein edged a win over a man half his age, with a 49 on the nine-hole course.

Klein is no slouch in any field of athletics, once being a member of the famed Panhandle Team, the group headed by the six Nestler brothers which traveled the country playing football, and bowling and playing baseball on the side.

Asked what position he played, he said "everything, but quarterback."

The traveling team only had 13 members, he explained, and no one was allowed to get hurt. It was this rugged group, playing without headgear or shoulder pads that was never defeated in Columbus.

Mrs. Klein, like other auxiliary members frequently bakes cakes and cookies to give the men, and Mr. Klein is known as an "easy mark" for cigarettes.

Provided with cigarettes to give as prizes to winners of the pinoche tournaments, he buys a carton or two on his own to give to the losers.

Then a whole district of auxiliary members, crisp in their blue and yellow uniforms, arrive, armed with home-made cakes, cookies, candy and ice cream.

Like all boys of any age, Mr. Klein was especially fascinated by the five miles of electric trains, on a three deck level which help them while away many tedious hours for the men.

Mr. and Mrs. Klein feel they have found a wonderful solution for use of a retired couple's spare time.

Enthusiastically, they urge anyone who possibly can, to attend the annual open house Sunday, May 5.

Keep Utilities Private

Current discussions between the City of Columbus and Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company appear to be pointing in one definite direction—something better for Columbus power consumers.

The offer made by Harry M. Miller, C and SOE president, to make a $3.5-million rate slash possible over a three-year period in exchange for a study as to the desirability of the city's expanding its own power operation sounds like one under which Columbus consumers cannot lose. This is particularly true if there are no strings attached in advance of the survey.

This presentation sounds especially good since it appears to be an admission that the C and SOE can afford to make such a rate slash. By the same token, it appears they are so certain of their case that facts will be produced to point up the inadequacies of further municipal ownership.

That portion of the proposal pertaining to the swap of the C and SOE-owned Columbus Transit Company for the municipal light plant doesn't appear to have too much good flavor at this point.

We have long been advocates of having utilities operated by business firms rather than political institutions. We will continue to argue that this is the best for our community. Therefore, if the city administration is determined to hold on to an electric plant, it might be well that they expand no further than their present limits. But, by all means, stay out of an additional public utility field, the transit company!

We will join all of Columbus in welcoming a reduction in our electric rates and we sincerely believe much can be brought out in favor of private rather than public operation of our utilities.

Laws Safeguard Well-Being

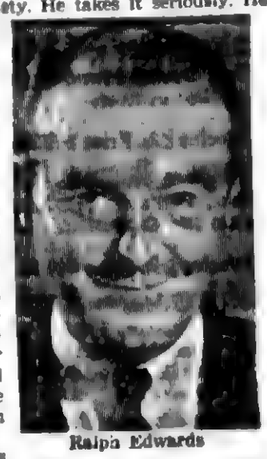
Governor James A. Rhodes has proclaimed May 1 as "Law Day U.S.A.," and the week of Apr. 28 to May 4 as "Law In Your Life Week" in Ohio.

Basic objectives of the national observance of Law Day are:

To foster a deeper respect for law by teaching how laws serve and protect citizens.

To encourage responsible citizenship by demonstrating that individual rights and freedoms involve individual obligations.

To emphasize the basic values of the role of law in the United States as contrasted with the rule of force under communism.



Law In Your Life Week, a special observance for Ohio, is sponsored by the Ohio State Bar Association in cooperation with more than 100 local bar associations throughout the state.

These bar associations are to be commended for the extra effort they will put forth to better acquaint all citizens with the rights afforded them by law and their obligation to protect these rights.

He Remembers Buster Roos

A couple of weeks ago it was our pleasure to see Ralph Edwards, the TV star, who was in town for the opening kickoff of the Cancer Crusade in Ohio.

Edwards is wrapped up in his volunteer work for the American Cancer Society. He takes it seriously. He is not a figurehead. He's a working charman, and he seems to know whereof he speaks.

Ralph Edwards

"I'd like to tell you how I got into the cancer fight," Ralph told us. "For me the reason was a voice on a radio tape, a child's voice: 'And then I'd like a pony and a bike . . . and a balloon . . .' It was the faltering voice of a little boy who would soon die, the voice of Buster Roos, an eight-year-old cancer victim who, for a very brief moment, had some of his dreams come true on my radio program 'Truth or Consequences.'

"That was 16 years ago and the beginning of my interest in cancer. Last year when the American Cancer Society asked if I would be National Crusade chairman, I felt the time had come to step into this one big volunteer job," Edwards went on.

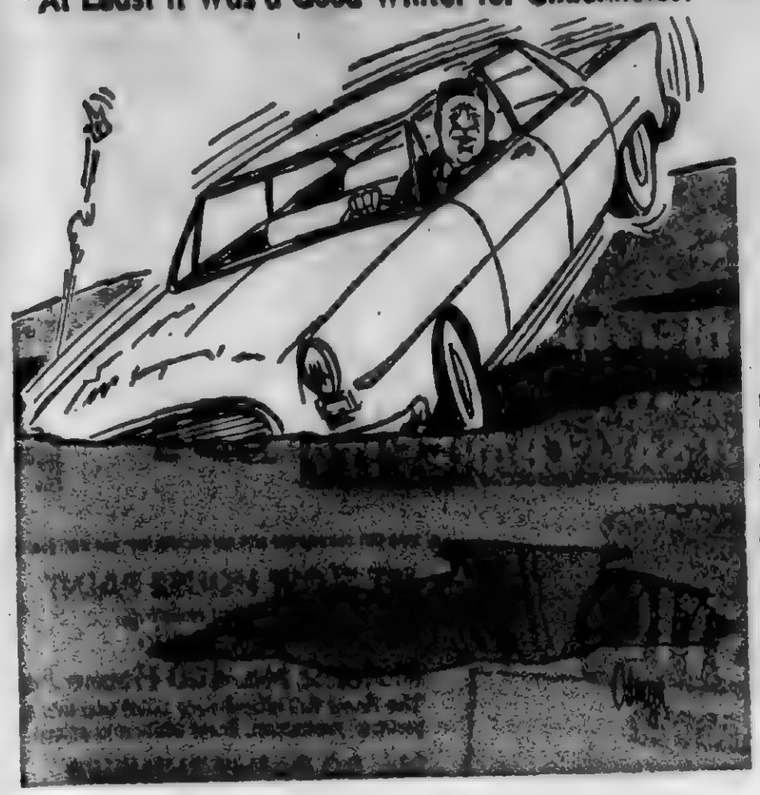
"My private memorial to Buster Roos is, very simply, a world free of cancer for the boys and girls of tomorrow," Ralph says.

"I have been fortunate in meeting many, many fine scientists who are conducting cancer research. In New York I met Dr. Rodney Heller, a director of Sloan-Kettering Memorial Cancer Center. He's a vigorous, robust man, who has had cancer — twice. Surgery and radiation cured him.

"In Houston, Dr. A. Clark Griffin of the University of Texas told me about the role viruses may play in cancer. Some of the evidence supporting this theory comes from investigations of leukemia, another form of cancer. The American Cancer Society is currently supporting leukemia-related research in the amount of $2,014,000," Edwards said.

"Here in Columbus I've met Dr. Charles A. Doan, one of the best-known leukemia researchers. Dr. Doan told me of progress being made in this field by use of new drugs and mentioned that patients are now being kept alive up to six and eight years, where the prognosis a few years ago would have been six months or so.

"Dr. Doan says it is this constant hope that the next drug might be the one to result in the ultimate answer which keeps physicians and researchers going at this problem," Edwards said.



Edwards talked more. It was interesting to hear him. He is a dedicated man. There is nothing phony about him. He wants to be a good Cancer Crusade chairman. He's one of two million volunteers working hard.

Some of our neighbors are joining him as volunteers, and when they come to your home in the next week or 10 days, they will be bringing you information which could save your life, and they will be asking for support for a program designed to save lives — research and education.

Physicians, housewives, businessmen, researchers . . . a great army which deals with cancer every day says this is the way cancer can be whipped.

Maybe they are right. It's the way we all joined together to wipe out polio.

EARTH PATTERN

Lovely my garden
Wears its bloom and tree and sod
Like star-bright jewels.
Yet it cannot be
My only inspiration
And consolation.
For always I must Go forth to a fellowship
Sharing loss and gain,
Then come back to rest
Renewing strength and valor
Spent in common cause.

Home is the base where we come back to renew our strength after spending it, for loss or gain, in the great fellowship of humanity. We are dependent upon one another more than we know, for the race is a family, each member giving and needing, sharing experiences more common to than unique to a few.

Wherever we may live, if we have a tree and a rose and a bit of grass, so much the better. As they look to the life-giving sun and adapt themselves to Nature's changing moods, so may we learn from them that things seen are an earnest of things yet unseen and that as it says here . . . .

Guest Pulpit . . . Foundations Of True Witnessing Suggested

I. True witnessing is rooted and grounded in faith in Jesus Christ as our Saviour and the Son of God. This faith can come only by hearing the Word.

The witness of the resurrection of our Lord receives power from on high. As a generator charges, revives and builds up a weak run-down battery so is a witness of our Lord built up with power from above; thus charged with spiritual power, we go forth to bring celestial light to a sin-laden world in suffering and misery.

Rev. Smith

The substance of power in our testimonial is His promise to give to every true believer Life everlasting, and a mansion where there are many mansions. He is a mansion of warmth to every stranger, to every one who is in need of a friend.

"Come unto Me," He said, "and I will give you rest; lay down, my weary one, lay down your head upon My breast."

II. Every true witness must have a little talk with Jesus. Tell Him all about your troubles; He will understand, and take you by the hand; He'll start a little fire burning, start a little prayer-wheel turning, just a little talk with Jesus makes everything right.

The foundation of all power to witness must come from close communion with Jesus. As the fires on the Temple altar were never allowed to go out, so Jesus as the Great High Priest will keep the fire of the Holy Spirit burning in our hearts if we pray for renewed zeal to serve Him in building His Kingdom.

III. Jesus gives to every true witness a perfect love that casts out fear:

Before we gain the victory we must struggle against the Red Sea of yearning for a new expression of our personalities; the Jericho of hidden desires; the Lion's Den of hatred and seeking after power to destroy all interference with our personal freedom; the Fiery Furnace of superiors who ever strive to dominate our lives; the ninth-hour crises in our own lives when some hidden foe puts us flat on our backs; the period when Satan will be "loosed for a little season"; the sting of death lurking in the wings waiting for the final drama of life to drop the curtain; the victory of the grave now shorn of its power.

The fullness of time has truly given new meaning to the "Great Commission." "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel . . . and lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

These are the foundations of all true witnessing.

Get Ready For Some Strange Visitors

One of these days a swarthy gentleman in a turban is going to walk up to a hotel desk in—let's say—Cedar Rapids, sign the register and add: "Two wives, one concubine."

The desk clerk won't know whether to call the bellboy or the house dick. The U.S. Department of Commerce fervently hopes he'll call the bellboy.

For the drive to entice foreign visitors to the U.S.A. is now in full swing. The United States government is running come-hither ads in many foreign newspapers and periodicals. The airlines and steamship agencies are pushing the campaign. The hope is not only to fill unused travel space but also to whittle down in some measure the $1.1 billion deficit gap between what American tourists spent abroad last year and what we earned from foreign tourists on American soil.

Jones

It is quite a jolt to pick up The London Observer or the Paris Monde or the Neue Zurcher Zeitung and read a full page advertisement setting forth arguments on why you should see the United States. I saved a few tearsheets from a trip abroad last summer.

The London ad displayed a big picture of the Jefferson Memorial surrounded by blooming cherry trees. The blurb read: "How to take your wife on your next business trip to the U.S.A. for as little as five pounds a day." Five pounds is $14, and that requires a non-shopping wife.

Britishers were assured it wouldn't cost them a penny to visit the White House. Why should it? And then an American remembers that you can't go through Buckingham Palace or 10 Downing-st for any price.

British travelers must be keen on botany and bird-watching. Listen to this:

"You can picnic in the shade of Sequoia trees which were living in the time of Christ. You can see wild tiger lilies, gentians and azaleas, forget-me-nots, larkspur, pasqueflower, kalmia, cactus, lobelia, cardinalis and blue flax.

"American birds are worth seeing, too — roseate spoonbills, cardinals, scarlet tanagers, Baltimore orioles, snowy egrets, eagles, pelicans and ospreys galore. One hundred species in one day is not too much to expect."

How many Yanks could spot a pasqueflower, kalmia or roseate spoonbill?

The French ad from Le Monde appealed chiefly to women, apparently on the theory that stingy French husbands could be nagged into the trip. It showed a lovely lady in a 10-gallon hat astride a cow pony. It promised that for less than $10 a day you could live on a dude ranch with the horse thrown in.

Madame was assured that she could ride on the back of a mule to the bottom of Grand Canyon for 65 new francs, "mule comprise." Imagine calling one of those smart little burros a mule! For 15 cents, said the ad, one could voyage on the Staten Island ferry in the light of the moon, and you can get breakfast or "le snack" at a New York hotel for 60 cents. Some breakfast! Some snack! In Washington one can assist at the seances of Congress.

However astonishing these blandishments may be to Americans, the campaign is beginning to show some results. The Wall Street Journal reports that there were about 620,000 foreign visitors to the U.S. (not counting Canadians) in '62 as against 516,000 in '61. A Japanese travel agency estimates that 100,000 Japs are ready to see the U.S as soon as their government permits them to convert yen into dollars. This is expected this year, and thousands of special savings accounts have been established in Japanese banks.

The American Hotel Association is taking this travel seriously. It has put out a booklet to its members advising them that if Far Eastern visitors belch loudly after dinner it is their way of complimenting the food. South Americans, warns the A.H.A., clap their hands for service. This is not rudeness. Waiters must be reminded not to serve Moslems with the left hand, which is considered unclean.

America's airlines and railroads have special discounts for foreign visitors. But no one can top the Greyhound bus company's offer. For $99 it will give a foreigner the right to travel anywhere any time for 99 days. It has sold more than 12,000 tickets under this plan, and one bargain-hungry Australian family jammed in 16,000 miles of bus riding in 10 weeks.

But what does a foreign adventurer with shaky English do when he arrives in an American city where practically no one — not even the local travel agent — speaks anything else? Only a few communities have prepared for him.

The "Los Angeles at Home" club has 100 families on its list that speak a variety of languages and will invite visitors out to dinner. And the Fort Worth Council on World Affairs guarantees travelers a good time, including a trip to a cattle ranch where they can be photographed on a cutting horse, waving a lariat.

This is a wonderful idea. Most foreign visitors are both educated and interesting. They generally make appreciative guests. Any honest cross-section of any people, of course, would produce the counterparts of the loud-shirted American men who are noisy in the cantinas, and the bulging American women who wander into the ancient cathedrals wearing slacks. But prosperity abroad hasn't yet gotten down that far.

When it does, we'll be steering 'em and plucking 'em and snickering at 'em behind their backs, just as they do us.

Leftovers . . . by John McPeek

Are You Another Little Card Carrier?

You know the type — the fellow who always distributes little cards or pamphlets bearing terse homilies, credos or verses on how to get along in life. He's usually a salesman, who probably hopes his Johnny Appleseed card-sowing will reap future sales.

I have such a pamphlet before me now. Given to me by a salesman, it obviously was written by a salesman for salesmen. Frankly, it's good. But I'm no salesman and assuming that most of us aren't, I have taken the liberty to rewrite it so that it pertains to a majority group — namely husbands.

McPeek

Except for a few key words, minor deletions and major distortions, the following credo, titled "The Art of Getting Along," is exactly as anonymously printed in the original. The parenthetical remarks, naturally, are mine:

1. Sooner or later, a husband discovers, if he is wise, that married life is a mixture of good days and bad, victory and defeat, give and take. (This is true. In nearly a dozen married years, I've had a few good days — none of which I can recall at the moment. I've also had a few victories — mostly when my wife was in late stages of pregnancy and before she took up karate. The give and take is a 50-50 thing — I give and she takes.)

2. He learns that it doesn't pay to be a too-sensitive soul; that he should let some things go over his head like water off a duck's (perhaps "chicken" is a better word) back. (A show of sensitivity paid off for me for several years. But now when I cry, my wife opens an umbrella and ignores me. I let many things go over my head. Just yesterday I ducked two pots, a package of frozen broccoli, and the fall-winter edition of Alden's mail-order catalog.)

3. He learns that he who loses his temper usually loses out. (He also learns that "she" who loses her temper always wins out.)

4. He learns that all husbands have burnt toast for breakfast now and then and that he shouldn't take his wife's grouch too seriously). (The only time I don't have burnt toast for breakfast is when my wife makes burnt oatmeal. If by "wife's grouch" the writer means mother-in-law, you certainly shouldn't take her seriously — or any other way, for that matter.)

5. He learns that carrying a chip (or a chippie's hair) on his shoulder is the easiest way to get in a fight. (No comment.)

6. He learns that buck-passing always turns out to be a boomerang and that it never pays. (That's right, it never pays . . . the husband. You pass the wife a few bucks and zing, like a boomerang, she's back for a few more.)

7. He comes to learn that he is not indispensable, that his home could run along perfectly well without him. (But not without his paycheck.)

8. He learns that his wife is a human being and that it does no harm to smile and say "good morning," even if it's raining. (True, it does no harm. Of course, it likely will do no good either.)

9. He learns to sympathize with the young nincompoop who just got married, because he remembers how bewildered he was when he first started out. (As years go by, a numbness sets in and the bewilderment is less disturbing.)

10. He learns not to worry when he loses a fight, because experience has shown that if he always gives his best, his average will break pretty well. (Re-read parenthetical remark about "victories" below Item 1.)

11. He learns that no husband ever got to first base alone, and that it is only through cooperative effort that he will move on to better things. (Like left field.)

12. He learns that wives are not any harder to get along with in one place than another, and that "getting along" depends about 98 per cent on his behavior. (The other two per cent depends on how fast he can run.)

13. He learns that wives are not monsters trying to get the last ounce of money out of their mates, but that they are usually pretty sharp operators who have succeeded through artful conniving and who want to do the right thing . . . for themselves. (Much justifiable distortion in this item.)

(Could there be any significance in the fact that the credo contains "13" items?)

Frosting On The Cake

By "UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

Millions of literate minds all over the world are aware of the great importance of sane, rational diet for their general health. Too few are aware that much more priceless and important facts about a "balanced ration" for their minds and souls. No man can feed his mind and soul on trash or filth and not get the "diseases of the soul" that destroy so many. Habit is the heaviest word in our language and some words weigh a ton at least.

There is some excuse, perhaps, for people who were the victims of neglect in childhood and now battle daily with poverty. But what excuse can be offered for those who were brought up in good homes by conscientious parents, and who have most of the things necessary for family happiness? Yet these are some of the worst offenders among the Americans who refuse to discipline our growing children.

Trained brains, cultured manners, honorable persistency of purpose, accurate use of the native tongue; all these are master keys and the end result of all genuine education is the functional capacity of the individual. Add the bedrock of character and then use what tools old Mother Nature gave you. Success is no mystery.

Fourth Of July Plans Keeping CSSO Busy

Plans are shaping up in the Council of South Side Organizations for the huge Fourth of July celebration, expected to bring out a crowd of 15,000.

Council President Mike Mileusnich assured the public this week that the patriotic speaker will be held down to a 10-minute address, but the invitational softball fast-pitch tournament will go on all day. The outstanding teams of the state have been invited to take part.

The beauty contest of local talent is expected to be a big drawing card. Details and registration blanks will appear in next week's South Side Leader.

Although the South Side High School Band has already agreed to play in Arlington on the big day, Mileusnich is making an all-out effort to bring the band home for an evening performance in Southview Park, scene of the celebration.

Last year's event attracted more than 10,000 people.

'CHECKMATES' READY TO ROLL

Five TB Teams Will Take First Move

Five teams of South Side volunteers will call upon their neighbors to tell them about "Operation Checkmates," the Tuberculosis Society's all-out effort to eradicate TB.

Double checks will be offered to residents of the area between Morrill-av and the NYC Railroad, one of the city's high incidence areas.

"The aim of this ambitious program," said E. Clifford Roberts, director of "Checkmates," "is to find and place under treatment all cases of tuberculosis as well as identify those with TB germs in their bodies."

"Chest X-rays show lung damage," he explained, "and the tests indicate the presence of TB germs."

A family in which alll members participate in the program becomes eligible for prizes to be awarded during a drawing toward the end of the campaign, June 7.

The first section to "go into action" with personal calls will be Section 5, under Mrs. Emma R. Wilkerson, 291 Barthman-av, chairman, and Mrs. Sermontie Oliver, 318 Hosack-st, vice-chairman.

Block workers for this team are Mrs. Toni Blanchard, 315 Reeb-av; Mrs. Willie Latham, 273 Hosack-st; Mrs. Lillie Pannall, 310 Barthman-av; Mrs. Marlene Harris, 319 Hosack-st; Mrs. Emma R. Mitchell, 323 Barthman-av; Miss Mary Lucijanic, 284 Barthman-av; Mrs. Cora Stevenson, 346 Barthman-av; Carol Washington, 1929 S. Ninth-st; Miss Vivian Crowder, 1952 S. Washington-av; Mrs. Frances Abbott, 1264 Grovewood-dr; Mrs. Thelma Bristol, 370 Hosack-st, and Mrs. Ada Stanifer, 437 Hosack-st.

WHO WAS THAT RABBIT . . .?

Faculty At Beery Give 'Why's' Of Their Field

The chance to serve and work with young people has drawn many teachers to their field, according to a survey made at Beery Junior High School recently.

When the Future Teacher chapter observed Teaching Career month during April the members turned to their own faculty to learn just why they had chosen teaching for their profession.

The chapter believes the answers should be of interest to the community supporting the school. Certainly the following views of these established teachers should give the prospective teacher an insight toward what lies ahead:

GLENN BITTNER: I enjoy working with young people and helping to the best of my ability.

C. PAUL BROBST: I like the kind words I receive each year from former pupils.

MICHAEL CRONK: I feel that it is important to enjoy your work and I knew I would find teaching more enjoyable than any other field which I was considering.

Mrs. SUSAN CUNNINGHAM: Teaching brings a great deal of satisfaction, for I feel that only through better educating the American public can we maintain and up-grade our democratic way of life; I am part of this.

MISS BLANCHE DESKINS: I grew up in a family of teachers, and it seemed the natural thing for us all to do.

WILLIAMS DREWES: Serving. We are on this earth to serve our fellow man—not to take all we can get.

VERNON FEEN: I felt that teaching was an important occupation and would give me an opportunity to be of service to people.

MRS. ELIZABETH GIFFIN: I have always enjoyed art and wanted other people to appreciate it.

MRS. BARBARA GROSECLOSE: It is a job which is readily available. A teaching certificate is a good insurance policy.

HARRY HEATER: People like to do the type of work that they can do well and are suited for; for me teaching was that kind of work.

WILBUR HELSEL: I wanted to work with youth, to better see and understand their problems. I wanted to improve the teaching field to a position where all students could receive the best education for their own needs and desires, now and in the future.

MRS. JANE HENDERSON: I chose teaching because of the challenge offered by working with young people and because my interests and abilities would enable me to meet with some degree of success. Also, I feel it is an excellent career for women who also plan to be homemakers.

MRS. MARJORIE HUFF: Each person needs to be able to express himself in many ways, and he needs more than one medium of expression. Music is an art that all people can appreciate, to some degree at least, and a teacher tries to help each person find his special area by exposing him to as many kinds of music as possible.

WALTER LENSENMAYER: After trying several jobs, this profession seemed to offer me the most in interest, satisfaction and security.

MR. ROBERT LORD: I receive a great deal of satisfaction in being able to influence a mind to the degree of inducing some positive, creative action on the part of the individual. Teaching offers many opportunities to do just that.

MISS RUTH NYHART: To help each student realize the scope of his vocational and avocational opportunities is my goal. I enjoy working with young pupils and teaching students to work independently and with a sense of pride, duty, loyalty and responsibility.

MISS SANDRA POTTER: I decided to become a teacher because I knew it would never become boring.

CLYDE TRUMBULL: I became a teacher for the opportunity to help youth, not only in the academic field, but also in athletics.

MRS. REBECCA VOGEL: I decided on a teaching career because it seemed the most worthwhile way of spending my life.

MISS DIANE WARNER: I decided on teaching because of its more or less permanent position. The longer I am in it, the better I enjoy it.

Honor Society Will Induct New Members

For the first time in the history of the school, students of Champion Junior High School will become members of the National Junior Honor Society when they are taken into Pylon, the honor society of the school.

Suicide Follows Stated Warning

A threat of suicide was not an idle one in the case of Mrs. Anna Merklin, 59, 732 Thurman-av. She told her husband, Carl, that she was going upstairs to take her life. He paid no attention, but called police when he found her bedroom door locked a short time later.

Police forced open the door and found the woman with a plastic bag enshrouding her head.

She was pronounced dead on arrival at Mercy Hospital. Mrs. Merklin had been undergoing treatment for a nervous condition. Coroner Dr. Robert A. Evans officially ruled suicide.

What's In The Bag For Women Past 60? $ $

Are you versatile?

Are you careful about your appearance?

Are you willing to change from a procedure to which you are accustomed?

If a woman past 60 can answer "Yes" to these questions and possesses almost any kind of skill there is nothing to stop her from finding a job.

This fact came out in talking with several employment counselors about the opportunities for part-time or temporary employment for the older woman.

"What do I do now?" many mature women ask themselves after they have raised their families and find time heavy on their hands.

Some face the same question when they reach the age of retirement set by their particular company and their income is either stopped or reduced.

Still others desire to add to their husband's social security or pension after he retires.

The dismay which so many feel in not knowing where to turn is usually needless if they are "young in spirit" and willing to adapt.

It is only the woman who cannot or will not learn new ways or new fields and who has "let herself go" that will find the business world has no place for her.

The possibilities are amazing and some far from the hum-drum. Robert Simmons, owner-director of Personnel Associates mentioned cookie tasting. Ralph Gabele, area director of the Ohio State Employment service spoke of telephone sales. The demand for knitting and needle point instructors and omen who have a knack for trimming hats was brought out by Miss Marie Liggett of Columbus Vocational.

Any office skill—that of the filing clerk, the receptionist, the typist, the legal secretary, the person who can post accounts or even courteously answer the telephone is constantly in demand, Mrs. Velma Schulz of Ballou Service Inc., pointed out.

Simmons who offers to his clients a service known as the Kelley Girls explained how many firms use temporary help to relieve the "peak load." By this method of meeting the need for more help at especially busy periods, the employer is relieved of the necessity of having a regular staff without enough work to keep them busy during the average week.

In the trade the women who fill such jobs are known as the "the girls," and certainly the term is used loosely.

Simmons cited the 84-year-old girl who takes reservations at night in Detroit for an airline, though the oldest he has on his placement list in Columbus is a lass of 72.

One of Mrs. Schulz' girls who is 59 has just started to business college to add to her skills by taking shorthand.

Every director who was questioned mentioned the importance of appearance. Simmons emphasized how excessive make-up is frowned upon. Mrs. Schulz stated that it is extremely important that an employe report to work with hose on summer and winter, and well-pressed and neat, though not, necessarily expensive clothes. A smile is the most important item of apparel, according to Miss Liggett's viewpoint.

The older person looking for part-time employment competes with the student for the available opportunities, Gabele acknowledged, but often the experience and the enthusiasm of the older worker will win the job.

Another reason many employers give the green light to the more mature office worker was pin-pointed by Mrs. Schultz.

"They don't hop up and down so much and take as many 'breaks' as the young do," she explained.

Also, she mentioned that too many young employes operate only "as machines" and apparently are incapable of making the simplest decision for themselves.

Mr. Gabele mentioned a very recent field that has come into being with the opening of the self-service, coin operated laundries and dry cleaners. Quite often the supervision of such establishments is given to a retired person, he said.

Again and again it was brought out that the person who is "set in her ways" has two strikes against her before she starts.

The woman must be willing to perform her job the way her boss wants it done, which may not be the way to which she is accustomed.

Mrs. Schulz stated that a major objection to the older typists is that many do not readily conform to the "block-left" form used in most offices today. Only 40 percent of employes know how to properly use a telephone, she lamented. "What's yer name and whatcha want to talk to Mr. X about" is no more acceptable than the reply she was given the other day of "He ain't here."

Simmons, too, stressed the value of "flexibility." It is the woman who is still interested in learning that will be called upon, he said.

Miss Liggett feels that when a woman has difficulty finding work in her customary field that she has only to utilize her other skills acquired throughout her life.

"Possibly a woman who was once a machine operator or school teacher can make wonderful pies and ecome a pastry cook," she suggested.

Exploring other new vocations she brought out that a woman who has never worked in her life may possess good handwriting which would earn her a job in ledger work, or that a pleasant manner can qualify a woman to work as a cashier.

Here are but a few of the occupations suitable for the older woman that were mentioned that the average person might not think of: manning booths and registration of those attending conventions; food demonstrators in supermarkets, telephone and home interviewing for public opinion research outfits, recreational and study course instructors in community church homes and proof reading for printing firms.

No "girl" past 50 doesn't have to start baby-sitting unless she wants to if she really desires to work.

The desire to work was the final point emphasized.

Some will apply for work according to Simmons, with tales of desperate need. However, when they are actually called upon, "their hair is always up or their laundry down," he laughed.

For the woman who has everything except something to keep her busy, the state employment director reminded that volunteer workers in hospitals and the United Community Council offices are always needed.

The answer to the vocational problems for the mature woman is simple as ABC — apparance, buoyancy and change.

Whether you want to earn money for the rent, a new refrigerator or two weeks at a resort, get a good permanent, send your best suit to the cleaners and start out. The odds are with you.

committee Tuesday, was passed by legislators on two previous occasions but vetoed by Governors Frank J. Lausche and Michael V. DiSalle.

No official word has come from Governor Rhodes' office as to how he might act if the senators see fit to repeat their past performances. Of course, indications are strong that there won't be a repeat for the simple reason that there are different senators mulling over the matter this time and, in fact, five less lawmakers than in previous general assembly sessions.

"There's a lot of interest in this bill," Shaw said seriously. "I'm not going to say that I'm against the nurses' stand but I do think that the bill has some merit."

To date, the biggest urging for passage of the bill has come from Rev. Fr. John P. Gallagher, director of Catholic nurses in the Youngstown, O., Diocese.

Fr. Gallagher, in an article printed in the Youngstown Vindicator, said, "I appeal to all nurses of the Ohio State Nursing Association, out of a sense of loyalty to the institutions that trained them and in the interest of the general public, to ask their representatives in the Ohio Legislature to vote in favor of Sub. S.B. 66."

Mary Jo Grotenrath, attorney and legislative counsel for the OSNA, fired a telegram back to the Vindicator saying:

"In the light of the church's traditional and respected teachings in the area of social justice, I am somewhat appalled that Father would use the dignity of his office to promote contrary legislation.

"As recently as last week, in his encyclical 'Pacem In Terris' the Holy Father, Pope John XXIII, deplored special interest legislation. So do we."

There is much confusion, actually, over what the bill actually would do

When contacted Tuesday, Senator Roberts stated that "the only thing the bill does is return the law to the same status that was in effect prior to a court decision in 1959 and makes a hospital or charitable institutions liable in the selection of its personnel."

The Cleveland Press, in an article Apr. 18 headlined "Ohio Hospitals Seek to Regain Immunity From Suits," took the same view and suggested that the bill would remove the personal liability of hospital employes for negligent acts committed by them.

"This is not true," Miss Grotenrath stated. "This article erroneously suggested that the hospital immunity bill in its present form would remove the personal liability of hospital administrators.

"This is not true," Miss Grotenrath stated. "The R.N.'s have never asked for such immunity from liability. As professional persons they abhor the very notion of irresponsibility in the area of patient care as morally and legally wrong.

"OSNA's opposition to the bill has been, is, and will continue to be based on its interest in promoting the efficient care of the sick, one of the purposes to which the organization and the individual R.N. is dedicated."

Awarded Badge

Army Pfc. John J. Davis, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Davis, 1791 Fairwood-av, was recently awarded a mechanic's badge for attaining a high degree of skill in the maintenance and operation of motor vehicles while assigned to the 1st Armored Division.

Davis, a mechanic in Company A of the 13th Armor's 1st Battalion, entered the Army in November 1961, and completed basic training at Fort Knox, Ky.

He is a 1956 graduate of Aquinas High School and was employed by Huffman and Wolfe before entering the army.

AND AWAY THEY flew. Group after group of Explorers donned parachutes and climbed into the big Air Force transport for a 20-minute ride high above the clouds. The flights were but a part of the program planned to acquaint the young men with the life at Lockbourne AFB at the air encampment last weekend.

Explorers Live It Up At Lockbourne AFB

Clumsy with unaccustomed parachutes, the "troops" were made up of 500 Boy Scouts and Explorers from five Central Ohio counties.

The brief excursions into the wild blue yonder were only part of the program planned for the teenagers during their two-day "air encampment."

If life in the Air Force could be proved to be as interesting as the 36 hours the boys were exposed to, the local recruiting officer should be doing a land-office business.

The young men got their first look at the Buckeye, new jet tanker designed to maintain a crew in 40 degree below zero weather for seven days. Many saw at close hand the first operational jet fighter, the T-33 used in Korea and now converted to a trainer. The EB 47 was on static display with more electronic equipment than most boys even are aware exists.

The demonstrations of the sentry dogs, one minute viciously lunging at a target, the next moment grinning at their trainers as they waltzed on their hind legs, brought gasps of admiration from the Scouts.

The judo exhibition highlighted another part of the weekend, with the SAC champs showing how experts practice self-defense.

Sunday evening, it was a weary bunch of kids that left for home, but also a gang who had been given the opportunity few civilians have—to closely observe their country's Air Force at work and at play.

JUMBO HANGAR BECAME a hotel for teen-agers at Lockbourne last Saturday night. With cots made up and ready for anything are boys from Linden post 30, Worthington post 194, Berwick post 335 and South East post 288.

TB Tests Reveal Positive Reactors

Four positive reactors were found through free TB tests given in South Side parochial schools, the Tuberculosis Society reported. A total of 512 first, seventh and 11th graders received the free tests during March.

C. Edward Harrison, society director of case-detection, explained that a positive reaction to the test does not necessarily mean the student has active contagious tuberculosis. It does mean he has been in close contact with someone who has active TB.

"All positive reactors and their close relatives are routinely X-rayed to locate contagious tuberculosis," Harrison said.

Area schools and the number of reactors checked are: St. Mary, 2; St. Leo, 0; St. Ladislas, 0; Corpus Christi, 1; St. John, 1.

Police List Two Accident Areas

Two South Side districts have been cited by Columbus Police for increased enforcement of traffic law violations, according to the Selective Enforcement Bulletin issued by the department for the first 15 days of April.

Increased traffic enforcement was called for in district 71 with special emphasis on Parsons-av, from Sycamore to Stewart. The bulletin called for attention to the hours of 4 to 10 p.m., with desired enforcement of speed laws and reckless operation of a motor vehicle.

District 72 was also listed as an area for increased traffic law enforcement with special emphasis on Parsons-av, between Jenkins and Reeb. Special attention to the hours of 7 to 10 a.m. was called for, with desired enforcement of stop sign laws and red light violators listed.

No fatal accidents were recorded during the first 15 days of April in the City of Columbus, according to the bulletin, but 23 pedestrians, 17 under the age of 10, were involved in traffic mishaps.

Come One, Come All

The planting of a sugar maple purchased by the children will kick off the dedication ceremonies of Watkins Elementary School, Tuesday at 2 p.m.

While the school patrol acts as a color guard, a child selected from each room will help shovel the dirt around the young tree, principal Charles Krisler explained.

Homer Trantham of the city board of education will give the dedication address at the formal opening in the auditorium Tuesday at 7 p.m. Dr. Harold H. Eibling will also speak.

The sixth grade chorus will sing and a fellowship and refreshment hour will follow.

The entire building will be open to public inspection and all teachers will be at their posts for visitation.

Krisler stated that when the school, then not complete, opened late in the fall of 1961, only 350 students enrolled. Today, even before dedication has taken place, pupil population has more than doubled and capacity has been outgrown.

The principal was aided in preparation for Tuesday's events by four of his teachers, Mrs. Darsie Saunders, Mrs. Daisy Donaldson, Mrs. Margaret Kranaskas and Mrs. Martha Jordan.

Jones Will Speak

Russell M. Jones, candidate for city council, will speak to residents of the Southeast Columbus area at Marion-Franklin High, Monday, Apr. 29, at 8 p.m.

Ample Money, Good Prices For Home Buyers

New Homes Accent Better Kitchen Plans

The impressive kitchens are eye-catchers in April's new homes. They'll appeal to the men as well as the women.

The growing enthusiasm among men and women for gourmet cooking as a hobby has given the kitchen new prominence and importance. Some people even like to do their entertaining in the kitchen—and play to an admiring audience as they prepare the menu.

Home builders have given great attention to the design of the new kitchens. Good planning on their part has made this focal point of the home glamorous as well as efficient and functional. Delightfully harmonizing colors extend from walls and floors to counter-tops and appliances. There is an abundance of storage space. Shining appliances are arranged for comfort and convenience. Kitchen lighting is vastly improved. Translucent panels in ceilings and recessed lighting over work counters are no longer a characteristic of only custom-built kitchens.

Probably the feature of the new kitchens that appeals most to the housewife is the tendency toward space for dining. Frequently this means room for a table. Sometimes it is counter space that doubles as an eating area. Surveys reveal that kitchens with enough room for family breakfasts or lunches come high on the list of Mrs. America's dream kitchen.

Here are points to keep in mind when inspecting new kitchens to see how well they are designed:

Sufficient counter space.

Good cabinet and storage space.

An adequate eating area.

Good lighting and ventilation.

Well arranged clean and mix centers.

A refrigerator with the latch side next to a counter—so that the refrigerator door opens away from the counter rather than blocks easy transfer of food stored in the refrigerator.

Space for easy traffic without one person having to squeeze by another.

Location of the kitchen so that groceries can be brought in without traffic through the living room or other part of the house.

Two-Story Homes May Come Back

A new look at an old favorite—the multi-story home—is predicted by a housing authority for one of the nation's leading manufacturers of building materials.

Builders are once again giving two-story and other multi-story home designs a renewed look after concentrating on one-story dwellings for the past 15 years.

One of the main reasons for the revival is the crowded conditions developing around large cities. A two-story home provides about the same living space as a single-story dwelling on about half the land. Other savings are possible in roof and foundation construction costs.

The multi-story house has been an American tradition since before the Revolutionary War and still offers more living area per dollar than any other design.

Two simple, but effective techniques being considered by architects to modify the box-like look of many two-story structures, are to extend planters for several feet beyond the sides of the house and to roof it with shingles that have extra-wide tabs.

Kitchen Color

It's just as important to have cheerful, colorful kitchen walls as it is to design a kitchen to save steps and work.

Today's trend is to make the kitchen area flow into the dining area. You can select two colors, one for dining room walls, the other a complementary color for kitchen walls.

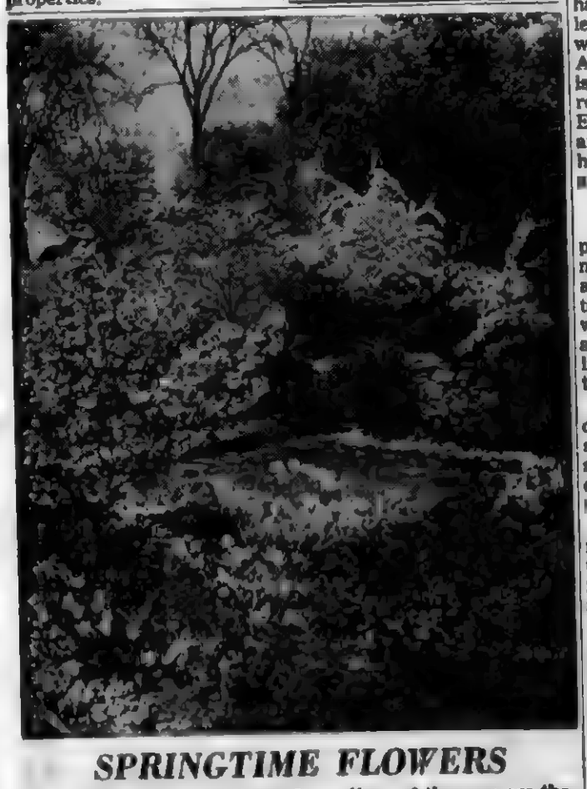
Try painting one wall a deep yellow, another a light red, and the ceiling sky blue.



The new pastel shades can fill a kitchen with a bouquet of charming color.

Your Land Can Wear Out, Too

People think of houses and furniture wearing out, but land also can wear out and its value depreciate if the land is not planted and conserved, advises the American Association of Nurserymen.

The best way to conserve land is by planting it. Otherwise it becomes bare, trodden and eroded. In such cases it loses much of its value.

Try this, advise the nurserymen. Walk around your neighborhood and observe other properties. People generally prefer well-planted properties.

SPRINGTIME FLOWERS

AMONG THE GAYEST decorations of the year are the many beautiful flowers and trees that bloom in the early spring. Attractively arranged gardens and plants can do much to beautify a home and raise the spirits of the occupants. Well-planned homes and gardens include many of the early-blooming plants.

Experimental House Contains New Ideas For The Future

THE 1963 EXPERIMENTAL HOUSE of the National Association of Home Builders at Rockville, Md., nears completion. This is NAHB's fifth research house to test new building materials and techniques intended to increase housing values and hold down construction costs. It is being built by NAHB's 1963 President W. Evans Buchanan.

Kitchen counter tops of adjustable heights may be one of many new features in the home of the future.

They are among the innovations being tried out in the Experimental House which the National Association of Home Builders has constructed at Rockville, Md., near Washington, D.C.

The two-story building is the fifth Research House built by the association to test new building materials, techniques and equipment. The objective of the research program is to find ways to build better and more economically. W. Evans Buchanan, NAHB president and the builder of the new Experimental House, said the dividends will go to the consumer, for "he will get a better home at less cost."

Adjustable To Work

The counter tops and cabinets of the new Experimental House are hung on the wall by brackets that can be moved up or down on a metal frame. The counters not only can be adjusted to the height desired by a housewife, but also to the kind of work done on them. The system permits different heights for the sink, the food preparation center, the mixing center and the work desk that is included in the house's kitchen.

Attention-getters in the three-bedroom house include the 2½ bathrooms, whose walls and fixtures are of reinforced plastic that came from the factory in sections.

The downstairs bathroom has a vanity running the length of the room, with a wall-to-wall mirror above it. At each end of the long vanity is a plastic medicine cabinet, recessed in its plastic wall. Each has a decorative door and six shallow shelves for handy and commodious storage.

Ready-Built Wall

One wall, which came complete from the factory, has a molded, decorative pattern and a recess for a "built-in" towel bar. The bathroom is white, but the plastic walls and fixtures can be obtained in color. It is not only attractive, but easy to clean.

Upstairs, there are one and one-half baths, two medium-sized bedrooms and a king-sized bedroom. The house has over 60 linear feet of closet space.

So many pre-finished materials were used in the house that virtually no inside painting was needed when the last nail was driven.

Panels with a vinyl plastic film laminated to gypsum board which is glued to light gauge steel studs, are used for the upstairs partitions. They came from the factory with colorful textured finishes that are durable and washable. The panels can be repainted if a change of color is desired, but the finish is long-lasting.

Aim To Cut Costs

"The idea," Buchanan said, "was to use as much pre-finished material in the house as possible, because this cuts down on-site labor and thus on costs. Materials finished in the factory under controlled conditions are proving to be exceedingly durable."

Exterior walls of the house are covered with plywood, coated with a plastic film laminated in the factory. They will require no repainting or other maintenance for 15 to 20 years at least.

The roof, using an NAHB-developed truss system, has a wide overhang. The pre-finished roofing material, of a plastic film on plywood, was laid down in sheets.

The house has a free traffic pattern. From the front entranceway a visitor can turn right to the study, left to the kitchen or go straight ahead to the living area or up the stairs to the bedroom area.

Unusual Garage

The large living room and adjacent family room, which can serve as a formal dining room, open through sliding glass doors to a private, rear terrace. The kitchen also opens with sliding glass doors to a patio which connects with the garage.

The garage itself is unusual. On the street side it has storage for a car. But on the house side, it has an enclosed porch for summer living, complete with its own fireplace for summer barbecues. In the winter, this section can house a second car.

An economical flooring system also is used in the house, with one layer of flooring doing the duty of two. The flooring looks like a fine, conventional oak floor.

Like other Research Houses built by the NAHB, the 1963 Experimental House will be put to a lengthy test of wear and liveability by the family that eventually will become its owners. Periodic performance checks will be made by technicians to see how the innovations are working out and if they should be applied to general home construction.

THIS TWO-STORY HOUSE at Lansing, Mich., was another of NAHB's five test houses. It was built in 1960.

AN "A"-SHAPED garage and a new material of foamed plastic were tried in this 1958 house at South Bend, Ind.

and comfort at low cost were the goals of this widely copied house at Knoxville, Tenn., built in 1958.

NEW, MORE economical exterior walls were tested in this 1955 Research House, NAHB's first, at Kensington, Md.

Home Improvement Year Is Stressed

"There is real merit in an industry-wide drive which encourages Americans to remodel and improve their homes. Such a program also helps in the maintenance and enhancement of community life throughout the nation," stated President Kennedy in a telegram to the Home Improvement Council.

Landscaping and planting and beautifying home properties is an integral part of the home improvement drive in 1963. These improvements add to the liveability of individual properties as well as neighborhoods and communities.

Home May Take One Of Many Styles

Many different terms are used to describe the new homes. Split level, split foyer, ranch style, rambler, two-story, and Colonial are but some of them.

However, from an architectural standpoint, most homes fall into one of three general classifications. They are traditional, modern, and contemporary.

The traditional home suggests designs used in the early days of the country, when homes were rectangular, compact, and built of native materials. Favorite features of the traditional home today include small-paned windows, shutters, second-story dormer windows, formal entrances and interesting detail. The traditional home of 1963 will have many variations and innovations brought about by progress in home building. But basically it calls on the architecture of the past for inspiration.

The modern home is strictly a product of the 20th century. It has a low-pitched and flat roof, wide overhangs—or occasionally, no overhang—strong horizontal lines, much glass, and simple, structural planes. Usually, it is built of unadorned materials and it follows the open plan of interior arrangement.

The contemporary home is often referred to as a "middle of the road" design because it blends the best of the old and new. Its lines may be traditional, but it may use much glass to extend view and liveability beyond its walls. It often uses the open plan of interior design, but not necessarily. It shows the appreciation of detail that is our architectural inheritance from Colonial days. Perhaps more than any other, the contemporary home can be termed the "house of today."

Time Appears Right To Buy New Home

Homes at stable prices . . . homes more spacious and pleasing than ever before . . . ample mortgage money for loans at reasonable interest rates. . .

That seems to be the consensus of government officials, home builders, and private economists connected with the home building industry.

Recently, Joseph P. McMurray, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, said that in 1963 "people will have an opportunity like they never have had in recent years to get mortgages and houses at bargain prices."

Favorable Rates

Another official, J. Stanley Baughman, president of the Federal National Mortgage Association, put it this way:

"I would expect mortgage rates to be generally favorable to home buyers in 1963 and that the supply of funds will be at least as plentiful in relation to demand for loans as it was in 1962."

What types of loans are available for the purchase of a home? There are three—conventional, FHA and VA.

The conventional loan, from a bank or savings and loan association, is the one most home buyers obtain. Predictions are that savings and loan associations will lend home buyers about $23.5 billion in 1963—or 12 per cent more than they did in 1962.

S&L Big Leader

McMurray is one of those who expect such an increase in loans by savings associations. He also said that savings and loan industry has been by far a more constant source of mortgage credit since the late 1940's than any other lending group. Thus, the thrift of Americans has helped substantially to make this a country of home owners, he pointed out.

Under FHA, the government insures loans for home purchase and improvement. The person getting the loan pays a fee of one-half of one per cent of the mortgage. However, the interest he pays on an FHA-insured mortgage is usually lower than he would pay on a conventional mortgage.

The third form of financing is the VA mortgage. The Veterans Administration guarantees repayment of 60 per cent of a loan made to a homebuyer or $7,500 of the loan, whichever is less.

Whichever type of loan a home buyer obtains, he builds up an equity in his home as he makes his monthly payments and has something to show for his money instead of merely collecting rent receipts.

Homes Reveal New Trends In Design

By W. EVANS BUCHANAN
President, National Assn. Of Home Builders

Fine new homes in all price brackets and many designs await the inspection of families throughout the country during the celebration of April as New Homes Month.

More than ever before, the new homes have been constructed with ease of liveability in mind. Blueprints were drawn with the enjoyment, comfort and convenience of the eventual owners as the guiding yardstick. The homes are unsually attractive, but also extremely functional.

Designs of the new homes vary according to regions, but nationally there appears to be something of a trend back to the two-story house. This is due to the fact that families are larger, while land prices are still rising. A two-story house provides more square footage of space for the same amount of money in many cases. However, ramblers and ranch houses are still favorites in some parts of the country, especially California and Florida, where indoor-outdoor living has virtually no dividing line.

The trend, too, is toward more bedrooms and bathrooms. There are many four-bedroom homes. Where previously you might have seen two big bedrooms and one small bedroom, you now likely will find a large master bedroom and more smaller bedrooms. The smaller bedrooms are entirely adequate to their purpose while providing the privacy of a separate room for more children.

It is impossible to single out one type of house and say it is the home of 1963. In the clothes world, you can point to a particular fashion as "the" spring style of the year. But people want more variety from which to choose when they select their homes, the center of family life.

At any rate, people resist drastic changes in the appearance of their homes. The multitude of changes that have come in recent years have been evolutionary rather than revolutionary. Many of the changes that contribute to the improved comfort of today's home regardless of its design are not apparent to the eye.

The changes include, for example, better insulation to make the homes tighter and warmer in winter while cutting cooling bills in summer. Materials used in build-

WORKING WALLS USED TO CONSERVE SPACE

A GARAGE LINER, prefinished with performations above a wainscot, is useful in turning otherwise wasted space into an attractive working area by providing hanging space that eliminates storage. Heavy-duty hangers will bear the weight of bulky lawn and garden tools and equipment. The grooved panels, with a factory applied finish, come in man-sized four by eight sheets and can be nailed directly to studs.

BOY'S ROOM employs prefinished panels, decoratively designed to provide handsome and practical working walls within the home. Other designs and patterns of perforated hardboards are available, some with random spacing, tracery designs and even with square holes. In a child's room or a utility room an added feature is that the surfaces will wipe clean with just a damp cloth.

Carpet Styles Can Be Adapted To Fit Decor

Whether your home is elegant in the traditional manner, or smartly contemporary, carpets and rugs are again proving that the "well-dressed floor" is the perfect starting point for home decor.

Carpets and rugs for 1963 reveal two definite style trends: Traditional and contemporary. There's a return to elegance in a variety of traditional patterns, rich colors and soft, thick textures. At the same time, there are crisp colors, interesting textures and patterns done in the contemporary manner.

Several important color trends are seen throughout these varied stylings. Gold appears as the most important color family for 1963 — ranging from soft-burnished bronze tones to sharp clear golds, often mixed with a related color such as orange or russet.

There's a tinge of gold in other color families, too—notably in the greens, with avocado, moss and bronze greens appearing in many new styles.

Sharply contrasting colors are often seen in vivid area rugs, but in carpets there is a definite trend toward the subtle blends of color. Closely related color mixtures, such as black with brown or charcoal; varying mixtures of browns and beiges. All of these have a definite color "character," however. The nondescript "neutrals" are waning in popularity.

Color, of course, goes hand in hand with texture, and the two together determine the total style effect of a carpet or rugs.

When carpets are not done in vivid colors, they are shown in a variety of interesting "neutrals" — mixtures as turquoise and bronze, or reds with orange, are favored over the tweeds with a definite contrast, such as black-and-white, or the "salt-and-pepper" tweedy styles.

Homes—

ing today's homes also are vastly improved. Even nails have greater holding power. The unsung, and sometimes unseen, ingredients that make today's home a better home include more durable finishes, longer-lasting roofing, and maintenance-free exterior materials.

Storage Space Organized

Home builders have been giving greater attention to the design of their houses. One of the happy by-products of this —especially from the housewife's standpoint — is the abundant storage space which the new homes feature.

Storage space is organized and planned for specific items. Clothes space, for instance, is larger. The average person today has more clothes to store than a generation ago.

Home builders keep in mind the changing habits of Americans so that the houses they build will meet the needs of growing families. Builders today are aware that many families require facilities for storing outdoor games and sports equipment, such as fishing rods or skis, garden tools, garden furniture, fuel, seasonal trimmings, such as Christmas ornaments, travel equipment, toys, including tricycles, sleds and doll furniture, and all of the other appurtenances that go with modern living.

Increased attention to design has paid dividends in another way. You will find that the new homes have excellent circulation or traffic patterns. The interior arrangement is such that you can go from room to room without having to pass needlessly through a third room. Groceries can be brought from the car to the kitchen without traffic to the formal part of the home. Good traffic patterns in a home not only save steps, but help keep the house clean.

The advances made by progressive home builders have been accompanied also by greater discrimination on the part of home buyers. They have a much better idea than ever before of what to look for in selecting a home.

Test your own house I.Q. by visiting some of April's new homes in your area. You will love them.

New Ideas

There are countless new ideas in bathroom decoration today. It is no longer a must, for example, to install the medicine cabinet over the wash bowl. Some put the cabinet on a side wall. This leaves space for an extra-wide mirror over the vanity.

Conference Spotlights Role Of Storage In Modern Home

Home builders are well aware of the importance of storage space to a homemaker and 1963 homes are being constructed with this need uppermost in mind.

Kitchens with efficient work arrangements are also high on the list of what people want in the way of a home. Many like eating areas in the kitchen. A recent Women's Housing Conference, held in Virginia Beach, Va., spotlighted the role of the kitchen in the modern home.

More than 56 per cent of the women attending said they preferred to have their main meals in the kitchen. An even greater number — 66 per cent — said they would give up bedroom space to have a larger kitchen.

Housewives like color in their kitchen and the 1963 homes have light, bright and colorful kitchens with new counter tops and other materials in a beautiful array of colors.

Most families want a home that extends beyond its walls. More and more people tend to make the outdoor area a harmonious, flowing unit rather than separately divided.

The trend also is to more bathrooms and the new bathrooms are attractive, according to modern builders with plenty of mirrors and often with vanities with storage space for towels.

Most couples with children include a recreation or playroom among their house wants. This is particularly true in large families where both the children and the parents want to entertain with a measure of privacy and without disturbing the others.

Tourists At Center

The National Housing Center is among tourist attractions in Washington, D.C. On display are the latest appliances, equipment, and materials for new homes. Visitors are welcome to roam the exhibit floors. Admittance is free and the center is open seven days a week, except for national holidays. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. six days a week and 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. on

Flood Insurance Difficult To Sell

Most people who buy insurance on their homes in the form of the popular "homeowners' package policy" are aware of the fact that the policy does not provide for damages caused by floods.

But few people understand why insurance companies do not offer such coverage, according to a study undertaken by the Ohio Insurance Information Service, Inc.

The fact is, says O.I.I.S., that insurance companies over the years repeatedly have tried to offer coverages for flood and others such as wavewash and high tides which now are specifically excluded from homeowners policies.

But insurance companies have found that few people are willing to pay premiums adequate to cover the catastrophic losses involved. Rates necessarily must be high because the only people who want to buy flood insurance are those whose property is located in areas almost certain to be flooded sooner or later. Hence, it is impossible to "spread the risk," the basic tenet of all insurance.

This is the reason, O.I.I.S. reports, that losses caused by floods, high tides and wavewash are omitted under commercial insurance policies on fixed property such as homes and stores, although movable property such as an automobile can be readily insured against water damage.

Make Entrance Inviting

A tiled entrance hall has many advantages. It is easy to keep clean. It can be dramatic. There are many decorative patterns available. Special thought given to an entrance will bring dividends to you and your guests. The first view of your home should be an inviting one.

Competitive Prices Expected To Influence Home Market

Many signs indicate the presence of a good selling market for homeowners for the balance of the year. Paul J. Falco, president of the Columbus Board of Realtors said that "an authoritative national survey of buyers' intentions has found that more families intend to buy a home this year than at any time in recent years, but at the same time, competition will be the trademark for 1963."

The National Association of Real Estate Boards' Department of Research, on this subject, found in a recent survey that potential home sellers in many areas of the country are today offering their houses at more realistic prices than they were a year ago, and more in line with the market. On the other hand, in other areas, price stability in the existing house market has started to be recognized only to a limited extent, home owners still thinking in terms of market trends experienced in periods of housing shortages.

The market for existing homes will expand in the future to the degree that owners become more conscious of the present market situation.

Falco also said that sales will be facilitated by a mortgage market characterized by an abundance of loan funds at moderate interest rates as the flow of savings in various financial institutions grows. The supply of older homes is more than adequate in most places and a homeowner can no longer count on an automatic profit when he sells his house. The seller must reconcile himself to the fact that overpricing is a major handicap to making a sale within a reasonable time.

Mr. Falco indicated that for the realtor who has become well established in his business, the outlook for 1963 is good and there are buyers waiting for many types of property—but they are selective; they are looking for bargains. Many realtors have expanded their business to the use of the trade-in program.

Falco added, owners, when talking of trading their home on another home, are now compelled to take into account in their sales price, the benefits they had received for living in the home during their period of ownership. Housing is definitely a consumption item the same as clothing and food and must be treated as such in arriving at values. Some of it has been consumed by the owner during his occupancy. Inflation has abated and supply has begun to catch up with the demand, according to Falco.

Have A Question? Here Are Some Suggestions For Solving Your Decor Problems

Q. I have a copper-colored sofa and a moss-green chair in my living room. What do you suggest as a carpet color?

A. Since you have contrasting colors already, it would be better to choose a carpet in one of these tones, rather than introducing a third color. You might choose a carpet in a copper or moss green shade, or one blending these tones.

Q. I have a rug with a definite floral pattern. Can I also use patterned draperies?

A. Probably not. Although it is sometimes possible to use two definite patterns in a room — if one is large-scale and one is small-scale, for example — it's usually best to let one pattern dominate, especially in a large area such as the floor. Your draperies, however, might have a great deal of texture interest or a muted color combination.

Q. Should my walls and carpet be the same color?

A. This isn't necessary at all. They may be different tones of the same color—generally, with the darker shade used for the carpet—or they may be related colors. It's best to avoid directly contrasting colors in these two large areas unless the room is very large.

Q. Can tweed carpets be used with traditional furniture?

A. It depends on the variation of design. Many "tweed" carpets today are subtle mixtures of color and blend beautifully with the soft lines of traditional styling. Also, traditional furniture may be fairly simple rather than ornate. A sharp "salt-and-pepper" tweed would probably not be compatible with very elaborate period furniture — but between these two extremes, there are many possibilities.

Q. I would like to use a room-sized rug in a living room with a bay window. Would it look awkward?

A. Room-size rugs leave a border of floor showing all around the room — usually, eight to 10 inches from the wall. You might prefer a room-fit rug—cut to fit the contours of the room, including the bay window. Or you might use a rug showing a narrow border of floor and accent the bay window area with a handsome area rug.

Carpets Have Proven A Comfortable And Welcome Addition To The Kitchen

It finally happened. Carpet has made it to the kitchen.

And so now it is entirely possible to make the midnight raid on the family refrigerator and not make a sound . . . unless you fall over the kitchen table or something.

Yes, a carpeted kitchen is quieter and reportedly more comfortable to work in. In many cases the kitchen has become a pleasant second family room after the addition of a carpet.

Satisfied users say maintenance is a pleasant surprise. Vacuum-cleaning takes the place of scrubbing, waxing and polishing. Spot cleaning is a matter of just a few minutes.

Practically all spots and stains can be removed from the normal carpet with a detergent and water solution, or a cleaning fluid for oily stains. Best of all, routine cleaning can be done at regular intervals. If you're interrupted there's no problem like with waxing or a scrubbing job. Just come back later and take up where you've left off.

The quick and easy use of a vacuum cleaner or carpet sweeper instantly gives the kitchen a neat "picked-up" look which is a head start on the spotless appearance of any room.

Experts say that nylon carpets are most frequently used in the kitchen since they resist rapid moisture absorption and can be readily cleaned of any water stains.

Comfort, quiet, beauty and easy maintenance are all factors that are especially important to the room where a housewife spends a big part of her busy day. This fact probably accounts for the reason that many homemakers who have tried carpeted kitchens are no longer skeptical, but are enthusiastic about their discovery.

THE LATEST in kitchen floor covering is shown in this comfortable area of the home where carpets are utilized to make the dining area more livable.

Chemicals Can Take The Place Of Constant Weeding

If you've been a shareholder in "Weekend Weeding" for the past couple of summers, the advice of this column is sell—but fast. And invest instead in chemicals—lawn and garden chemicals.

They'll earn the plaudits of your neighbors, and your dividends — in the form of a healthy, green lawn — will be constant and appreciable.

When you "bought" WW (a wild "growth" issue, incidentally), you rationalized that you'd save money. But did you? And what about your time? Apply the yardstick of the going rate on your regular job, and you'll find that you've been employing a pretty high-priced weed control system. And probably a none too effective one at that.

This year why not let the chemicals do your feeding and weeding, while you put your time to more profitable and enjoyable use?

Feeding plants is like feeding people. Both need easily accessible sources of nutrition in their youth and a continuous balanced diet during their entire life.

More than 15 food elements are considered essential to plant growth. Of these, 12 come from the soil, and three are obtained from air and water. The primary food elements are nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash.

Nitrogen gives the dark green coloring to plants, promotes rapid growth and fullness. Phosphorous stimulates early root formation and growth. Potash (potassium) provides plant vigor and disease resistance, as well as stepped-up food production.

Mother Nature supplies the air and — in most cases — the water. (She uses chemical compounds, too.) So that just leaves the feeding and weeding — and in some instances disease control.

An excellent food for all lawns is a 20-10-10 turf food, a balanced combination of nitrogen, phosphorous, and potash, fortified with iron to impart deep greening and combat chlorosis. Phosphorous and potash are long lasting, but nitrogen isn't always. Modern turf food formulations, however, contain "Uramite M" fertilizer compound, a unique fertilizer developed by Du Pont to control the release of nitrogen to the grass as it is needed. Such turf food provides an immediate feeding to the soil that greens grasses quickly, and a long-lasting feeding that keeps it green and healthy for months.

Turf food should be applied in early spring, again in the summer, and — for best results — once more in the fall. One 22-pound bag covers 5,000 square feet of lawn area.

Good turf food is textured for steady flow through your spreader. There should be a handy chart on each package that shows the correct setting for your particular spreader. To avoid unsightly strips of unfed lawn, you might want to set the spreader at half the recommended opening and cover the area twice. The second time walk at right angles to the first.

If your lawn has been invaded by broadleaf weeds like plantain, dandelion, buttercup, and chickweed, you can feed and weed in one application of 20-10-10 turf food containing 2,4-D weed killer. Apply in the same manner as turf food, and one 22-pound bag treats the same 5,000-square-foot area.

Most lawns look best if kept to a height of one and a half to two inches. If the lawn is to be used as a play area for children, you will be wise to keep it somewhat higher, from two to two and a half inches.

CLEAN NAILS

Scratch fingernails along the surface of a bar of soap before starting any paint job or greasy project. Soap keeps paint or grease out of nails.

Fence Brings Value, Beauty

A good fence makes good sense, in terms of creating a feeling of privacy, visually defining property lines, and adding a design dimension to the homesite.

Fences help integrate the relationship of house to lot, and contribute much to the landscape planning and the overall architectural scheme.

For the new house, fencing and patio screens or walls immediately take away the awkward "unfinished" look new houses have until landscaping is completed. And if your house looks too similar to those next door, distinctive fencing will make it stand out as individual.

An excellent material for decorative fences and for patio enclosures, sun traps and windbreaks is tempered hardboard. Tempered hardboard has been specially treated at the factory to make it harder and tougher. Thus it is more resistant to changing hot summer and cold winter weather conditions.

The smooth surface of tempered hardboard panels takes paint well and paint will lend beauty and long life to exterior applications of this moisture-resistant material.

There are many functions that a fence can serve, as definition of lot lines and yard areas, as a background for planting, to shut out sun and wind. For wind and sun, fence design directly affects the temperature you feel. The sun will feel warmer, for example, if the fence screens the wind.

For wind control, a solid fence is only one-third as efficient in protecting against high winds as a slat fence. This is because a solid fence creates a wave of air that splashes over the fence, whereas a slat fence diffuses, or filters, the stream of air.

Solid fences erected to provide privacy can deflect the wind better if a slanting baffle is added to the top to force air to flow over the fence in a gentle arc.

Painting Can Solve Room Size And Shape Problems

You can "change a room's dimensions" if you know the magic tricks of paint color. In this day, when every room may not be the answer to your dream-house architecturally these problem-solving hints from the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association come in handy, indeed.

First, some basic color facts.

The lightness or darkness of a color radically affects the illusion of size. Try this test yourself to see how it works. Place side by side identical objects, one in black, the other in white, since these are dark and light extremes. See how the white seems larger and farther away, the black smaller and closer.

So it is with walls.

White or pastels (which are only colors tinted generously with white) will open up a small area and "enlarge" it. But if you wish to diminish the wide open spaces of a cavernous room, deeep shades will seem to draw the walls cosily together.

Now the color itself.

You may have heard them described as "warm" or "cool." The easiest way to tell which is which, is to relate them to familiar things. Like the sun, like flame, the warm colors are variations of orange, red or yellow. They seem nearer to you and make rooms smaller.

Conversely, like the sky, like water, variations of blue, violet, green and gray are the airier "cools." They make objects appear to recede. Therefore, rooms look larger.

These colors will actually make you feel warmer or cooler mentally. So take this into consideration along with the size of the room before you paint. For instance, a pastel yellow will seem to enclose you more than a pastel blue, even though they are both pale. So if you're painting a long, narrow corridor you might very well prefer choosing your pastel from the cool family.

Speaking of long, narrow rooms, it is best to break them up with color. Favorite decorator tricks are painting the two narrow ends in a deep, warm shade and keeping walls light. This shortens the length considerably to your mind's eye. If the ceiling is abnormally high, pull it together with the floor by painting them both in the same deep shade.

In any room, this ceiling rule holds true: too high, keep the color deep; too low, lift it with a light color.

A half-wall jutting out from nowhere splits a room's symmetry. Since you can't disguise this architecture, dramatize it with a bright, warm shade. This might be the focal point of a furniture grouping or prize painting. More interest is added to a too-square room with this technique, too.

You can afford to chop up space with contrasting-color woodwork and doors only if the room is big enough to take it. Otherwise, paint all Everything blends. The same goes for radiators, pipes, lighting fixtures, extraneous molding and other such eyesores foisted upon you. They will fade away.

Using top quality paint makes the most of your budget. Only the best will look the way you want it, wear and cover properly.

Protect Your Plants They Add Value To Your Home

Not many things consumers purchase will become more valuable with time. However this is true with well-cared-for trees and shrubs on a home owner's property, says the American Association of Nurserymen.

A $10 tree, properly cared for, in a period of 10 years or more may cost up to $100 or more to replace. There are reasons for this. Not only is the growing tree an investment, increasing in value, but the labor costs for planting trees multiplies as the trees get larger.

Most home owners prefer to plant the average sizes, usually from one to one and a half inch diameter of the trunk, while other prefer larger trunk diameter of two and a half inches and upward, in order to provide immediate fruit, or shade as the case may be.

These trees of course cost more, but the home owners are willing to pay more for immediate results.

Other home owners, especially young couples, can watch their trees grow in size and value.

If they wish to sell the home, good landscaping will increase the total value considerably, up to 20 per cent more being reported in some cases.

On the other hand, houses poorly planted or without any planting of significance deteriorate in value more rapidly.

Good landscaping often can be worth up to 10 times its cost after the first 10 years or so; and, when and if the house is sold, can be one of the best investments a family can make.

Nurserymen members of the association are equipped with the proper knowledge to advise home owners on how to plant properly to increase real estate value.

HOMES OF MANY LANDS . . .

The Swiss Alps Farm House

The mountainous terrain of South Switzerland is the locale for this geranium bedecked farm house. The extremely cold winters explain the small windows and thick stone wall construction. Hay, cured on the mountain side the summer before, is stored in the attic and proves to be valuable insulation. The timbers of the upper stories and gables have a handsome coloration due to the drying effects of the sun in the thin atmosphere. The economy of the area is dominated by dairy cattle, producers of world-famous Swiss cheeses.

300 New Homes Now Being Built By Vilardo Builders

A new housing area known as Asbury Heights is being developed by Vilardo Builders on Noe-Bixby-rd to offer the well-known Vilardo Homes at moderate prices to the discriminating buyers.

According to Vilardo President Phillip J. Vilardo, many persons have been interested in buying a Vilardo home in the past but have found the prices to be prohibitive. Now, said Vilardo, the firm is developing Asbury Park to offer new homes with prices starting at $15,750.

Asbury Park, to be opened May 5, will feature six new model homes, all containing one and a half or two baths. The area is located one-half mile north of route 33 (Canal Winchester-pk), from 3521 to 3567 Noe-Bixby-rd. When completed Asbury Park will be a 300 home community.

Vilardo Builders was founded as a family business consisting of the father, Frank Vilardo, and his sons, Phillip and Danny. A third son, Samuel, heads Sam Vilardo and Co., Realtors, 1341 S. Hamilton-rd, the exclusive agent for Vilardo Homes.

Asbury Park will be completely constructed by the trained crew of Vilardo Builders and sold only by Sam Vilardo and Company.

Add flour mixture alternately with milk, blend well after each addition; beat till smooth. Fill muffin pans greased or lined with paper baking cups two-thirds full. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 18 minutes. Makes one dozen medium or one-and-one-half dozen small cupcakes.

Richmond Chocolate Frosting
1½ tablespoons cornstarch
½ cup sugar
1 one-ounce unsweetened chocolate grated
Dash salt
½ cup boiling water
1½ tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon vanilla

Mix sugar and cornstarch; add chocolate and salt. Add water, cook until mixture thickens. Remove from heat; add butter and vanilla. Spread on cake while hot for a glossy frosting which remains soft and smooth.

Nowadays there's no trick to making perfect cakes. Even amateur cooks can bake cakes that meet with the approval of experienced cake-eaters. With today's carefully tested food products such as double-acting baking powder and delicate cake flour, plus modern kitchen appliances such as mixers and automatic electric ovens, even the inexperienced cook can enjoy consistently excellent cake-baking results.

Modern electric ovens, especially, have taken the guesswork out of baking cakes. Since accurately controlled heat that's evenly distributed throughout the oven is a vital part of perfect cake making, any woman—or her teenage daughter—who will follow directions carefully can bake perfect cakes consistently.

RESEMBLING NATURAL brook pebbles, small chips of translucent vinyl provide an intriguing design effect for this new vinyl flooring. True wall-to-wall beauty can be obtained with durable vinyl flooring that is manufactured in sheet form six-feet wide. Custom designs of contrasting colors in the same flooring material add an attractive decorating extra. Sheet vinyl flooring, installed virtually without seams, offers an extremely easy-to-maintain floor for this remodeled breakfast area.

New Designs And Brighter Colors For Floor Coverings To Be Produced In 1963

The "beige age" in resilient flooring is still going strong, but 1963 is certain to see brighter colors and more design make a noticeable appearance.

As home owners this year prepare for their various remodeling and fix-up projects, they will find a much wider selection of new types of flooring products with more pattern and more vivid colors than have been available in recent years, according to interior designers.

Parallel to the desire for more design in other home furnishings, the resilient flooring industry is reflecting consumer interest in a wider range of more pronounced patterns. Both realistic and stylized versions of traditional flooring effects, such as marble, ceramic tile, small scale geometrics and stone, should continue to be popular.

Consistent with the trend toward more design in flooring, 1963 should find an increased use of specified inserts, feature strips and other custom effects to provide floors with individuality. This trend will be most noticeable in luxury tile and vinyl flooring in sheet form six-feet wide, but custom designs are also making an appearance this year in the less expensive installations where materials such as vinyl-asbestos tile are selected.

The use of more vivid colors will become especially noticeable in resilient flooring materials in 1963. In the past, resilient flooring color preferences followed color trends established in other areas of residential interior design. In 1963, color choices in resilient flooring will start to "lead" other color trends.

This new interest in brighter colors and unusual designs in resilient flooring has developed partially from the changes in residential construction with the advent of ranch houses and open-plan construction. The versatility of vinyl has permitted flooring manufacturers to offer the consumer a wider choice of colors and unusual design effects.

"Because the floor occupies such a large physical portion of any room," Mrs. Margaret Gordon Dana, A.I.D., supervisor of Armstrong's Bureau of Interior Design, says, "the selection of flooring material is one of the first considerations in decorating."

The role of the floor in residential interior design has changed considerably in recent years. It has changed from merely "something to walk on" to a vital part of interior design. Flooring materials must coordinate and complement all of the elements involved in modern interiors.

Resilient flooring, with its broad selection of colors and designs, has introduced many new products in recent years and is on the threshold of announcing other exciting effects in new, versatile materials that only a few years ago were not much more than dreams.

A Retreat From City Life Offered By Suburban Living

By Ron Barlow

I guess it's pretty hard for a boy from the country to get used to big-city living. The hustle and bustle of metropolitan life, the tall buildings, the lost feeling of being a stranger, the continual racket of traffic and the enormous size are almost too much for someone used to a little town, where everybody knows everybody else and you can throw a stone from the center of town to the city limits in any direction.

This probably is reason No. 1 for my speedy retreat to a suburb almost before the ink was dry on my application for a job in the city.

I was looking for a quiet street, grass-filled lawns and small-town friendliness you find in a suburban community. Even though I had nine hours a day to spend in the hustle and bustle I wanted to get back to a small town on my own time. It all added up to the fact I wanted to get away from it all. All, in this case, meaning the city.

We found a little nest in the west (West Side of Columbus), and moved in. It was a nearly new home, comfortably constructed, with adequate conveniences and the usual amount of crab grass. Even the trees and shrubs were new and the fun of watching them grow was included in the price of the house. (Who buys an old tree?)

The things I didn't like about my new domain I figured I could change myself, and I immediately made elaborate plans to spend many relaxing hours in the yard planting, replanting and adding personal improvements. My back might get sore but I would be relaxed.

My neighbors turned out to be folks just like me. They had kids, liked to get together for an evening of cards, enjoyed getting away from it all and had sore backs from working in the yard.

And like me the neighbors are mostly from small communities and like to include atmosphere of home-town living in the neighborhood.

Those would be main reasons suburban living appeals to me. Ask a dozen suburbanites why they like to live away from the city and you'll probably get a dozen different answers. And you can bet they'll all be good ones.

Forest Park Offers Homes By Many Columbus Builders

Forest Park, now being developed by Metzger Brothers Co. Inc., 4160 Indianola-av, has the distinction of being the first self-contained community in Columbus.

The community has been developed in such a manner that it will include a nature trail park, playground, elementary and junior high school, swim and tennis club, 16-lane bowling center and a grocery covering a 7000-square foot area. Every possible service and convenience is being planned and offered to residents of this new community.

Another interesting concept in the development is the diversified and varied selection of homes being offered to buyers. At present homes have been built in the community by 53 different builders who in some cases have constructed as many as 11 different types of homes. The large volume of quality homes each builder produces enables them to construct custom homes for near project prices.

Home sales in the new area are being handled by Metzger Brothers Realty Co. and have so far averaged more than one new home per day since the beginning of the project two years ago.

Many persons buying homes in Forest Park already own homes in another location and these properties must be sold or traded in order to buy a new home. Metzger Brothers have tailored their organization to include an existing home sales department which has proven very successful in finding buyers for trade-in homes.

A spokesman for Metzger Brothers said the plan has been so successful that the department is constantly in need of additional existing homes.

The 1961 committee for the Columbus Home Builders "Parade of Homes" selected Forest Park to display 38 different model homes. At the present time 19 model homes are on display in the Forest Park area and several builders are in the process of preparing 34 new models for display in June.

Anyone interested in purchasing a new home is invited to visit Forest Park and see the many model homes on display by various local builders. This area has proven to be a new and successful concept in construction and development within easy driving distance, up the north freeway, of anyone in the Columbus area.

OLD BEDFRAME USE

Top of a discarded bedframe with a few 4" boards, and it makes a great off-the-floor storage platform for screens, storm windows, fireplace logs or bags of fertilizer, cement, etc.

Three Ways To Buy Insulation

Batts (in 4 and 8-foot lengths) are usually preferred for installation in walls.

Blankets (usually in 50-foot rolls) are often best adapted for ceilings or for floors above crawl spaces.

"Fill type" insulation comes loose in bags. It is simply poured between the attic floor joists and smoothed to any even depth.

Insulation materials are made of mineral wool, rock wool, fiber glass, slag, paper pulp, gypsum, asbestos, cork, aluminum foils, vermiculla, cotton and other vegetable and mineral matter.

Proper Mowing Important In Planning Healthy Lawn

By DR. W. A. LIDDELL

In the good old days mowing the lawn used to be work, but the power mower — gasoline or electric — has changed all that. Today, it is a mild form of exercise — not even that, if you have one with a sulky seat and a fringe on top! — giving us time to concentrate on some of the whys and therefores of this gentle art.

Each is good. The reel type is good for maintaining a close-cropped, even-textured, well graded lawn. The rotary has the edge for lawns with uneven grades and for hard-to-get-at-places. The rotary type is usually less espensive, easier to sharpen, and better at cutting tall grass; but it can be a dangerous instrument if not handled carefully. Whichever kind you choose, keep the cutting edges sharp.

How High to Cut?

Unless you prefer to adjust the machine according to the season — lower for close clipping in the spring and fall, higher for the stress conditions of midsummer — a good average is a cutting height of 1¼ to 1½ inches, providing of course, that your lawn receives its normal requirements of plant food during the season.

On most reel mowers the height of the cut is controlled by adjusting the roller next to the stationary blade. Some are adjusted by shims or shoes extending in front of the machine. Always make adjustments on a level surface, so you can accurately measure the height between the stationary blade and the ground. For rotary mowers, the height is often controlled by adjusting the wheels.

How Often?

This depends a lot on how fast your lawn is growing, but generally, frequent light clipping tends to stimulate leaf growth, provided soil fertility and moisture are ample. Since leaves play an important part in photosynthesis, the process by which plants use light to create plant tissue, it is a poor practice to remove more than a third of the leaf growth at one time. This again argues for frequent clipping rather than occasional heroic scalping.

Mowing a New Lawn

Wait until the grass is about three inches high. By then the plants should be well established, but it is most important to use a sharp mower, as they may not be firmly anchored and may be torn from the soil easily by a dull or poorly adjusted machine.

If possible, roll the new lawn area with a very light or even empty, water-ballast roller the day before the first mowing, to firm the plants in the soil, and help prevent them from being yanked up by the mower.

Mow when the grass is either dry or only slightly moist, and plan to remove excess clippings to prevent smothering of the young plants. After the first mowing, you can follow the practice for regular mowing recommended above.

If you mow often, leave the clippings. They won't be unsightly and in time will add organic matter to your soil. After a two-week vacation, though you may want to remove the clippings to prevent smothering the growing grass. Clippings make an excellent mulch for the garden, if your lawn is big enough to yield a significant volume and if you don't mind the small effort involved in raking.

To give your lawn an even texture, and to prevent the development of a "grain," or striped pattern, plan to mow at a different angle each time. This will encourage the grass to grow erect, preventing a more even and attractive appearance.

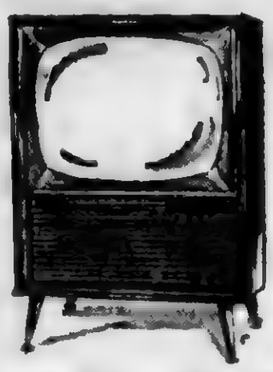
1. Use a good, sharp mower.
2. Mow at a height of 1¼-1½ in.
3. Remove only ⅓ to ¾ inch at a time.
4. Suit yourself about the clippings.

NOISE CAN BE SOFTENED

YOUNG GLADIATORS are nice, but noisy to have around the house—especially when people are trying to carry on a conversation nearby. Fortunately though, there's a way to keep this noise under control without relegating the kids to a back bedroom. Modern acoustical ceilings are designed to "soak up" unwanted sounds and keep them from spreading all over the house. An average acoustical ceiling costs little, and can be put up by the family do-it-yourselfer in less than a weekend.

PAINT STRAINER

Strain lumps and sediments out of a can of paint by pouring slowly through a double thickness of cheesecloth that has been tied over the mouth of an empty jar or pail.



CARE FOR MARBLE

Prevent stains and abrasions on marble furniture tops by washing frequently with a mild, neutral detergent and keeping waxed with a thin coat of paste wax.

Built-In Storage Units End Home Clutteration

Is your family always looking for things? If the time spent by families searching for missing articles could be computed, it would undoubtedly run into millions of hours each year.

Which, in many a home, points up the importance of somewhere, somehow developing additional storage facilities, to the end that there shall be "a place for everything, and every thing in its place."

One of the most versatile and adaptable forms of storage unit is the storage wall. This type of storage, which would be equally at home if placed in any room in the house, may be either straight storage or a combination storage and activity center (known as a "living wall").

The key to successful storage walls, be they "living walls" or straight storage, lie in careful planning and assessment of individual needs plus correct choice of construction material.

If solid lumber is used for a storage wall, the wall can be effectively integrated with the rest of the room—particularly if the room is paneled with matching lumber.

As for the where and what of storage walls, straight storage is most commonly incorporated in kitchens, bedrooms (or dressing rooms) and bathrooms; "living walls" are adapted to family and living rooms.

The beauty of the straight storage wall is the fact that it assures that all the items to be stored are consolidated, keeps the articles within easy reach out of sight, and it obviates the necessity for a full complement of bulky furniture.

Although the straight storage wall is usually built along one wall in a room, it may also serve as a room divider, perhaps separating sleeping from dressing area or creating separate activity areas in a child's room.

Combination, or living, walls are limited only by family interests and imagination.

The activity wall is self-explanatory. It might be dedicated to a hobby or series of hobbies such as tropical fish aquariums, the storage of paraphernalia for painting or flower arranging, for photographic equipment or might even include a built-in sewing machine.

On the other hand, the activity wall might be, in essence, an entertainment wall which would include built-in television, a movie screen, stereo and hi-fi equipment, etc. Or it might be built around a large stationary object such as a piano or organ.

Obviously, ending "clutteration" via built-in storage units can, at the same time, make a home much more livable.

Fine-Tooth Comb

Starting brads is one of the hardest of chores. There is always the danger of hitting a finger. Try holding the brad with a comb until it gets started. It may make the job easier and faster.

BUILT-INS store anything from sportswear to hobby gear in this boy's room. Wood is western pine.

FIT FOR A QUEEN

Built-in automatic dishwashers, which fit into standard size cabinet spaces, make it easy to include automatic dishwashing in your new kitchen plans. Or you can choose a convertible model that fits flush with counter tops and fronts on adjoining cabinets, or a portable unit that rolls under the counter when you're not using it.

The Yardener

Flowers Forever, Almost

Try this way to preserve those choice blooms from your garden: Mix one part glycerine and two parts water, put into proper size container and submerge flower stems in the solution for about two weeks.

HANDS OFF

Family won't mistake furnace and other infrequently used controls for light switches if you tape a small loop of cardboard over switches not to be touched.

Attic Fan Helps Cool Warm Night

The installation of an attic fan has proved an inexpensive means of cooling a home, and one that is especially effective on those hot, steamy nights of summer that sometimes make sleeping extremely difficult.

Here's the principle on which an attic fan operates. During a hot day, most roofs absorb a great deal of heat. The temperature in the attic can soar as high as 30 degrees. Then, in the evening, when outdoor temperatures may drop as much as 20 degrees, this accumulated heat is radiated downward, through the rest of the house, so that living areas scarcely have a chance to cool off.

An attic fan will dissipate this heat by exhausting the heat, while drawing air through downstairs windows. As the cool air flows through the house, it draws heat out of the walls, ceilings and furnishings. This lowers the temperature throughout the house.

Attic fans range in size from 24 to 48 inches in diameter. Each is rated as to the number of cubic feet of air it can exhaust per minute.

In most areas, it is recommended that fans be large enough to effect one air change per minute, which means that a fan should have a rating equal to the cubic content of the living area of the house. This can be determined by multiplying the length and width of each floor of the home to compute its total floor area. Then multiply this figure by the ceiling height.

The best location for the fan is on the attic floor, near the center of the house. The fan is installed horizontally over a square opening which is cut through the top floor ceiling.

PART OF A ROOF is being tested for fire resistance as the first step in making sure asphalt shingles qualify for a UL label. The panel of roofing pictured is being exposed to a 1300-degree blast of flame to determine its resistance to heat and fire.

Approved Materials Should Be Considered In Contruction

Most families who live in large cities are protected by building codes that bar the use of unsafe building materials. But what about the millions who live beyond city limits, where the biggest shockwaves of the building boom have been felt?

A tragic rash of conflagrations that devastated many cities years ago spurred the adoption of ordinances calling for fire-resistant roofing on all homes in many cities. But equally strict codes have never been adopted for residential construction in many suburban areas that have sprung up in recent years.

To be on the safe side, a family planning to build or buy a home outside city limits, should see to it that the builder or contractor uses approved materials.

For example, they should insist on roofing approved by the Underwriters' Laboratories. The UL label on a bundle of asphalt shingles means that the shingles have met UL specifications for materials and have passed a rigid series of laboratory tests for fire resistance. Only those asphalt shingles that pass these stiff tests receive the UL label.

UL technicians also make frequent unannounced inspections at the asphalt roofing plants, conducting further tests to make sure the shingles continue to be manufactured according to UL specifications and that they will perform with "reasonable satisfaction."

How To Choose Contractor For An Improvement Job

Before entering into any agreement for home improvement work, it is wise to make a number of checks to be sure you are dealing with a reliable contractor.

Here are some "do's and don'ts" to guide you in selecting a contractor, which are suggested by NERSICA (National, Established Repair, Service, Improvement Contractors Association) a national association of home contractors.

Check Points

1) Deal only wth established firms in the community.

2) Visit the office or showroom of the home improvement contractor to be sure that he has a financial stake in your community.

3) Ask about the contractor at your local Chamber of Commerce, Better Business Bureau, etc.

4) Check with your banker about the contractor's reputation, the number of financing jobs the bank has handled for him, and whether there have been any complaints on these jobs.

5) Speak with the sales manager of the supply company whose material the contractor plans to use. This will help you to ascertain if the contractor will deliver the grades of materials stipulated for use in the work. Ask, too, about the contractor's credit and standing.

6) Be wary of the contractor offering to cut his price if you sign immediately.

7) Be wary of the man who says, "If you sign tonight, we'll start tomorrow." Good contractors are usually busy, and complete their work in the order they get it.

8) Be wary of limited customer "recommendations" offered by the contractor. The only reliable check of this type is a list of all his customers with the privilege of checking with any of them you please.

9) Look for adequate insurance coverage. Have the contractor provide proof of public liability insurance coverage, workman's compensation, etc.

10) See detailed drawings. Have the contractor show you sketches of the planned alteration or improvement.

11) Get a completely filled-in contract. Written contract should specify the products to be used, work to be done, full price of the job. Contractor should also give you, in writing, dates of start and completion of work.

"Brush Clean" Item

12) Arrange for the "clean up." Most good contractors will include a "brush clean" item in your contract—if you want it. This guarantees the cleaning up of all debris, usually for a small sum. It is wise to include this in your contract since cleaning up, yourself, can be an arduous task.

Lot-O-Lite Is Now Available

Is there a thief lurking in your area? The easiest, most economical way to outwit him and others of his "ilk" is to have installed a new "Lot-O-Lite."

Whether you live on a farm, operate a factory, want your home or small business protected, or have a need for an automatic dusk to dawn light for school or church, "Lot-O-Lite" is the answer to your problem.

There's no investment and no down payment, and "Lot-O-Lite" can be installed for as low as $3.50 a month. This low price includes free maintenance, lamp replacement and installation, as well as the cost of electricity to operate it. "Lot-O-Lite" provides modern light for driveway, garage, livestock and grain handling areas, machine storage and other outbuildings.

For industrial use, it helps prevent accidents on loading docks and other service areas, provides convenience and protection for night-shift employes and helps ward off theft and vandalism.

For residential — ideal for suburban and rural residences in lighting drives and rear yard areas.

Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company, 215 N. Front-st, can give you all the details about installing "Lot-O-Lite."

BRIGHTEN UP BASEMENTS

WHEN BRIGHTER BASEMENTS are built it's very likely glass blocks willl be used to build them, in part at least. Since glass blocks can be installed in any size opening, they are a versatile way to introduce natural daylight into an area of the house that is most often dependent on electricity for proper illumination. Installed in a former window area or in a horizontal row to bring out the long, low lines of contemporary architecture, glass blocks can be beautiful as well as functional. Their four-inch thickness provides an insulation value equivalent to an eight-inch masonry wall. An additional advantage is the safety factor this type of unit provides by eliminating the easy slip-open type of entrance frequently used for illegal home entry.

Keep Lines Clean And Sharp Painting Walls And Ceilings

One mark of a good paint job is the skill with which the walls and ceilings are "cut in" — the distinct separation between the two areas. This is particularly important when different colors are used. The same is true of the sharpness of the separation in corners where walls of the same or different colors meet.

Here are some hints on how to prevent the ceiling color from getting on the walls, and vice versa, as well as on how to obtain a sharp demarcation between adjacent walls.

It's always best to paint the ceiling first so that splatters will not mar your newly painted walls. If you are using a latex paint, which has the virtue of not showing lapmarks, the first step is to paint a narrow strip all around the perimeter of the ceiling where it meets the walls.

You can keep the paint off the wall by protecting it with a metal strip known as a "painter's time saver" or with pieces of cardboard like the ones which the laundry uses with men's shirts. Hold the strip or cardboard against the well as you brush or roll the paint on the ceiling. Change cardboards frequently to prevent smearing the wall and clean the under surface of the metal strip with a damp rag before moving it to a new spot.

An even easier method is to buy an edging roller which is so constructed that it is impossible to deposit paaint on the walls while the strip is being painted on the ceiling.

Using a roller or brush, paint the entire ceiling, working across the width of the room. You'll find that you save a lot of time if you place a sturdy plank on the steps of two-step ladders and work on it rather than climbing up and down a single ladder. Your paint dealer also has an extension handle that screws into the roller and permits you to paint the average ceiling while standing on the floor.

If you are using an alkyd paint instead of a latex, you go about the job differently. Instead of painting a strip around the perimeter, you brush or roll on a strip only two feed wide next to the wall and then paint across the width of the ceiling. You protect the walls at either end of the room in the same way.

Once the ceiling is completely dry, an hour or less for latex (read the label) and several hours for the alkyds, you are read to paint the walls. The procedure is just the reverse of that already described. Protect the ceiling with the metal strip or cardboard while you apply the paint to the walls. Again, if you are using a latex, you can paint a strip all around the perimeter of the room and then complete the job. If you're applying an alkyd paint, paint an area two feet wide or so, working from the ceiling toward the baseboard.

The same techniques are used in painting two walls that meet at right angles and which are to be of different colors or even when the same wall is being painted in two colors to define different areas. Using the cardboard guard, or edging roller, protect the already painted wall (after making sure it is completely dry) and apply a narrow strip of the second color to the adjacent wall.

U-L Label Needed For FHA Or VA Loan

If you finance a new house with an FHA-insured mortgage, the asphalt roof shingles must bear an Underwriters' Laboratories label. The Federal Housing Administration makes this requirement in its standards, which are intended to result in "better and more economical housing for American families."

The Veterans Administration has a similar requirement for new homes purchased with VA mortgages. Federal specifications exert the same control for buildings built for the U.S. government itself.

Home buyers who buy houses with mortgages in which the government is not involved can be sure they have roofing of the same quality if they themselves check to make sure that UL-labeled roofing material is used.

Color Schemes Easy To Make

There are three kinds of color schemes you can plan for your home: Monochromatic, related and contrasting.

Monochromatic schemes are made up of the various tints and shades of one color —light, medium and dark green, for example. It's always a good idea to use a dash of contrasting color in accessories.

Related schemes are made up of closely-related colors —blue with green, or orange with gold. These color schemes are easy to plan, and you'll see related colors combined in a variety of carpets and decorative fabrics.

Contrasting schemes are made up of directly opposite colors — such as red with Green, or blue with gold. It's advisable to have the walls and the floor in shades of the same color.

Builders Now Seek Better Planning For Use Of Land

America, the spacious, is running out of elbow room.

Land has become a limited resource. Its cost is soaring. Our population is increasing. Wasteful and extravagant uses of land are the main causes of this economic problem which confronts virtually every section of the country.

What can be done about it so as to provide more homes for more families at all income levels?

For years, the National Association of Home Builders has been making a serious effort to promote ways of community development that will eliminate land waste and keep costs within reach of lower and moderate income families, according to Robert C. Ledermann, Director, Community Facilities Department, NAHB.

It is clear that residential zoning in the conventional sense cannot do this job. Regulations that require a half acre or an acre lot for every home are so unrealistic as to be ridiculous.

Some of the new concepts in land development are as exciting as they are promising, says Ledermann.

One is the cluster plan. Homes are grouped or clustered in a manner that makes it possible to build on a smaller lot and yet have greater privacy for each home. The frontage of a lot under this plan may be reduced 20 per cent and one-third in overall dimension. The saving in lot size makes possible an open area for park or playground. This green stretch not only offers recreational opportunities but enhances the appearance of the community.

To show what can be done, the NAHB plotted the development of a theoretical 50-acre subdivision using the conventional concept, and then replanned the same subdivision using the cluster idea.

Under the conventional plan, 102 lots were laid out. But the cluster plan made possible 125 lots. In addition, a total of 16½ acres or just about one-third of the entire tract became, under the cluster plan, common, usable open space. Under the conventional development, there was no such open space.

Intersections — possible points of hazard—were reduced from seven in the conventional layout to four in the cluster plan. Street frontage similarly was cut from 5,840 linear feet to 5,425 linear feet. The total street area was shrunk by almost two acres so that it comprised only 14 per cent of the total tract area instead of 17 per cent under the conventional development.

Length of sewer and water lines also were cut — representing substantial savings.

Not all cluster developments would follow this plan. However, many variations are possible. It is generally recognized now that diversity is desirable and that communities benefit from the blending of different types of housing.

Town houses — or, as they once were called, row houses —can be included in the new pattern of community development. They appeal to those who do not want much grass to mow and who are looking for a minimum of maintenance responsibility.

Town or row houses today, properly grouped, can be an attractive addition to a neighborhood, while still providing economical housing. They offer especially good housing for older or retired persons.

It isn't likely or possible that every subdivision can be converted into this particular type of development. But some means can be found to increase the density of development in certain suburban areas to prevent the spread of "urban sprawl" and make it possible for municipal services such as bus lines, police, fire fighting, street lighting, garbage collection and all the rest, to be economically maintained rather than spread out in an even thinner net.

In years ahead, says Ledermann, we must be able to accommodate more people in a given area, rather than just the same number, as is now so often the case. In many areas this will require revision of local governmental policies which now increase housing costs and decrease efficient use of land.

To a large degree, responsibility rests upon local municipal officials to take a long and understanding look at the future.

IN THE KITCHEN

Modernizing Job Gets High Priority

Napoleon said an army "travels on its stomach"—and most mothers will tell you that the same thing is true of a family. Which makes the cook and her "theater of operations" mighty important, and is why so many families in setting up their schedules of home improvement, give top priority to the modernization or remodeling of the kitchen.

A good approach to the whole subject of "re-doing" the kitchen is to ask yourself this question — if you were buying a new home, what kind of kitchen would you want? Then compare this "dream room" with your present kitchen. The chances are the two rooms are not very much alike, but they could be.

Remodeling and modernization can change the size, shape and efficiency of your kitchen as well as its appearance, at a cost that may well be considerably less than you now think.

One of the first things you should do is to make a list of everything you wish to replace, together with all of the additional appliances or fixtures you want.

Very early in your planning it is a good idea to consult with specialists. There is an abundance of professional help available to you. You can work with an architect or kitchen designer, a kitchen cabinet dealer, a store which may offer you a complete "kitchen package" or the home economists of a utility company. Do not hesitate to ask for bids or estimates, especially if the job will involve major structural changes.

Depending on financial or other factors, you can do an overall job of remodeling or modernization at one time, or can make your desired changes a step at a time, major appliance center by appliance center, until the job is finished.

If you take the latter course, be sure to plan ahead for the future installations of wiring and plumbing that will be required to complete the picture of your "dream kitchen."

The newest concept in kitchen planning is to analyze the kitchen according to work there in number, (1) basically threein number, (1) the stove or cooking area, (2) the sink or cleaning area, and (3) the storage area.

A dining and food planning area is often included. To plan a kitchen that is easiest to use, the first step is to decide exactly what is needed in each area. The best coordination of the work areas with one another will follow naturally.

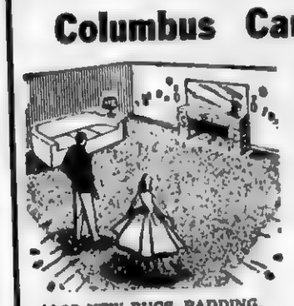
Worth considering in planning a program of kitchen modernization are these basic characteristics of the up-to-date kitchen.

(1) Step-saving. Kitchens are planned for time-and-step-saving convenience. Appliances, counter space and storage units are grouped so that the house-wife can quickly turn from one to another, enabling her to prepare a meal on a "turn-around" basis.

(2) Easy-to-maintain surfaces. Plastic laminates are used extensively for cabinets, wall surfaces and countertops. The housewife appreciates the advantages of a surface that can be kept clean with a damp cloth.

(3) Lighting where it should be. No homemaker likes to work in her own shadow. For this reason the trend is to get away from center lights and instead have them under the cabinets. The ideal arrangement is to have a light for every countertop.

With respect to major kitchen appliances, manufacturers are offering a wider variety of units than ever before, and designing compact units that can be used for many chores, rather than several different chores. Whether these units are free-standing or built-in, they have a built-in look for easy coordination.



Compact units mean less steps and more room for storage. The variety or design means that it is possible to find just the right major appliance for the needs of the family.

A good example of the trend to multi-functional units is the new type of range that does a number of cooking tasks, from baking and broiling to grilling to range-top cooking.

Cooling Unit Can Utilize Heating Line

Cooling engineers have developed a variety of systems so that air conditioning can be installed in any type of house, regardless of the type of heating system used.

A combination hydronic system uses heating-cooling convector units installed in each room of the house. The central power source — a boiler and water chiller — is usually located in the basement.

Hot water and chilled water are circulated to the units through a common tubing system. Each convector unit has a fan, filter, cooling-heating coil and a thermostat for room by room temperature control.

Same Ducts Used

Combination warm air systems use a furnace and cooling unit, usually located in the basement, as the power source. Warm air and cool air are circulated through the same duct system. It's important, however, that ducts be accurately sized. Cooling requires larger ducts than those used for heating alone. If ducts are sized for heating only, the cooling system may not operate efficiently.

Combination heating-cooling systems are not always more economical to install than separate heating and cooling systems. In certain types of construction, for instance, a separate hot water baseboard heating system with a separate cooling system may be more economical than a combination heating-cooling duct system.

To combine cooling equipment with a heating system at a later time, special provisions for air conditioning must be made when the house is constructed. If these provisions are not made, then a separate cooling system may be required.

Some cooling equipment is especially designed for installation independently of the heating system. This equipment also can be installed during construction or later.

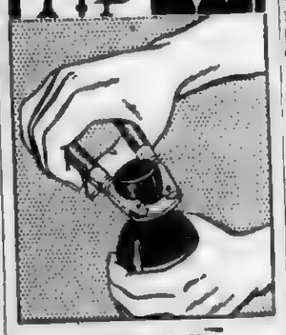
For instance, a separate chilled air unit can be used with any type heating system since it functions independently of the heating system. This central cooling system is suitable for modernization in small or medium size homes.

Unit Placement

The cooling unit can be installed in unused space in the attic, garage, hall or closet. Cooling registers, or outlets, are usually located near the ceiling of each room.

A separate chilled water unit can also be used with any type of heating system. It also functions independently of the heating system, and is easily installed in homes located in regions not requiring heating. This unit is suitable for central cooling for new construction or modernization, but especially for multi-story or rambling designs in which zone control is necessary for best results.

This system contains a single cooling unit, remotely located in the basement, which sends chilled water through small tubing to several heavy-duty convectors which have individual temperature controls.



LARGER ROOM

You can make your room look larger by painting the baseboard the same color as your wall-to-wall carpeting. To protect the carpet use a curved metal shield known as a "painter's time saver" or use the cardboards which laundries insert in men's shirts. You'll find it easier to apply the paint with a roller than with a brush, and there are rollers with guards which will prevent paint from getting on the rug. Incidentally, protect the wall above the baseboard the same way.

CLEAN SOLDERING IRON

Keep a piece of emery cloth or sandpaper tacked in one corner of work bench, and wipe hot soldering iron across the abrasive occasionally while working. This keeps hot surfaces free of scale.

FIX-IT TIP

Nutcraker's Use

Grasping the bottle cap tightly with a nutcracker and giving a twist is a good way to open tightly closed bottles.

Let Wallpaper Key Your Color Scheme

Whether you are decorating one room or the whole house, almost the first thing to consider is the color scheme. With today's wide range of new colors and unusual combinations, the choice is often difficult. How to choose colors that combine well and are neither too strident nor too nondescript?

Choosing a color scheme can be looked at from two angles: first, if you are starting completely from scratch with all new furnishings, and second, if you do have existing furnishings to consider, such as draperies, carpet or upholstery.

If you are starting from scratch, you will find that wallpaper can be a good starting point.

Today's wallpapers have a range of color and design to please all tastes: when you have selected your pattern, choose a major color in the pattern for your main colos. Use this on the floor, which is the next largest area to your walls.

Then choose a second color from the pattern for your secondary color areas, such as large upholstery pieces in the living room, the bedspread in the bedroom, and the draperies.

Finally choose a third color from your pattern for accent, to be used in small effects such as lamps, cushions and accessories. Remember these patterns are created by trained artists who know how to use color: you are using their knowledge to create your own color scheme.

Living Room Decor

For example, you might choose for your living room a traditional medallion pattern that uses burnt orange, black and beige against a warm tan background. By using warm tan for the carpet, black and beige for the large upholstered pieces and draperies, and accent touches of burnt orange, a harmonious color scheme is achieved. If a more vibrant look is desired, then the burnt orange could be used for the carpet, with the other colors used for major furnishings and accents.

If you already have furnishings that must be used, wallpaper can help you set your scheme around the existing colors.

Supposing you have a leaf green rug in your bedroom. Choose a wallpaper design that includes this color, and you may be sure that the other colors in the design will form a good color scheme that will tie in with your rug. Your choice here might be a pretty floral design in sky blue, lavender and leaf green against a white background.

Color Coordination

By using the blue for the bedspread and curtains, with accents of lavender in lamps, small chairs and accessories, your bedroom will have a new and attractive color scheme, even though your green rug is still with you.

If you have more than one color to consider in your present furnishings, you can tie these together by choosing a wallpaper that incorporates both these colors. If they are unusually strong and vivid colors, however, you may prefer a neutral background.

Cathedral Ceiling Becomes Popular

The striking beauty of a ceiling with exposed wood beams is now within reach of everyone planning a home, because of a 3-in-1 product called "insulating roof deck."

In all areas of the nation, people are asking their architects, builders and lumber dealers to plan their new homes with exposed beams in the ceiling because:

(1) Exposed beam or cathedral ceilings are highly representative of today's contemporary architecture.

(2) Exposed beam ceilings are among the most beautiful devised. They have been a part of the chalets of Switzerland and the cathedrals of Europe for centuries. The natural or stained beauty of the framing members stand out in rugged contrast to the ceiling itself.

(3) A ceiling with exposed beams seems to add spaciousness and grace to any house.

(4) The system of exposed beams enables the use of windows in the gables, which makes a bright and cheerful house—even on rainy days.

(5) With insulating roof deck, an exposed beam ceiling is actually less costly than most conventional roof systems.

Insulating roof deck — which makes a cathedral ceiling an economical possibility —comes in individual 2x8 ft. panels, either 1½, 2 or 3 inches in thickness. These units give your exposed beam roof (1) structural strength, (2) more than adequate insulation and weather tightness and (3) the factory-finished inside ceiling.

You can have a perforated or fissured sound absorbing ceiling if you desire. And, the ceiling can be painted with a non-bridging paint without damaging acoustical properties if you wish to redecorate at some later date.

A roof made with insulating roof deck units is less costly than conventional roofs partially because the builder can put it up faster. The large, strong panels interlock. Once the insulating roof deck units are in place, your inside ceiling is complete — without plaster or paint. To finish the roof on the outside, the builder may use asphalt shingles, a built-up roof, or composition roll roofing.

In colder climates, insulating roof deck units must be the type with a built-in vapor barrier. You can get insulating roof deck units from your building materials dealer who is supplied by one or more of America's largest insulation board manufacturers.

Large 'Woof' Featured In Modern Tepee Design Home

California has fathered a host of gracious, easy-living ideas. One of them is the A-frame house.

Easy to build, low in cost, and practical to live in, the A-frame gained popularity on the West Coast as a vacation lodge. Because it's perfect for beach house, ski lodge, or lakeside living, it is now catching on all over the country.

The A-frame, long favored by woodsmen, is ideal for areas that suffer severe winters. Its high-pitched roof-wall sheds rain and snow easily and rebuffs high winds.

The company which makes precut A-frame houses, uses asphalt shingle roofing because of its durability, wind and fire resistance, and wide choice of colors. They select wind-resistant asphalt shingles with a factory-applied adhesive. The self-sealing shingles are applied in the usual way, but the adhesive bonds each layer of shingles to the next.

A BROAD EXPANSE of asphalt shingles on this A-frame home adds space to the interior and is designed to resist high winds, rain and snow.

Since the largest exterior area of an A-frame house is the "woof," or wall-roof, its appearance is important. If the house is at the beach or in any area exposed to beating sun, white or pastel asphalt shingles are best because they reflect much of the sun's heat. In shadier areas, any of the many asphalt shingle colors can be chosen to suit individual tastes.

One advantage of the A-frame is that there are no pillars, posts, or load-bearing walls. This simplifies construction, lowers costs, and adds to living space. Non-supporting partitions can be moveable, making it easy to arrange floor space to suit individual needs.

A 24x30-foot A-frame can be arranged to include two bedrooms in the second floor and a large living room, dining area, kitchen and bath on the first floor. If more space is needed, two or more of the structures can be placed end to end, or, with passages added, side by side.

According to the builder, their homes are simple enough to be built by the average do-it-yourselfer. Construction is simplified and costs kept down by using stock window units of Ponderosa pine.

New Windows Aid Old Homes

An older house takes on a remarkably new aspect, inside and out, when new windows are installed.

The exterior looks more welcoming and up-to-date, and the interior gains a sense of space, light and air. If the new windows are made of wood, they add a feeling of warmth and become a contributing part of the decor.

If you are remodeling an older house, replacing old windows with new is an effective way to add beauty and to increase winter comfort.

Today's wood windows have weather tightness built into them at the factory, and, since wood is an efficient natural insulating material, they help keep a house warmer in winter. Ponderosa pine, from which most stock wood windows are made, transmits 1800 times less heat or cold than metal.

Because of this they are not susceptible to the formation of condensation which can damage draperies and walls. In addition, they lend themselves to a variety of decorative treatments since they can be painted, waxed or stained, and with wood frames it's easier to install curtains and draperies.

Stock wood windows are chemically treated in the factory to last indefinitely. Factory-installed weather stripping and locking devices make windows tight when closed, yet wood window units are engineered to operate easily and quietly.

Addition of Desk Will Aid Kitchen Efficiency

A work-corner in the kitchen for correspondence, filing and all sorts of paper-homework is a tremendous contribution to housewifely efficiency.

If desk construction is in your new kitchen plans, arrange for a panel of pegboard backing. This will serve as a bulletin board, to post grocery lists and specials. A rack for magazines and a cookbook shelf will also be useful. A drawer deep enough to hold a standard office file will quickly organize such household necessities as tax records; two shallower drawers will accommodate paper supplies.

Acoustical Ceiling Can Add Beauty, Lower Noise Level Of Any Room

Modern American homes are designed for a feeling of spaciousness and grace. Large expanses of glass, long walls and high ceilings are the eye-appealing result.

Unfortunately, many of these hard, flat surfaces reflect sound and seem to intensify it, unless it is properly controlled.

You can eliminate the sound amplifying qualities of large windows and walls without much trouble. Furniture, drapes and tapestries take care of walls and windows. A carpet will quiet the floor. Ceilings are the "last frontiers."

The most effective way to keep sound from reflecting off your ceilings back into the room is to install an insulation board acoustical tile ceiling. The job is so easy that many homeowners make it a family project.

There are three simple ways to install insulation board acoustical ceiling tile:

1. Adhesive method: The ceiling should be level and unbroken. Determine the center of the ceiling by snapping a chalk line in both directions. Apply the first tile in the center at the junction of the chalk lines. Use insulation board tile with flat (or "butt") edges for adhesive installations.

Apply adhesive daubs about the size of a walnut to each corner of the 12x12x½-inch tiles. Press the first tile up to ceiling to line with the chalk lines. Apply the remaining tile to line up with the first one.

If borders require less than full-sized tiles, you can easily cut the tile with a hand saw or fiberboard knife. You may apply a wood molding at the junction of the wall and ceiling to trim out the room. If the tile is carefully cut flush to the mall, moudling is not needed.

Good Walls Defy Kiddie Scuffing

Children's rooms need not be drab or lack decorative appeal just because they are subjected to a lot of wear and tear over the active years of growing up.

By selecting suitable materials for wall and ceiling surfaces, the home builder can combine durability with good looks that will last.

With hardboard paneling, for example, there is a minimum of maintenance, both in cleaning and in refurbishing. Scuff-proof hardboard is tough enough to take the rough treatment that goes with hard play, and is simple to keep clean with just a wipe of a damp sponge or cloth.

Storage is always a problem for any bedroom. In a child's room, built-ins are a natural solution. One idea is to build a long counter the full length of one wall. Topped with plastic-coated hardboard, it makes a durable desk and hobby work table with wash-and-wear ease of care. Portions of the space beneath can be enclosed for toy and equipment storage with sliding doors of hardboard, hard to dent or scuff.

Building in a blackboard in a child's room provides a wonderful source of amusement and creative exercise for a youngster. And it's practical, too, with new blackboard made of lightweight, warp-free hardboard.

Trees Are Valuable Assets To Be Treated With Care

In the real estate business, they have a ready one-word answer for any question of respective lot values: location.

Then when two lots are in the same general area (but one is priced higher), the justification is just as brief and to the point: trees.

Trees are valuable assets. They should be treated as such. If they're not, the home owner is shortchanging himself.

A complete tree care program starts with pruning and includes feeding and pest control as well.

Pruning controls trees — their size and shape, their flowering, and the amount of fruit they yield. But more important, pruning preserves trees from injury and prevents defective growth.

A good rule of thumb is: prune nonflowering varieties in the spring, and flowering varieties after their blooming period. Never — repeat never — prune the center shoot of an evergreen tree. This will only cause side shoots to extend upward and result in malformation of the trunk.

The tool and equipment list —like the answers of the real estate man —is short and simple: a sharp saw, a pair of pruning shears, a can of tree wound dressing and a stepladder. (If anything higher than a stepladder is needed, chances are a tree surgeon is too).

Cut off the low or unwanted branches. Those that interfere with mowing or normal traffic. Remove dead or diseased wood and cut out branches that hamper the growth of other branches. Cut off all diseased branches at least six to eight inches below the infected area. Where trunks or main branches are damaged or decayed in spots, cut out the damaged area. Then apply tree wound dressing to all cut areas immediately to promote healing.

Where two leads appear, cut one off. This is not a problem when the tree is small, but such a structure forms a weak joint when both limbs reach mature size. There is a right and a wrong way to do this, too. The latter usually results in the weight of the falling limb stripping a foot or so of bark from the main branch or trunk when it falls.

First, notch the underside of the limb about three or four inches from where it grows out of the tree. Then make a second cut from the top — an inch or two farther out. Saw until the limb falls off. Then cut the stub flush with the main branch or the trunk, and spray. Peeling of bark allows moisture to enter and fungus diseases to decay the wood. Certain borers are also attracted by the odor of newly pruned trees. The aerosol tree wound dressing forms a protective seal which prevents the flow of sap and the entry of foreign matter while natural healing is taking place.

Your deciduous trees will benefit from a spring feeding with a balanced fertilizer such as turf food, while evergreens respond well to azalea and evergreen food. Do not, however, feed evergreens in the fall in regions with cold winters. The new growth encouraged will only be killed by the frost.

Insect damage to trees can be stopped by spraying insecticide at seven-to-10-day intervals. The task is made much easier with the use of a garden sprayer or a garden hose.

Rainbow Colors Made For Roofs

"White is easily the most popular color for roofing today," according to Howard Ketcham, noted color authority. "However," Ketcham said, "a recent survey of manufacturers of asphalt shingles indicates that other colors are on their way up.

Ketcham, who was the color engineer for the first colored telephones, attributes the national preference for white roofs to three basic reasons:

1. Since white is a neutral color compatible with all others, its use on the roof permits the widest selection of house body and trim colors.

2. White provides maximum heat reflection, which helps keep a house cooler in summer and lowers air conditioning costs.

3. White is "safe." Many home owners are afraid to trust their own judgment when it comes to colors. They hesitate to use colors that might leave them open to ridicule.

"I feel the increasing use of colorful asphalt shingles is a good sign. It means that more and more families are becoming color conscious and are learning to take advantage of the qualities that only color can provide." Ketcham said.

"White obviously has its place, but according to the survey, an increasing number of families have found that a complementary shade of green may be just right for a house surrounded by nature's greens and browns. And in many southern states light shades of tan are being chosen by families who want both variety and a high degree of heat reflectivity.

"Not too many years ago," Ketcham explained, "Asphalt roofing was available in only a limited number of colors—red, black and the grey-green of natural slate. Today, however the development of synthetic colored granules has led to the production of a wide range of roofing colors, including pastels and blends.

"Blended color asphalt shingles are becoming more popular because they harmonize with a wider variety of exterior trim and sidewall colors than do many solid shades," Ketcham explained.

Some blends consist of several shades of one color, while others are a mixture of two or more different colors. Another type of blend is achieved by using colors that differ from shingle to shingle.

Making a door for a room? Or buying a ready-made one? You'll have less trouble with it over the years if you add a third hinge midway between the conventional top and bottom hinges.

PREVENTS ACCIDENT

Caution: always place a pail or other container under the sink cleanout plug when you remove it. Even though the faucet has been turned off, there's always a certain amount of water still in the pipe.

FEATURED AT HOME SHOW

FEATURED HOME of the American Institute of Architects at the 1963 Cleveland Home and Flower Show was this beautifully landscaped one-floor house. Designed by a Berea, O., firm, the floor plan shows the compact grouping of three bedrooms, a dressing room, two baths and a utility room in one wing, separated from the living area by a foyer. The exterior shows the development of the garden areas to become an integral part of the living areas.

Here's How Special Ceiling Traps Sound

Insulation board acoustical ceiling tile is made of natural wood or cane fibers that are matted into large sheets during manufacture. Specific products, including acoustical insulation board ceiling tile are cut from the large sheets, which are either ⅛-inch or ¾-inch thick.

Acoustical ceiling tile can absorb up to 70 per cent of the excess noise that strikes it. Drilled, cut or molded openings in the surface of the tile permit sound to enter. When sound waves hit the fibers inside these acoustical openings, friction slows down and absorbs its further movement, preventing it from bouncing back into the room.

TIP TO STOP SPLATTER

Protect door knobs and hardware from splattering paint by coating them liberally with damp soap. Paint after soap dries. A wet cloth removes paint spatters along with the soap.

Ohio Bell Offers Convenience, Beauty In Home Communications

Does needless shouting disturb the quiet of your home? Do wasted steps try the patience of your family?

Probably one of the most neglected elements in the home today is improvement of home communications—a relatively easy way to make your life simpler, safer and more convenient.

Families, especially those moving into new or larger homes, could benefit in greater comfort and convenience by reviewing their telephone needs in terms of newly available services.

Local Ohio Bell business offices are ready, willing and able to inform homeowners about the number and variety of telephone servants which are at their beck and call.

Perhaps the most revolutionary new service available today is Home Interphone. This new system permits a wide range of intercom services, from answering the front door to minding the baby, plus the handling of outside calls from every phone in the house.

It is particularly useful in emergencies, such as reporting a fire or accident, or calling for help within the home.

For those who would like a telephone chime instead of a ring, Bell Chime is available. At the flick of a switch, Bell Chime provides a choice of three sounds — a loud bell, a low bell or a melodic chime. Another useful device is the outside bell which lets you know the phone is ringing when you're outdoors.

Today's homemaker also has her choice of new, streamlined telephone instruments. With the one-phone family rapidly becoming a thing of the past, families are striving to integrate the style of extension phones to the decor and needs of special locations. This is especially true in new homes.

The compact Princess phone, with built-in night light on the dial, is most often found in the bedroom, while the handy wall model is especially appropriate for kitchen or basement use.

Another convenience device becoming increasingly popular in the multi-phone household is the exclusion key which automatically cuts out other extensions, insuring complete privacy for important calls. When the receiver is put back, the key is pushed down and the other extensions are returned to the line.

Several products originally designed for limited or business purposes are finding useful applications in the home. A boon to the hard-of-hearing, the new volume control handset has also been gratefully received by mothers with overly vocal young children.

Ohio Bell advises those people who are planning to build new homes to look into the advantages of concealing wiring and adding extra outlets for future phone needs. Advance wiring of a house, like concealed wiring, should be considered in the early planning stages. The result is a neater, more finished final appearance.

The popularity of color phones is further testimony to the growing role the telephone is playing in decorating plans. At the request of color-conscious home owners, the Bell System has installed more than 15 million color phones since their introduction several years ago.

Research has revealed a changing location pattern for telephones in recent years. The trend is to kitchen, bedroom and basement and away from traditional living room or dining room locations. Among the most frequent users of the upstairs phone is the teenage member of the family. Some parents present teenagers with a private phone and listing as a special incentive award for help around the house, good grades or other desirable performances.

Since today's telephone service can be fitted exactly to almost any way of life, families can win extra comfort and convenience dividends by looking over their current phone needs.

DAPPER DOORWAY

ENTRANCES SET THE MOOD for the entire home, and this dapper doorway gives the feeling of an interior that is light, bright and full of life. Glass blocks, framing a wood-panel door, make a king-size entrance out of an ordinary doorway. Homeowners can choose transparent or translucent glass blocks for varied degrees of privacy. Transparent glass blocks admit light as well as vision. Translucent glass blocks bring in plenty of light but eliminate all vision for maximum privacy.

18th Century Design Interpretations New Aid In Revival Of Traditional Furniture

The trend toward Traditional furnishings is being perpetrated by the elegint new interpretations of the 18th century English designs. It is natural that designers should seek inspiration in that era, says the Home Furnishings Industry Committee. Many feel some of the world's finest cabinet-makers were producing between 1680 and 1820.

Some authorities divide the periods of decorative arts according to the popular wood of the time, such as the Age of Walnut (1680-1710), Age of Mahogany (1710-1770) and the Age of Satinwood (1770-1820).

Other writers in the field prefer to designate these periods by rulers: Queen Anne, Georgian (Early, Middle and Late), Regency and Victorian.

Our designers are looking for style motifs from the Early Georgian through the Regency periods (the Ages of Mahogany and Satinwood).

There is no clear-cut demarcation between Queen Anne and the Early Georgian periods, although the tendency graduated toward somewhat heavier structures and more subtle curves. The beautiful mahogany furniture made by Chippendale and his followers has stimulated many to call this the golden age of furniture design

The "reign" of Hepplewhite was next. His beautiful executions in Satinwood exerted profound influence on the furniture of that time.

Sheraton ranks with Chippendale and Hepplewhite in designers' hall of fame. Many of his creations are characterized by straight lines and classical elements as well as decorative motifs from France.

Everything went classical in the last portion of the 18th century. Trend setters for the time were James and Robert Adam whose furniture was classically simple, restrained and delicately crafted.

Modern manufacturers are adapting these gracious designs from a civilized age for use in our homes. Their quality, flexibility, comfort and practicality are pure 20th century.

INSPIRED BY MASTERS, the "Piedmont" collection of furniture embodies the treasured motifs of England's golden era of design and the honest comfort and simplicity of the 20th century. Mahogany, aristocrat of the hardwoods, is exploited for all of its many variations in grain and pattern. Rounding out these 75 pieces of distinctive furniture is a splendid selection of upholstered armchairs and sofas.

Patio Becomes Family Haven For Relaxing And Entertaining

One of the easiest and most economical ways to add both comfort and value to your home is to build a patio.

A patio can be as simple or as complex as you want to make it. By using wood, it's possible for a weekend carpenter, using simple tools, to do the whole job himself.

Flagstones are frequently used for patio floors, but, in some cases, wood will harmonize better with the color and styling of your home. The deck should simply be laid on a framework of naturally durable or preservatively treated 2x4s partly imbedded in the ground. It's a good idea to put a layer of sand between the ground and the underside of the decking.

Before embarking on the construction job, though, plan the patio carefully. Decide first of all what it will be used for — dining, sun-bathing, reading? Patios also serve, of course, as children's play areas and make ideal settings for summer parties.

Some patios have built-in storage areas which are used for such things as gardening tools and outdoor furniture.

If the family is going to be using the patio at night, you'll probably want to install electric outlets and screening. Sunbathing calls for a patio with a western or eastern exposure. If very young children will be playing in the area, you may want to make it easily visible from the kitchen. Another point to remember in picking a location is that existing walls and fences can provide part or all of the enclosure needed.

If an additional enclosure is desired, it can be built in a number of ways, since one of the big advantages of wood is that it provides almost infinite design variety. You can cut it to satisfy any set of dimensions, shape it or assemble it into a variety of attractive patterns and obtain additional variety through the use of the natural grain by applying paint or stain.

Wood is also easily available and economical. A lumber yard or building materials dealer is probably only a short distance away from where you are right now.

Some very attractive patio enclosures can be built by forming an open lattice of horizontal and vertical 2x4s spaced six to 12 inches apart. Another idea is to build a framework of 2x4s and then panel it on one or both sides.

A patio or sundeck might be free-standing, attached to the house or detached but connected via a series of protected decking walk-ways. Whichever it is to be, consideration must be given to the existing landscaping, property lines and the direction of the sun's rays and the prevailing winds.

And when selecting the actual design of the structure, these factors must also be taken into account. That is, the functional must be considered as well as the aesthetic.

Perhaps for example, the windward side of the patio, deck or pool ought to be sheltered. Such protection can be achieved by incorporating a distinctive solid lumber screen along the windward side. By using a lattice-work design, vertical louvers or a basket weave design for the screen, protection can be achieved without cutting off the supply of light and air completely.

Whether or not the decking is to be placed directly on the ground or raised is another question that depends largely upon the general lay of the land. It may be constructed either way, but if the yard slopes appreciably, it would be better to raise the decking on posts. Solid lumber is ideally suited to this type of construction.

LOWER WITH COLOR

There are two ways to "lower" an overly high ceiling visually with paint color. The first is to paint the ceiling a darker color than walls. The second is to extend the ceiling color down the side walls in a band of whatever width looks attractive.

"Hot Wires" Bill Needs Short Circuit

A total of 506 cities and villages of Ohio as represented by the Ohio Municipal League are seeking a short circuit in the "Hot Wires" bill passed by the Ohio Senate and soon to be acted upon by the Ohio House of Representatives.

The bill as pushed through the senate would permit a public utility to go directly to the Public Utilities Commission here for judgment in disputes between utilities and municipalities. Right of appeal would be only to the Ohio Supreme Court.

The three-member Public Utilities Commission is appointed by the governor and serves as a regulatory, not a judicial body.

Passage of the bill would take from councils, zoning boards and county courts the right to determine where power lines, poles, gas mains, etc. should go.

We have the feeling that the House of Representatives is made up of persons who believe in home rule and if is hoped they will "short circuit" this bill quickly.

There's A Primary Election Next Tuesday

You may not know it.

There is a primary election next Tuesday.

In a year when we should be more concerned about local government than ever before, we find a lack of candidates and very little interest in the primary.

It is a disappointing situation. It points to the need of independent citizens getting behind some kind of a movement to stir up interest in politics.

There will be lots of complaining about the outcome. Many will say that in the final races this fall they must take the lesser of two evils.

We are able through independent citizen groups to get out a vote for bond issues and we can always find a wealth of capable talent available to serve on recommending groups. It is time for some group to step up with a similar plan to encourage better qualified men and women to take an active part in politics.

In the meantime, take time to go to the polls next Tuesday and send the best candidates into the election this fall.

RETURNS FOR LAST TEACHING STINT

CLARA HAYES, a teacher at Stewart Avenue School in the South Side for 20 years, returned to the room she formerly occupied to teach her last day of school. Miss Hayes, 1004 S. High-st, was retired in 1946 but has been active on the Columbus Schools' substitute list. Last Thursday was her final day of teaching and she wanted to spend it in her Stewart Avenue room. "Many of the students remembered me," she smiled. That's understandable since she taught many of their parents and even grandparents.

German Village Growth Now Up To Commission

By JOHN AUBLE, JR.

The German Village Society moved a brick closer to its Williamsburg concept Monday night.

Through an ordinance passed by Columbus City Council, the Village stands a greater chance of living up to its reputation as an "historical area."

Under this designation, and due to council's legislation on controls and boundaries, the Village will practically operate as a separate municipality.

Village residents will now be answerable to the German Village Commission, which is delegated to review all building plans for the area before a building permit can be issued.

The commission can approve or reject plans on the basis of whether they conform to the architectural standards set for the restoration.

Naturally, in case of rejection, the applicant will have the right to appeal.

Columbus Mayor Ralston Westlake explained that the commission won't have the final say on building or remodeling matters.

"They (the commission) will first receive applications for outside remodeling jobs and then make recommendations through the normal building department channels," the mayor stated.

Zoning, however, is another matter, with many of the city's present zoning laws practically "immuned" in the village area.

"If there is some unusual business that wants to open in the area, such as a candle-making shop or gift shop," commented Frank Fetch, the Village's president, "it might be normally prohibited from a city zoning standpoint.

"But," he continued "the commission, after reviewing the situation, can work things out to permit its opening here."

It might be pointed out that this commission is a branch of the city appointed by the mayor to serve in a liaison nature between the two groups.

Fred Kaiser is chairman, with members including Arnall T. Connell, Harold C. Gockenbach, Jr., William A. Scheurer and Helen Wagner.

"It would have been easy for this area to become undesirable without the recent

A special offer by Hartley Newspapers now makes it possible for you and your neighbors to display a quality-constructed American flag at very low cost.

This means that for a total of $5, cash, check or money order, you will receive 52 issues of your Hartley Newspaper and a big colorfast, cotton, 50-star American flag. The flag is complete. . . It has a six-foot hardwood staff, halyard, metal window socket, top decoration and flag etiquette pamphlet.

Many neighborhoods have competed, in a joint effort, to make sure every house in the block has an American flag on display for patriotic days. Coming up soon, these dates include: Armed Forces Day, May 18; Memorial Day, May 30; Flag Day, June 14, and Independence Day, July 4.

Check the advertisements in today's issue of this paper. Fill in the coupon, enclose your check or cash, or take the coupon to the Hartley Newspaper office, 2465 W. Broad-st.

Charter Additions Big Issues In Primary Election Tuesday

Two Columbus City Charter amendments will be submitted for voter action at the Tuesday, May 7 primary election. One would equalize assessment payments for sidewalk, sewer and water main improvements, while the other would pave the way for expansion of the municipal light plant.

The amendment relative to improvements was explained by Carl Kaiser, senior civil engineer of the sewage and drainage division.

Kaiser said that the city is presently required to pay two per cent of all such project costs plus the full cost of improvements at intersections. At present, he said, division of the remaining costs places a heavier burden against petition signers than those who share equal benefits but do not sign petitions.

Under the proposed charter

'Operation Checkmates' Opens May 6

Monday, May 6, is opening day for "Operation Checkmates," the Tuberculosis Society's combined TB test and chest X-ray program for South Siders.

More than 6500 people living between Morrill-av and the New York Central Railroad will have the opportunity to double-check themselves and their families for contagious TB. "Checkmates" is a major part of the Society's aim to wipe out tuberculosis infection in high TB incidence areas.

The TB Society twin cruisers will visit neighborhoods throughout the area from May 6 through June 7, offering free TB tests to everyone over 1 month old and free chest X-rays to everyone 15 years or older.

When the program opens Monday, it will be backed and supported by numerous civic and educational organizations from the South Side area.

South Siders will be entertained during opening week of "Checkmates" by radio and TV celebrities and a parade featuring colorful floats constructed and displayed by area students.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of opening week will feature popular local television personalities.

Martha Myers, women's newscaster, will be at the twin cruisers Tuesday. Earl Flora and Red Trabue, well-known "outdoorsmen" will visit the location on Wednesday. Thursday, children and parents will have a chance to see TV's "Franz the Toymaker."

Elegant And Easy Dessert

Fromage means cheese in French, and this dessert comes from Norway, where fromage describes a rich whipped, molded dessert somewhat like a Bavarian cream.

Lemon Fromage with Fruit is an elegant dessert. It looks imposing but is simple to make and can be prepared ahead of time.

LEMON FROMAGE WITH FRUIT

3 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
4 eggs, separated
2 cups milk
2 teaspoons grated lemon juice
½ cup lemon juice
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
Strawberries
Mint

Mix together gelatin, ½ cup sugar and salt. Beat egg yolks; add milk, gradually stir into gelatin mixture. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly until slightly thickened.

Chill until mixture begins to set slightly. Add lemon rind and juice.

Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry. Beat in remaining ½ cup sugar a tablespoon at a time. Fold egg whites and whipped cream into chilled mixture and pour into two-quart mold. Chill until firm.

Unmold and garnish with strawberries and mint. Makes eight servings.

Area Kiwanians In On 'Biggest' Interclub Ever Seen Locally

"The biggest operation of its kind" takes to the road at 6 a.m. Tuesday, May 7, bound for Windsor, Ont.

The "operation" is a mass interclub meeting by area Kiwanians with the Windsor Kiwanis Club.

At least 75 local Kiwanis members, in two buses, are expected to make the day-long trip that also includes an interclub with the Marion Town and Country Kiwanis Club on the return journey.

Sponsor of the trip is the West Franklin club, and organizer Ford Adam, secretary of the group, says it is the biggest interclub in local Kiwanis history.

The interclub is being made in conjunction with Canada—U.S. Goodwill Week, Adam said, and was intended originally as only a local club venture.

Other area clubs heard about the plans, though, and asked if they could go along.

The tally of representatives, as of last Tuesday was as follows: Ashville, four; Downtown, four; Grove City, five; London, two; Southern, four; Washington CH, seven; West Franklin, 22; West Jefferson, five; West Side seven; Northern, four; Eastern, four and Kenneth Weeks, District secretary.

The group will arrive about 11:30 a.m., have lunch with their hosts at the Prince Edward Hotel in downtown Windsor, then leave immediately after lunch for Marion.

Adam said the buses are scheduled to arrive in Marion about 5:30 p.m. for the 6 o'clock dinner meeting with Town and Country.

About 8 p.m., the local men will leave Marion and arrive at the Great Western Shopping Center around 9:30.

Adam estimated the cost per individual at about $10.

West Franklin is taking along a gavel for their Windsor counterparts, made from the famous Logan Elm, which bears U.S. — Canadian significance in history.

Former Semi-Pro Baseballer Offers Religious Guidance In Unique Way

By JOHN AUBLE JR.

Jimmy Rea is not a preacher. He's had no formal theological training. But he is a humanitarian and that's where the similiarity lies.

Instead of a pulpit, 50-year-old Rea (who resides at 527 Wrexham-av) uses a drive-in theater. Instead of pontificating through word of mouth, he uses the magic world of celluloid film.

Rea is the operator of the Christian Film Drive-In, located a block south of 1900 W. Mound-st. He'll open this season Saturday, May 4.

For 14 years this dynamic, former semi-pro baseball player has provided Central Ohio residents with religious films. It's one of the nation's most unique means of spreading the gospel.

He chatted about this "uniqueness" in the cluttered second-story room of his obviously successful tape recording sales shop at 479 W. Rich-st.

"Many persons throughout the country have attempted to set up this type of operation," he related. "Many have come to me to aid them in establishing one.

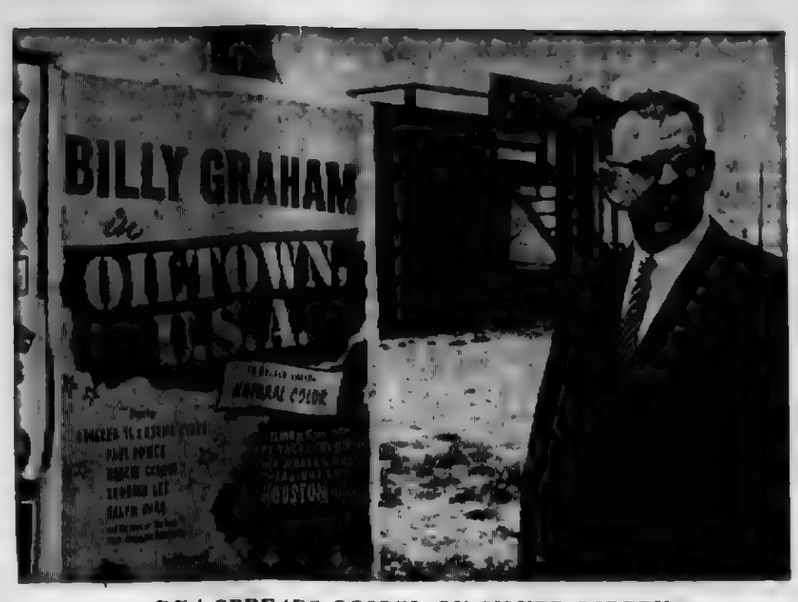
"As far as I know, none have been successful. There are two basic reasons for this: (1) They eventually turn it into a denominational deal — showing only films concerning one type of doctrine, or (2) they (the operators) preach too much over the sound system when, actually, people have come to see films."

Rea is careful of these two items in his West Side theater — a theater which, incidently, is admission free to everybody.

"People find it hard to believe that I'm not doing this to make money," Rea said with outward concern. "And even when I do convince them I'm not, they call me a crackpot."

But this personable man doesn't discourage easily. If he did, he'd probably still be in his home-town of Carmel, O. (near Hillsboro) brooding over a handicapping speech impediment.

"When I think about it though," he theorized, "I can't help but wonder if this impediment wasn't really a blessing.



"My grandfather always wanted me to be a preacher. He was a very religious man. Naturally, I couldn't speak well enough for that. I was good at electronics, however, and could show a motion picture without any trouble at all."

So the silver-screen idea hit him — back in 1948. He had come to Columbus thinking he could be a professional baseball player when he saw a sign advertising a religious film at a local church.

He saw it . . . was overwhelmingly impressed and hit upon the idea of making films — a world of make believe that's easily and likeably digested by the public — available for all persons desiring religious guidance.

It took him two years to get his idea rolling. Now, it's gaining momentum at every Saturday night showings with at least 15 to 20 different churches in Columbus and surrounding communities bringing groups there regularly.

Why? Even Rea's not definitely sure. He does know one thing, though. "God always has the right man in the right place at the right time."

NARCE Meets

Columbus Chapter 235 of the National Association of Retired Civil Employees will meet Saturday, May 4, at 2 p.m. in the Old Federal Building, Third and State-sts.

Rev. James Biddle of the First Community Church will speak on Ohio's newest living center for older persons, First Community Village, which is located at 1800 Riverside-dr on Rt. 33.

13th Time For Dog Named "Best In Show"

For the 13th time this year, Traceder's Painted Lady, three-year-old Boxer owned by Mrs. Donald Smith, 2977 W. Broad-st, was named "best in the show" at a dog show. The latest honor came from the 13th annual Huntington, W. Va., Kennel Club all breed dog show Sunday.

The Huntington show attracted 350 entries of 70 different breeds from 23 states.

These insignia can be redeemed by any reader, subscriber or not, for one "Confederate" dollar, if the page containing the emblem is mailed or brought into the Hartley Newspaper Office, 2465 W. Broad-st.

The holder of the lucky "5" insignia will receive five "Confederate" dollars if it is brought into the Hartley Newspaper Office in person. If that holder is a paid subscriber to one of the seven Hartley Newspapers, that "5" emblem also becomes worth the toal amount of the current "Confederate" jackpot . . . this week that is $138.

This contest is not open to employes or carriers of Hartley Newspapers or their families.

With all that cash now waiting for the winner of the big jackpot the few minutes spent looking for the confederate insignia could be well worth the effort. You have nothing to lose and 138 "Confederate" dollars to win. And remember, those Hartley Newspaper "Confederate" bills are as good as money in the bank with any Hartley advertiser.

The South has risen . . . and you can, too, by searching for the lucky emblems in your favorite Hartley Newspaper.

READY TO GREET customers and keep track of score sheets at Rainbow Lanes Bowling Center is receptionist Loretta Carnes and Manager Dick Braun. Along with complete bowling facilities and 48 lanes, Rainbow Lanes will also outfit the bowler with all types of accessories from uniforms to bowling balls.

48 Modern Bowling Lanes Available At Rainbow Center

"Built By Bowlers For Bowlers" is the motto by which Rainbow Lanes Bowling Center, 3224 S. High-st, has operated since it was opened four years ago. As one of the most complete bowling centers in Columbus, facilities include 48 lanes, equipped with the latest in modern automatic pin-setters, a modern cocktail lounge, billiard room, nursery, restaurant and men's and women's locker rooms.

Manager Dick Braun, who took over the bowling center two and a half years ago, takes a great deal of pride in his experienced staff and complete facilities. Personnel includes Loretta Carnes, Mike Limotta, Glenn Grones, Bill Clark and Bill Evans, manager of the Cocktail Lounge. "All of my people are well known in Columbus bowling circles," said Braun.

The manager added, "My lanes are also known for the high score games that have been bowled in league-sanctioned games. During the past season we had 27 bowlers who rolled 700-series games. One of our league bowlers racked up a single 299 game and one came up with a perfect 300 single game. The woman's high for the past season was a 692 three-game series."

Summer league organization is now underway at Rainbow Lanes and Braun urged anyone interested in joining one of the teams to contact him or a member of his staff at HI. 4-2155.

Free bowling instruction is also available for beginning bowlers at Rainbow Lanes and complete information for attending a class can also be obtained by calling Braun.

Rainbow Lanes is also equipped to handle a complete line of bowling accessories including bags, shoes, balls and uniforms. All balls are drilled and plugged to the purchaser's specifications on the premises, according to Manager Braun.

The lanes open each morning at 9 a.m. and remain open until 2:30 a.m. the next morning. Open bowling is scheduled each weekday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and from 11 p.m. until closing time. Open bowling is also scheduled for business hours on the weekend. League bowling takes place from 6 p.m. until 11 p.m. each weekday evening.

Parking facilities will accommodate several hundred automobiles at one time, and with 48 lanes to choose from there is seldom any delay in using the modern and comfortable facilities of Rainbow Lanes, one of Columbus' finest bowling centers.

"I DENY EVERYTHING" is the statement from Lt. Dana M. Lansing, left, of Moling and Associates Investigation and Guard Services, who agreed to to be the "suspect" for a demonstration of the latest polygraph (lie detector) equipment in the Moling offices. "That's not true," said Alvin S. Kimball, behind desk, chief of Polygraph Section, Bureau of Criminal Identification, who acted as a consultant for the test. "Tell the truth," said W. Richard Moling, president of the investigation firm as he read the meter standing on the desk. "The lie detector doesn't lie."

If You're Going To Tell A Fib Don't Be Connected To Polygraph

It's almost impossible to beat the "lie box" anymore. A guy can't even move his finger without notifying the machine through a system of wires and tubes leading from his body to the polygraph.

One of the latest in the polygraph lie detectors was demonstrated by one of Ohio's leading experts on the subject in the office of Moling and Associates, Inc. Detective Agency, 2427 E. Main.

The Moling agency is adding the new machine to its already complete line of detective services.

W. Richard Moling, president of the firm, said "even our own guards will be tested every 90 days to determine their competency on the job. Each of our new applicants will undergo a lie detector test to establish his honesty and qualifications for a job with our agency."

During the demonstration of the lie box an expert tester explained how it works. Three things are tested, according to the expert. Tubes or wires are connected to the persons being tested and show responses to a question by respiration, blood pressure and perspiration.

"Each of these responses from a suspect can indicate whether or not he is telling the truth," according to the expert. "An operator can also tell if a suspect is under medication, tranquilizers or a stimulant by a lack of reaction," he added.

"While giving polygraph examination," he explained, "the tester has to practically keep one eye on the machine and one on the subject. Some persons try to "beat" the machine, for instance, by clenching their fists. Although certain lines of the machine's graph will indicate movement, a meter connected to the tester will tell it sooner and save the tester unnecessary observation problems."

It is often desirable to tape record questions and answers during a lengthy examination, so the tester can compare the conversation with the answer graph after the test.

"Putting a michophone and recording equipment in front of a subject causes problems," he said. "Therefore, the latest equipment has a microphone built right into it All that is necessary is to plug in a concealed recorder."

The latest in lie detector equipment is not necessarily a step toward making polygraph examination results admissable in court. The expert explained "many unqualified persons now give tests so that testing standards are not as stringent as they should be. Until high qualifications and licensing laws are set, polygraph will not be a court procedure."

Testing has other problems, too, involving mental capacity of some sumjects, who cannot take a test because the machine will not register properly.

The tester, who has given over 12,000 polygraph tests in 16 years in state law enforcement, pointed out, however, that polygraphs are not really "lie detectors." It has been his experience that polygraph tests "clear" over 65 per cent of those tested. The latest device promises to make it tougher for most felon suspects, because they are the ones who frequently try to "trick" the machine.

The new model of polygraph weighs less than 15 pounds, is fully transistorized and can be transported on a few seconds notice.

Now in full use by Moling and Associates, W. Richard Moling said he expects the new unit to be invaluable in crime detection and to clear any suspect who has been unjustly charged with committing a crime. In addition, Moling predicted, the polygraph will aid his company's service to its clients who often have crime problems for detectives to solve.

South Siders MUST Rally Together To Check Tuberculosis

South Siders living between Morrill-av and the New York Central Railroad won't have to walk any further than the corner, starting Monday, May 6, to protect themselves, their families and their friends from contagious TB.

Monday is opening day for "Operation Checkmates," the Tuberculosis Society's ambitious program aimed at wiping out contagious TB in high TB incidence areas.

The area between Morrill-av and the New York Central Railroad has six to eight new cases of TB every year, according to Franklin County TB controller records.

The TB Society will bring two free life-saving tests—the Mantoux TB test and chest X-ray—almost to the front doors of the area's 6500 residents by making neighborhood visits through June 7.

Using the familiar Christmas Seal X-ray Cruiser and its new "twin," the TB testing unit, "Operation Checkmates" hopes to find and place under treatment all cases of TB and to identify all persons with TB germs in their bodies.

The success of this determined TB-eradication program depends on one thing—the total participation of the "Checkmates" area residents. "Checkmates" must get 100 per cent participation because TB is contagious. One untreated, undiscovered case of active TB will probably infect nine others, according to medical authorities. No one is safe from TB until everyone is safe!

Anyone over one month old can have a TB test. This simple test takes only a minute. Within 48 to 72 hours later a doctor can tell if there are TB germs in the body.

The presence of TB germs does not necessarily mean that the individual has active TB, but it does mean that he has been in contact with someone who does have it. It means that because he now has TB germs in his body, his chances of getting TB in the future are increased.

Because he lives in a high TB incidence area his chances of getting active TB in the future are ten times greater than those of non-reactors.

For this reason, all positive reactors will be advised to have a yearly chest X-ray.

The chest X-ray is familiar to us all. Everyone 15 years or older may get a free X-ray. Chest X-rays spot lung damage caused by TB and suggest presence of other respiratory diseases as well.

"Operation Checkmates" — a vital part of the TB Society's battle against TB, is designed and planned especially for you—for everyone who lives between Morrill-av and New York Central Railroad.

Be sure you take advantage of "Checkmates" by double-checking yourself and your entire family against TB.

change, Kaiser said, all residents who benefit from a given improvement would share equally in the total cost, including the portion presently borne by the city.

The charter change was drafted by Columbus City Councilman William Fornof and has strong bi-partisan support. Fornof explained that the present method of assessing benefiting property owners is inequitable. Many property owners who want such improvements refuse to sign petitions because their assessments will be less as non-signers, he said.

The second charter amendment issue would allow Columbus to include franchise provisions as part of the security for issuance of mortgage revenue bonds to finance activities relative to city-owned utilities.

Howard J. Stemm, electricity division superintendent, said that approval of the amendment would enable the city to expand present facilities.

Stemm said that the city cannot offer potential revenue bond investors the full credit of the city. This means that no payment of revenue bond indebtedness may be paid from general obligation funds.

Stemm explained that any revenue bonds sold to finance expansion of the municipal light plant must be repaid only from profits derived from the city-owned utility. The amendment, he said, offers potential revenue bond investors the protection of taking over the facility should it prove incapable of showing sufficient profit to repay the investors.

council action," said Fetch, obviously happy over the decision by the lawmakers.

"The legislation will enable the neighborhood to develop with some uniformity. We know from experiences of other areas such as this in the country that the ordinance gives us a definite economic advantage. Everybody will benefit."

The ordinance is a unique one in the state of Ohio. According to Fetch, the city's law department (specifically, city attorney John C. Young) did "considerable research" on the matter before preparing the legislation.

Young pointed out that the statute is designed to be reasonable and flexible "with the back door left open." He added that a similar law has been tested in the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

Right now, number one target by the commission is renovating the brick streets and sidewalks.

Changes made in the boundaries were largely in the western and northern sections.

The new boundaries will be Pearl-av, just east of S. High-st; the alley south of Livingston-av; a line following Grant-av and Blackberry-av and Nursery-ln north of Mithoff-st.

Former boundaries extended to the Scioto River on the west, Livingston-av on the north and Gates-st on the south. The east boundary remains the same.

"This does not prohibit people in adjoining areas from becoming part of the Village," Fetch said. "The boundaries were mainly set up for convenience in that it's easier to develop a small area."

Nearby property owners need only to petition council to become "annexed" into the Village proper.

Golden Agers To Rally At Citizens' Center

The tenth annual Golden Age Rally will be held on Wednesday, May 8, at the new Senior Citizens' Recreation Center, 275 McDowell-st, from 6 to 10 p.m. Any person 60 years or older is invited to attend.

The stage show will be presented twice, at 6:30 and again at 8 p.m.

Schiller Park Golden Age Club will present the scene, "The First Auto," in the stage show. Club members appearing in the cast are Marie Waidner, C. V. Turvey, Lucy Mewing, G. E. LaRue, Alberta Rigot, Mabel Rader, and Mary Weaver.

The Schiller Club will meet next Tuesday at 1 p.m. for its regular monthly business meeting and to discuss arrangements for transportation to the rally.

Candidate Calls For Specific Area Representation

In announcing his platform as a candidate for Columbus City Council, Carl G. Thompson, 2240 Ontario-st, has called for the continued annexation of other areas to the city and for the election of councilmen from specific areas in order to give more equal representation.

In line with this plan, Thompson has called for a change in the city charter to allow this type of representation and the election of two more councilmen due to the increase in size of population.

According to a statement issued by Thompson, three present Columbus councilmen are located in the same area and he feels this is unfair to areas not represented.

The council candidate called for a street lighting program and larger fire and police departments to handle the increased size of the city.

Thompson is a graduate of Central High School and is employed at North American Aviation, Inc.

gious TB in Columbus' high incidence areas by being on hand to entertain residents and receive both free TB tests and chest X-rays themselves.

Instrumental in the early planning of "Checkmates" and still working hand-in-hand with the TB Society are the South Side Settlement House and St. Stephen's Community House.

Principals and Parent-Teacher organizations from the following local schools have pledged their support to this determined anti-TB program: Barrett Junior High, Reeb-av Elementary, Southwood Elementary, St. Ladislas and South High.

Area churches and individual church groups have also been working closely with the Society. Churches include: Hungarian Evangelical Church and the Holy Name Society of St. Ladislas Roman Catholic Church.

Also co-operating in "Checkmates" are the William Penn Fraternal organization and Boy Scout Troop No. 203 and Cub Scout Troop 247.

A Primary Obligation--

Tuesday, May 7, is Primary Election Day. It is a more important day of decision than most people seem to realize. It is the individual voter's opportunity to say who will represent the political parties in November.

Primary Day is the truest form of grass roots politics: an invitation to each qualified citizen to take an active part in the beginning processes of government.

We all recognize our constitutional right to free and open elections. Let's also remember that proper "political physical fitness" calls for exercising of our voting rights at every opportunity.

Voting is not only a right and a privilege—it is also a responsibility and a duty.

Show Pride In The Colors

The quality of love is measured by its endurance, rather than its intensity. It is not necessary that we exhibit constant and boisterous mouthings to show our true love of country.

There is, for example, one quiet, sincere, effective manner by which we show an enduring love and respect for the principles of our democratic republic — the flying of our flag.

Upcoming dates on which our flag should be displayed include:

Armed Forces Day, May 18; Memorial Day, May 30; Flag Day, June 14; Independence Day, July 4; Labor Day, Sept. 2; Columbus Day, Oct. 12, and Veteran's Day, Nov. 11.

Six Rules Check Molesters

How many times, we wonder, could these deplorable and revolting incidents of child molesting be circumvented with more careful instructions to children and more caution by parents?

Here are six rules we feel all parents would do well to utilize to better protect our defenseless children.

1. Instruct children to decline any offer of candy, money or rides from anyone who is not known to both the child and the parents.

2. Tell them to report to you any such offers.

3. Don't permit young children to be outside, unattended, after dark.

4. Don't permit children to go alone to unsupervised play areas.

5. Don't send a child on any errand after dark.

6. If your child is too young to understand these instructions and rules, then he is too young to be without adult supervision at all times.

ABOUT OHIO

"Beautiful Ohio." We often hear and speak about that phrase. And with good reason. Ohio is beautiful. And more.

We have scenery, industries, farmlands, recreation areas, airports, and traffic. We have railroads, good highways, history, a growing tradition—and above all, people, some of them famous.

Figures may be boring. But risking that, here are a few about Ohio. This "Empire within an Empire" has almost 45,000 square miles of which over 3,000 lie within Lake Erie. Almost square, the four boundaries are about 200 miles each and none is more than about 150 miles from Columbus. Average temperature is 51 and yearly moisture fall is 38 inches.

Ohio ranks eighth in agriculture with nearly 300,000 farm people on 20 million acres. Their annual income is a billion dollars.

Ohio is "The Crossroads of the Nation." We have 29 railroads reaching all 88 counties. Thirteen airlines land on 201 certified ports and another 200 private fields serve unscheduled flying. Besides the 241 miles of turnpike, we have over 18,000 miles of good roads. Heavy goods are carried on Lake Erie and the Ohio River in ships and barges.

Yes, Ohio has had a great past and will have a greater future. It's nice to be a Buckeye.

It says here . . . The pasture is not always greener on the other side.

An Editor's Outlook . . . by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

Folklore Of Liberals Full Of Delusions

Self-styled "liberals" are generally nicer people than sour-puss reactionaries.

It would be better to be cast away on a desert island with an outgoing and out-giving liberal than with a guy who's against everything including the construction of a raft. But this doesn't mean that "liberal" government is a good recipe for equity or human happiness. Many liberals suffer from smug assumptions about human behavior and political theory that simply don't jibe with reality.

Jones

They are capable of a great degree of dogma. They honestly believe themselves to be champions of liberty while they favor creeping coercion as long as they can be the authors of coercion. They are so sure their theories are good for you that they think they are only doing you a favor when they tie you to a post, pry open your jaws, and pour their nostrums down your throat.

Willie Howard, the late great Jewish comedian, had a skit in which he impersonated a Communist holding forth in Union Square.

"Comes da revolution," shouted Willie, "you'll eat strawberries and cream."

"But," protested someone in his stage audience, "I don't like strawberries and cream."

Willie assumed a contemptuous sneer: "Comes da revolution and YOU'LL EAT strawberries and cream!"

One of the chief characteristics of the professional liberal in America is his naive belief in the corrective power of law. Every time he sees social maladjustment or a personal tragedy he wants to pass a law to correct it. Gradually and with the best intentions he weaves a net of verbotens and must-dos that paralyzes the individual.

I once served on a Navy ship under a chief communications officer who had this compulsion. Every time an error was made in the radio shack or coding room he promulgated a new edict to correct the fault—another carbon copy, a triple check, a new log to keep. Pretty soon we were so busy with safeguards that we began to miss messages to the ship. In short, our prime purpose broke down.

If you keep on passing laws to obviate every possible injustice, eventually you arrive at the ultimate injustice, the police state.

Although the "liberal" often professes a contempt for money, he has almost a childlike faith in its power. What he can't cure with a law he thinks he can cure with an appropriation. When mulish taxpayers balk at such expenditures at the local level, he demands that the federal government take over, on the sound theory that the farther the taxing agency is removed from the individual the more chance there is that the individual will be complacent about the tax. The argument: "If Oklahoma doesn't take the money, Maine will," is a potent one.

Therefore, the "liberal" arrives quite logically at his advocacy of centralized power. Centralized power is the device by which the normal caution of the taxpayer is overwhelmed by his greed. Federal aid to schools will provide more teachers without raising school district taxes. Ninety-ten federal highway money means that we won't have to pay the bond issue. Increased federal relief means that local government can be shirked. And so super-government grows and the "liberal" is delighted.

He is delighted because he questions whether local government will ever have adequate "social vision." But he will see to it that the super-government has. There will be plans, bold plans of new frontiers entered into with vigor.

The "liberal" also seems to hold a double standard in the matter of human behavior. He is irate about the "greed" of corporations and the evils of stock options. But the mugger in the park who stabs for $20 is a "deprived" person who wouldn't have gone wrong if there had been enough social legislation.

The "liberal" can't believe that removing the penalties for misbehavior or lack of performance could increase human cussedness and sloth. Instead, according to his theory, what we need are more social workers, more public housing, more youth clubs. And with them we keep getting more chiselers, more illegitimate children, more delinquency and crime.

One problem with the "liberal" is that he's getting way behind the times. He can't adjust his dogmas to new forces. He looks at labor-management problems as though the Pinkertons were still shooting the strikers at Homestead. The significance of Jimmy Hoffa eludes him. He is furious at the price-raising attempt by U. S. Steel, but unable to comprehend the cost-fixing capabilities of the United Steel Workers. He is still chasing Commodore Vanderbilt and the beef trust.

The "liberal" thus deludes himself with the comfortable assurance that he is far-seeing, a "progressive," a man of the future. In his effort to cure injustices by piling on more government he forgets that all the great struggles for freedom have been directed against the overblown force of government.

He has, with minor interruptions, been in power in America for 30 years. He is getting gray, and even a little quaint. He won't admit error or consider pragmatic results. He has concocted his medicine, and as our colic increases he merely calls for bigger doses.

The "liberal" is a nice guy. He is loving us to death.

Don't Knock Junk Mail; It Pampers Your Ego

Who says junk mail is a nuisance?

Some of it, in addition to breaking the monotony of receiving bills, is great for morale boosting — especially if you suffer recurrent doubts about your ability.

Sages, seers, poets and wives through the ages have been telling man there is nothing he cannot accomplish if he so desires. But most of them couldn't hold a snuffbox to the junk mail artists who daily deluge us with learn-by-mail appeals.

McPeek

For one who is buffeted by an inferiority complex of such proportions as mine, it's like downing a psychotherapeutic highball to read a letter telling you that you have the qualities and ability to "lead the adventurous, romantic life of a private detective"—even if it is addressed to "occupant."

So convincing was the become-a-shamus pitch with its promise also of an "official" badge and diploma, I rushed out and bought a trench coat and was about to send in my money when a similar proposal came from a photographic operation in the East that assured me that I could, through 12 easy correspondence lessons, gain fame and wealth as a photographer of "beautiful girls and exotic places."

I immediately lost all interest in becoming a detective and was about to send for more information on how to become famously rich and cavort with beautiful dolls when my wife got hold of the letter.

An emergency three-minute brainwashing session administered by her, punctuated with threats of physical violence, aborted my photographic career before it even got off the launching pad.

But, nurtured by thoughts of possibly signing up for Charles Atlas' muscle building course, I soon recovered from the bitter disappointment. (Who needs fame, wealth and . . .?)

Other learn-by-mail propositions I've received assured me that I could become a glassblower, a famous artist, an electrician, a hairdresser, an announcer, a criminal lawyer, a glamorous model (this one sounded interesting, too, but in view of Christine Jorgensen's questionable publicity, I rejected the idea), a nuclear scientist (build your own A-bomb for fun and profit?), and a recent one from a theatrical agency which is convinced that I, the "occupant," belong in show business and they are just the people to put me there . . . for a price.

But after more than a decade of marriage, I'm sure there is nothing they can teach me about theatrics. Besides, look how acting has botched up Richard Burton's life.

Yeah, look at it!

Disputes Article

To the Editor:

The article by Charles Claybaugh, president of the National Editorial Association ("Creeping Socialism," Editorial page, Apr. 17, 18) I must challenge.

If free enterprise has no better argument or defender than the ones he gives, it is lost.

He mentions public schools, school buses, school cafeteria, U.S. Army and Navy, state universities, public health systems, public hospitals, veterans' land programs, Social Security, old age assistance, R.E.A. power for farms, stocking fish ponds, aid to cities' renewal programs, and cities' sewer plants, post office and civil service.

If all these things were abolished free enterprise would collapse. I wonder if he remembers the depression of 1930?

He never mentioned all the things that the government does for industries, transportation, banks and building and housing concerns.

Government ownership of business is not socialism. Socialism is the collective ownership of the means of production, transportation and the land, controlled democratically by the people that work in them by brain and hand. It also means the abolishing of rent, interest and profit.

Mr. Claybaugh better inform himself before he speaks on a subject. He makes a poor defender of free enterprise.

Nurses Grateful

To the Editor:

The members of District Twelve of the Ohio State Nurses Association want to take this opportunity to thank you for the excellent article (Who Is Responsible . . . Hospital or Nurses?) which appeared in your papers Apr. 11.

We received many favorable comments from friends, senators, and members of the allied health professions. Many of our friends admired the excellent photographs of the nurses.

We were happy that you handled such a controversial topic in such a tactful way.

Frosting On The Cake

By "UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

In our own nearly 200 years of social evolution, paralleled by political unfoldment, every fine thing has happened in spite of stupidity, venal behavior, and downright cussedness in every generation. Giants in any field of usefulness have always paid a tremendous price for their own health of soul and indomitable courage to "keep on keeping on" regardless of every abuse, insult, or political chicanery.

Inspired and inspiring leaders of the constant forward march have survived only because of the very "compulsion" of their souls. Nothing dissuaded them and too many never lived long enough to see how right they had been all along. Uncounted thousands of truly great individuals have gone to unmarked and unsung graves, devoid of any real recognition and success, as the world measures success.

But, "what they did here" lived on after their departure from the human scene because priceless foundations were laid down, upon which succeeding giants could build. No man or woman ever enjoyed any greater immortality than eventual recognition that Divine Providence had travelled with all such lives.

God's Grace Allows Us To Change

WHAT ARE YOU? Perhaps only you and God know. But this is not to say that you cannot become someone other than the person you now are. The apostle Paul was a persecutor of the church. He used the power at his disposal to destroy any and all potential that the early church might have had. I do not mean to imply that this was Paul's only fault. I am sure other weaknesses were revealed as he experienced the power of Christ's confrontation on the road to Damascus. But for once he became honest. He realized that what he was wasn't what he should be. Thus, Paul with humiliating conviction of his own unworthiness, was united with the consciousness of that Higher Power which worked on and in him. It wasn't that Paul worked out his salvation as many of us attempt to do by becoming a "good person," but rather by accepting the grace of God which was revealed in Jesus Christ. This experience later caused him to write in his letter to the church at Corinth, "For I am the last of the apostles, unfit to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the church of God. But, by the grace of God, I am what I am and his grace toward me was not in vain."

Rev. Dunaway

SCRIPTURE: For I am the least of the apostles, unfit to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the church of God. But by the grace of God I am what I am, and his grace toward me was not in vain. On the contrary, I worked harder than any of them, though it was not I, but the grace of God which is with me. (Acts 15:9-10).

WHAT ARE YOU? Has some legalistic evangel made you aware of what you are, leaving you in despair and with little hope of becoming a better person? My friend, your hope does not lie in your becoming a better person, it lies in the grace of God. Even if the sanctified evangels relied upon their goodness to bring hope and salvation they would probably fall shorter toward the goal than you.

Let us be honest as was Paul. The church is not a legalistic workshop. God is not the proud owner of a new IBM machine that keeps a day-by-day record of your life. God is your Father. Does that mean anything to you? It is as a father that He comes to us, not as a judge. It is to His grace that we should respond, not to the miserable concept of what we know ourselves to be. It is God's grace that allows us to come to Him in spite of what we are. This is the message, the good news of the Christian faith, that God accepts us for what we are, and His grace allows Him to do so.

Let me hasten to add, lest I be misunderstood by some brethren that, once this grace has been applied and realized, there should come a desire to walk in the light of spiritual living as revealed in God's word. But, this is not to say that God's grace does not continue to accept us as sinners. For if it did discontinue to accept us, who of us would be accepted?

Now, All Together, Let's Sing 'The Old Familiar 'Mentelecin'

Who? Priscilla LaRue, musician teacher, columnist, handwriting analyst, civic worker and homemaker from the South Side.

Her most recent accomplishment is the copyrighting of "Musicrostic, a game designed to teach note reading in a "fun way." Even the title on lesson is scrambled to intrigue the student. Thus "Clementine" and "America" become cairema" and "Mentelecin."

PRISCILLA

"The brilliant idea was born in the bathtub," the author of "Gadabout," a Hartleys newspaper social column, reveals in a hilarious account of her struggles to obtain a copyright for her brain child.

Convinced that her idea was "Big, Big, Big," after preliminary and confusing correspondence with the government's copyright office, she decided a patent attorney was the order of the day.

Eventually locating one of the "scarce critters," Mrs. Lennox began making the "sign of the open pocketbook to the lawyer, the printer and the notary, none of whom "were accepting charity cases" on the days she appeared.

Time dragged while awaiting word from Washington ute a glance in the mirror reflected a first-cousin to Einstein, and the next moment a frustrated creature with a pointed head.

During this time, though dreaming of "fame, wealth and creature comforts" she was haunted by the conviction that some mad genius was slaving, not in the bathtub, but in a small, dank room. Certainly he would produce the same Brilliant Idea.

Explaining that she didn't know she was working the copyright shift, she invoked the help of the "Almighty, Allah and Confusius."

When at last the precious document that testifies her idea is original was safe in her hand, her work was clearly defined.

This should be duck soup for Mrs. Lennox; everything she does is done with ease.

Holding a masters from Ohio University, she has introduced hundreds of children to the piano. An accomplished bass viol artist she played with the old Columbus Symphony while still in South High, was with Uncle Ben and the Hired Hands, heard over WBNS.

During World War II she took up the study of handwriting and entertained countless servicemen with her clever interpretation of their personalities.

Combining subtle flattery (who does not want to believe they are persistent, talented and sensitive?) with humorous darts. ("Any Missouri mules in the ancestral tree?") she was a major attraction at the USO.

GOING UP...

A building is being erected. It is made of strong materials, steel and concrete. The foundation is firm and deep. The edifice is built to endure.

We need to build our homes to endure. They need a strong foundation. They need to be built on the rock of Christ. Psalm 127:1 reads, Except the Lord build the house, they labour in vain that build it." Attend church regularly that your house may be instructed in the ways of the Lord.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for men and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Wizard Sees Derby $ In Never Bend Stable

In direct defiance of the warnings of Senator McClellan and Pete Rozelle, we visited the dwelling of one of our friends (labeled as an "undesirable" these days) last week in hopes of "getting the word" on the 89th Kentucky Derby Saturday.

Wading through stacks of racing forms, we confronted "Gary Go-Broke" with the obligation of converting our rectangular Thomas Jefferson into the proverbial pot of gold.

UP UNTIL THAT visit, it had been a two-horse race between Capt. Harry F. Guggenheim's '62 champion juvenile Never Bend and Rex C. Ellsworth's unbeaten Candy Spots.

But now the situation has changed completely. "No Robbery scares me," GG confided, carrying another stack of forms down to the furnace.

"He's developed quickly. His last race was just two-fifths off the track record, good enough to drop the odds from 10-1 to 3-1."

"OF COURSE, Never Bend still has to be my pick," GG pointed out, indicating with his red pencil that the "best in the East" had covered five furlongs in :58 in a Derby workout.

"On the other hand, Candy Spots (the best in the West) beat Never Bend as a two-year-old at Arlington last summer. But Spots has run only when the tracks were fast and Churchill Downs is an Eastern Track, slower due to its dirt composition if there's any moisture."

"The two things to consider," he continued, "are a good speed rating in a recent race (within 10 days) and conditioning. Those two factors indicate more than anything else if a horse looks good for a particular race."

THE ROOM was getting uncomfortably warm but GG continued jamming the forms into the furnace door. "I'm a chalk player (short odds) myself. That's the closest you ever come to winning. The long-odds player is an automatic loser."

"How about the jockey? Shouldn't that be a consideration?" we asked.

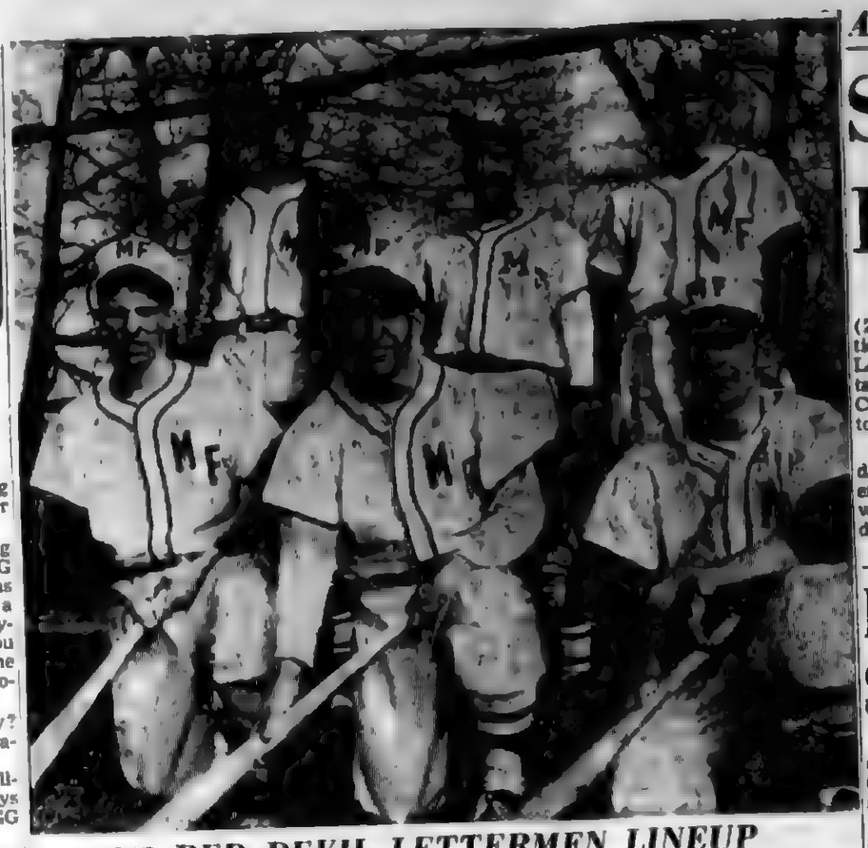
"Just like a baseball All-Star game. Only the top boys ride the Derby horses," GG answered.

"There's a real good chance for a track record if the conditions are right," GG continued, stacking some more forms in my arms. "The horses get better every year more trim, more streamlined. The feed's a lot better."

AFTER WE HAD transacted our business, we asked GG how his profit and loss ledger was standing this year.

"Do you realize that $596,914,520 was spent in 1962 on horse race betting in New York State's 296-day season alone?"

"How have you been doing?"



"OF COURSE, horse players are like fishermen — all liars."

"Won a lot of money lately?"

"I never remember winning but—"

We left assured that we'll never find that pot of gold at the Kentucky Derby.

The venture wasn't a complete loss, however. Thanks to GG, we've laid in a large enough stock of old racing forms to knock the edge off even the chilliest spring evening.

'63 RED DEVIL LETTERMEN LINEUP

THAT'S NO FISH STORY!

VIRGINIA MATTOX of 37 S. Yale-av helps her brother hold up the one that didn't get away—a 32 lb. carp landed near Beech Bridge in Big Darby Creek last week. Virginia, who hooked the fish on a spinner with a ten-pound test, admitted that she was so scared she was afraid to let go. Brother Harold helped his sister land the whopper which took close to a half hour to corral.

SPORTSMEN OF YEAR

HERBERT POENISCH (left) and Henry Held were recently selected to receive the coveted "Sportsman of the Year" award by a vote of the membership of the South Side Branch YMCA Church Volleyball League. The names of both men will be placed on the large plaque held by Poenisch and each will receive a smaller plaque (displayed by Held). Ken Dotson was the 1962 winner.

South Raps Scotties; Devils Lose Twice

By ART KIENZLE

South High's baseballers (2-2) are sitting in a four-way tie for third place in the City League standings while they take a week's pause for the Central District 99 baseball tournament.

South drew a bye in Tuesday's set of games in the lower bracket and sat back to watch the proceedings that day.

LAST WEEK the Bulldogs lost a 5-2 decision to West but bounced back to take a 7-2 win over Walnut Ridge Friday.

Friday, however, South's fireballer Bob White and sophomore Terry Emrich gave up just three hits in handing Walnut Ridge its second loss of the season.

Just for the record, in league play South has gathered 20 runs while giving up 18 to their opponents in four games. By comparison, front-running Eastmoor has collected 25 runs while giving up 11.

ELSEWHERE AROUND the area, Marion-Franklin sandwiched a win between two loop losses during the week while Rosary dropped three County League verdicts to complete diamond play.

Larry Jonas lost a 2-1 heartbreaker to East to start the M-F set. The Red Devil hurler allowed but two Tiger hits and led 1-0 until East rallied for a pair in the sixth for the win.

Gene DeBolt's grand slam homer helped pace the heavy-hitting Devils to an 11-1 romp over Aquinas Thursday. M-F wrapped up the win in the third with a six-run outburst.

EASTMOOR POURED eight runs across the plate in the first two innings Friday to lace the Devils, 10-3. Doug Cromer and Jerry Myers held M-F to a single hit.

Rosary was limited to total of four runs and eight hits in three County League encounters as the Crusaders sank into the CL cellar.

University blanked the Green and White, 11-0, New Albany scored a 7-1 win and Hamilton Township picked up an 11-3 decision.

Frog Gone But Hawks Stalk Spring Scenery

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROB COCHRAN

OBSERVED—Two ospreys circling over Big Darby Creek—a magnificent sight as the large hawks wheeled in a clear spring sky. These are often called fish hawks, for they eat dead fish they find along waterways. They are noted for harassing an eagle until it drops a fish it is carrying, and then the osprey steals the meal.

An osprey was reported earlier from Big Darby Park. These are probably transients and will not neat here. They like bigger waters.

OBSERVED: The torrential rains made local streams too muddy for anglers to gig suckers when the time was just right. Gigging and spearing rough fish is permitted, and the best time to get suckers is when they gather on riffles to spawn.

It still may not be too late to gather a mess, if the water clears. Suckers make a fine springtime meal. They should be filleted and scored, that is criss-cross cuts made across the fillets. Deep-frying then eliminates most of the bones.

TOLD ME: Time is here for finding sponge mushrooms. Also called morels, these tasty tid-bits often grow under dead elm or ash trees. Old apple orchards are also good prospecting places.

OBSERVED: Frog season closed, midnight Apr. 30, without much chance of catching bullfrogs. Apparently the cool weather kept them inactive, and I have not yet heard the booming voice of a granddaddy bullfrog. You will hear them soon, however, for spawning season is here. The season opens on frogs again June 15. The limit is 10 frogs per night.

TOLD ME: Boaters are out in numbers on local waters, outnumbering fishermen. The launching ramp at O'Shaughnessy Dam was crowded, and you had to wait 40 minutes to get your boat in the water last Sunday.

TOLD ME: A patent for the first water skis was granted in 1924 to Fred Waller, the same man who invented Cinerama. There must be a lesson here somewhere—maybe after a few excursions of water skiing the movies look pretty good as a pastime.

TOLD ME: The Cortland Line Co. writes that they have had a request from a lady in Vermont. She wants some of that "miracle additive" they have been applying to their Seven Star Monofiliment. "My husband is out in the sun a lot and I'd like to feed him some so he won't get stiff, wiry and hard to manage."

OBSERVED: A car heading west on Route 40, pulling a camping trailer and hauling a boat on top. On the side was scrawled "California Or Bust." Sounds like a summer of fun.

Heyl Blasts Livingston, Holds Lead

The South Side YMCA Gray Softball League went into its third week of play with Reeb and Siebert playing to a 1-1 tie, and Lincoln Park downing Beck, 7-1.

On Thursday evening the Heyl Globetrotters overpowered Livingston 28-0, while Deshler whipped Stewart, 18-1.

THE TUESDAY League games had to be called after three innings because of cold weather, but not before Lincoln Park could outscore Beck. Kalb and Walker both hit doubles for Lincoln. Eddie Cotterel scored the lone run for Beck.

Mike Trumps scored for Siebert and Bean scored for Reeb, but neither team could break into a lead.

THURSDAY'S WEATHER was near perfect as Shadwell hit a home run, two triples, and a double to pace the Globetrotters victory over Livingston. James Pearson and Clifford Flint showed good defensive play for Livingston.

Thirteen different players scored for Deshler led by Bob Uhlig's two home runs. Reeb scored the lone run for the Stewart team which played with only seven players.

Sports, Entertainment 'Pros' Compete In Putt-Putt Match

The nearly unbelievable popularity of Putt-Putt golf in the Greater Columbus area has prompted a celebration. More specifically, a celebration by celebrities.

Columbus' Mr. Putt-Putt, Tom Rohm, has announced that a "Celebrity Tournament" — a first-ever for the Central Ohio area — will be staged at the original Putt-Putt Course in Columbus at 599 S. Hamilton-rd in Whitehall, ed Sunday at 2 p.m.

ROHM SAYS that a host of celebrities from the Columbus area have agreed to participate in the "big show" which will be staged at the original Putt-Putt Course in Columbus at 599 S. Hamilton-rd in Whitehall.

"We hope to give local residents a chance to see their favorite people from the athletic and entertainment world—as well as press, radio and television personalities," Rohm said.

Included in the list of Columbus favorites from the world of sports are Ohio State basketball coach, Fred Taylor, and Capital University coach, Harold "Whitey" Regan.

THE COACHES will bring such "pupils" with them as Dick Reasbeck, Jim Doughty, Dick Taylor, Don DeVoe, Jim Schaeffer, Tom Bowman, Carter Castillow, Dick Thies, Dick Ricketts, Dave Francis, Bob Butts, Bob Vogel, Gary Moeller, Eugene Ricardi and Dick Braun.

Newspaper personalities include Lou Berliner, John Auble, Jr., Paul Hornung, Tom Keys and Jack Wittenmeier.

ROHM SAID that he is negotiating with other personalities — all familiar to Columbus residents.

Lowest medal score for the 18-holes will determine the winner with each entrant competing for a set of McGregor golf clubs.

Rohm, who is also managing pro for Columbus Putt-Putt golf courses, added a "cordial invitation to all" and predicted an "afternoon of enjoyment for both contestants and spectators."

Rebs 4th At Riverside; Ram Thins Drop Pair

South and St. Marys — the area's two top track entries — suffered defeats in cinder action during the week.

The Bulldog runners faltered Friday at the Riverside Relays after South had pulled up within six points of the lead in Thursday's field events with wins in the broad jump and discus events.

THE REB TEAM of Wright - Pate - Martin topped the broad jump competition with a total of 60'7" while a trio of Cook - Scott - Marcum combined for a 381'4" distance in the discus throw.

May Food Markets

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:

Meats and Poultry—Fryers, beef chucks and steaks, pork shoulder cuts, eggs.

Fruits—Bananas, pineapple, fieldgrown rhubarb.

Maytime! Along with warmer weather and spring flowers, you can look forward to increased supplies of many, many foods—including meats, homegrown asparagus and fresh strawberries.

Top quality beef, pork and poultry will top the list of abundant foods, say marketing specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Mrs. Franks

Retail prices of beef are expected to move a little lower in May. This means average retail price—with less desirable cuts for warm weather showing a slightly greater price decline than popular barbecuing items as steaks and ground beef.

Beef supplies which were already large during the first quarter of this year will be even heavier during the second quarter. As much as 10 to 15 per cent more fed beef will be marketed in April, May and June of this year than during the same period of 1962. Slaughter rates for pork are slowing down, but are expected to be unseasonally high this month, and retail prices will likely be well below last year's.

May brings chicken-eating back to the great outdoors. Although the April through June marketings may fall below those of the same period in 1962, there will be plenty of chicken and more frequent specialing can be expected.

Homegrown asparagus — first of our local spring vegetables—came on in April this year, two weeks earlier than usual. Growers expect good cuttings each week, with peak season around the middle of the month. The flavor of this springtime delicacy is wonderful this year.

Greenhouse tomatoes are reaching volume production. Their quality is good and prices not too high for a glass-grown vegetable. May is also peak supply time for cabbage, fresh peas, radishes, green onions and brings more snap beans, corn, lettuce, peppers and squash to market.

While old-crop potatoes are decreasing in volume, surplus supplies of some stocks from Maine have brought lower prices at the present. New crop potatoes from Florida are more plentiful and California long-whites have started.

Fruits won't be so scarce as they were in April. Strawberries—usually in good volume by now—had a rough time with the weather this spring in all parts of the country. With more favorable weather, there should be many more and better berries from now on. It's a big month for fresh pineapple. And, you can expect more cantaloupes and the beginning of fresh peaches and watermelons.

Forty-one South High graduates, class of 1938, are being sought by the committee of the 25-year class who want to include their classmates in the traditional reunion. The 25-year get-together will be held on the same night as All-Alumni Reunion, Friday, May 24, with South High School as the "point of return," for all alumni.

The committee would be very happy to learn the whereabouts of these "lost Bulldogs":

Nora E. Stewart, Jane F. Smith, Victoria K. Snodgrass, Carl E. Walter, Robert T. Wallace, Carol J. Warden, Margaret Helen Wenger, Kathryn B. Yahn and Becky Zimmerman.

Though the anniversary class will be celebrating separately, all South High alumni are urged to return to the All-Alumni Reunion, to renew acquaintances with their former schoolmates.

He finds the son of another suitor, Jack Dauer, courting Linda Grinstead while Diane Duemmel, the hillbilly neighbor, looks the scene over in open-mouthed amazement.

DRUGTAX A SERVICE TO TAXPAYERS

Ever wish, at income tax time, that you had a complete record of every cent you spent for drugs and drug products throughout the year—and how much of it was legally deductible?

That kind of a record could save you money. And that kind of a record can now be yours, every year, absolutely free of charge.

This new service is called DrugTax. We are making it available to all of our customers immediately, free of charge, as another way of saying "thank you" for their patronage.

You would be surprised at the number of drug and medical supplies that can be of a deductible nature—items such as antiseptics, aspirin, cough and cold preparations, and hundreds of others.

Indeed, the American taxpayer has been losing millions of dollars annually because he hasn't been aware of how many drug items are legally deductible.

But you must be able to offer proof of purchase in order to claim such items in preparing your federal income tax return. And when you buy from us, you get that proof—in the form of an annual record, mailed in February.

Come in today and let us tell you more about DrugTax. And from now on, buy all of your drug and medical supplies from the store that gives you the free DrugTax record.

Welfare Conditions 'Frantic'

By JOHN AUBLE, JR.

Viewers with alarm should have a field day in the South Side.

That is, according to South Side Settlement worker Fannie Eisenstein, if they don't mind having their stomachs take a few turns.

"We've reached an all-time low here in welfare and relief conditions," Mrs. Eisenstein commented. "We're doing a stupid kind of thing here with people's lives."

She was referring to the April cutback by the state from the original 50 per cent matching welfare funds to 40 per cent. And, more specifically, she was referring to what this "budget balancing" move has meant to South Side residents on relief.

"Of course, people find a way to live. But, the ways they find are really not conducive to keeping families together," she added. "Some of the families are beginning to shatter apart."

Both Mrs. Eisenstein and South Side Settlement Executive Director Bernard Wohl have appealed to County Commissioner Henry A. Koontz to call an emergency meeting of the City-County Joint Welfare Committee early this month.

They are, in essence, seeking to put through emergency measures to bring the state's matching funds back up to the 50 per cent mark on a temporary basis.

As of Tuesday, no word had been received from Koontz.

The cut-back budget, nearly as bare now as the relieferS' cupboards, is scheduled to go before the Senate Finance Committee. Settlement workers have asked for time to appear before this group, also.

"We're not yet giving up hope that the state leg itself will take problems of welfare into consideration," Mrs. Eisenstein said." "The emergency measure we're seeking is on a local plane, but the fundamental measure for the next two years resides with the state."

Naturally, the biggest danger in the cutback occurred in the City-County Welfare pocketbook. "They budgeted on a 50 per cent basis," Mrs. Eisenstein reported, "and the cutback threw all their balancing and fiscal budgeting into a cocked hat."

Mrs. Eisenstein also reported that the welfare situation is at a point where the actual welfare department workers are "frantic."

"The workers there are so frustrated. They know the situation. They call the Settlement hoping we have avenues to a church somewhere where help can be obtained.

"Many mothers here are near the point of committing crimes. One mother told me that she wouldn't be sent to jail for neglect. She said she'd rob a local grocery store first and then go to jail.

"What can we, as a social agency, tell people like this?"

Goal—An 'Avenue Of Flags'

Have you done your part to prepare an "avenue of flags" for Armed Forces Day, Saturday, May 18?

Dozens of Columbus residents have started the ball rolling by ordering their flags early and taking advantage of the savings being offered by Hartley Newspapers.

The idea of a flag-filled neighborhood for patriotic holidays has caught like wildfire and orders for the big 3x5 foot, cotton, colorfast flags have literally poured into the Hartley Newspaper office since the plan was suggested last week.

Anyone can do their share in preparing the "avenue of flags" by checking the advertisement in this newspaper and then ordering the complete flag kit, valued at $5.50, which is delivered along with a one-year subscription to a Hartley Newspaper, valued at $3, for a total of only $5 cash, check or money order. JUNE WILL SEE JUNIORS AT BUCKEYE STATE WEEK

Thirteen juniors from South Side schools have been recognized for their scholarship, leadership and character by area American Legion Posts and their auxiliaries.

The young women have been selected to attend Buckeye Girls' State at Capital University June 15-23, while the young men will journey to Ohio University June 13-22 for Boys' State.

The statewide "Workshops in Democracy" will give the outstanding students an opportunity to practice government on a city, county and state level.

The delegates will be split into political parties and go through the flurry of campaigning, nomination and election, patterned after the functions of government as observed in a democracy.

Among the speakers who will appear at Boys' State are Governor James Rhodes, C. William O'Neil, Rev. Harvey Hahn, Don Manning of the FBI and representatives of the armed services.

The activities planned for the girls include a tour of Columbus, the Capitol and Veterans Memorial and a visit with Gov. Rhodes.

The delegates from South High are Roger Peer, Jim Lysle, Dale Goff, Paul Heint, Chris Hepner and Carla Jividen.

Marion-Franklin will be represented at Athens by Michael Schoonover and Gary Pemberton and at Capital by Kathy Stimpfle and Jean Dixon.

Barbara Oakley and David McMillen and Jack Gassman are the delegates from St. Mary's High School.

The Southway Post and its auxiliary and Franklin Post No. 1 are the sponsoring agents, with a number of South Side businesses and other groups acting as co-sponsors.

Trucks Are Target Of Protests

A handful of E. Livingston-av residents are carrying on a project to ban trucks from that street between College-av and Hamilton-rd.

Represented by attorney Edward J. Cox, the residents took their plea recently to the city's Traffic Commission with little result.

The protests are centered around legal requirements regulating trucks traveling on state routes and other items such as "wrecking streets," noise and speed.

"It's rather obvious that the trucks are bypassing E. Main-st so that they can make better time," Cox told Commission members.

Traffic Chairman Bill Neno told the group that the commission was merely an "advisory body" and "could not actually say whether E. Livingston-av shall be or shall not be a truck route."

'Operation Checkmates' Moves Into Second Week In South Side Area

As the Tuberculosis Society's "Operation Checkmates" moves into the second week of offering free TB tests and chest X-rays to South Siders, several WBNS-TV personalities will be on hand to lend their support to the program.

They will urge everyone living between Morrill-av and the New York Central Railroad to participate in this program to wipe out contagious TB in high TB incidence areas.

Tuesday (May 14) morning, Joe Holbrook will be at the "Checkmates" location. Wednesday (May 15) another of TV's famous "Outdoorsmen," Red Trabue, will be at the cruisers and Thursday (May 16), newscaster Bill Pepper will be at the location.

The Tuberculosis Society will continue to offer the two life-saving double checks against TB through June 7. Free chest X-rays are available to everyone 15 years or older and free Mantoux tuberculin tests will be offered to everyone over one month old.

The Mantoux tuberculin test is a simple, painless test which indicates if there are TB germs in the body. A doctor simply injects a small amount of a harmless liquid into the body, just beneath the skin of the forearm. A doctor examines the area 48 to 72 hours later and determines whether there are TB germs present.

Positive reactors to the TB skin test will be advised to have a yearly chest X-ray to spot TB early, if it should develop.

Next week's "Checkmates" locations are:

May 14 — Morrill-av and Eighth-st, 10 a.m.-noon and 3-7 p.m.

May 15 — Woodrow and Washington-av, 1-7 p.m.

May 16 — Morrill and Parsons-av, 2-8 p.m.

May 17 — Oipp and Parsons-av, 2-8 p.m.

May 18 — Saturday, Ann-st and Hinman-av, 11 a.m.-5 p.m.

SOUTH HIGH'S FREEDOM WRITER ... Junior Donna Wilcox

AT ASSEMBLY
Donna Will Get Award From South

By CONNIE STEWART
(Contributing Writer)

When it comes to freedoms, South High junior Donna Wilcox does more than just enjoy them.

She's a confirmed believer in the pen being mightier and her recent editorial ("Take The Citizenship Quiz —How Do You Measure") is black and white proof.

Miss Wilcox, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Wilcox, 259 E. Mithoff-st, recently won the "Freedom Shrine" award for her editorial which appeared in the South High "Optic" student publication.

The award was presented by John D. Anglim, president of the Exchange Club, which sponsored the competition. South High placed first in a field of 13 editorial finalists from Columbus high schools.

More recently, South High Principal H. D. Swain announced that Miss Wilcox would be presented with an engraved plaque at a school assembly scheduled for Friday, May 17.

Soothsayers (All Prophet Group) Predicted Election

Outcome Of Primary As Thought

Pre-election sages emerged unscarred and unbowed from a Columbus Primary Election that followed prognostications right down the line.

The predicted number of voters reported to the polls. The eight favored council candidates advanced to the November run-offs. And the charter amendment issues proved every bit as confusing as was forecast. (The "franchise grants" amendment lost by 82 votes, while the amendment to equalize improvement assessments won by 1,613 votes.)

Mrs. Golda May Edmonston (incumbent council president), 17,964; Ronald E. DeVore (I), 17,007; Roland A. Sedgwick (I), 16,966; Harvey H. Alston, 16,868; Rev. Russell M. Jones, 13,647; William P. Hoermle (I), 13,445; Maurice D. Portman, 9,296; Joseph Jennings Murphy, 8,001; Carl G. Thompson, 6,212; and Ronald Tuggle, 4,957. Total unofficial votes count was 34,982.

All excepting Thompson and Tuggle will go on the ballot for the November nonpartisan election to select the four councilmen.

The council results foretell a hard, uphill struggle by Columbus Democrats to maintain or improve their present representation on council. The four top finishers are Republican-supported candidates, and there is a 3,221-vote margin between the fourth and fifth finishers in the primary race.

The four candidates selected in November will join three members whose terms run through 1965. They are William R. Fornof (D), Tom Moody (R), and Robert T. Southwick (R).

DIANA IS QUEEN OF THE MAY...

People In Dark On Amendment Mayor Believes

"Traditionally, when people do not understand an amendment, they vote against it." So said a disappointed Columbus Mayor W. Ralston Westlake of the defeated "franchise grant" charter amendment, defeated by an 81-vote margin out of 26,305 total votes.

The charter amendment was backed by the mayor as a means of expanding services and facilities of the municipal light plant. The expansion was aimed at providing Columbus with additional revenue to illuminate the two-thirds of city streets now without lights.

"It will certainly make it more difficult to expand our street lighting program," Mayor Westlake said. He added: "I definitely feel that it was such a complicated problem that the people did not understand it."

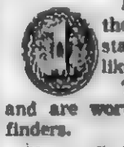
The mayor expressed satisfaction with passage of the second charter issue. The amendment called for equalizing assessments between petition signers and nonsigners when both groups benefit from sidewalk, sewer or water main improvements.

The issue, solidly endorsed, won by a comparatively slim margin, 13,937 to 12,324.

Mayor Westlake cited the thin "easement equalizer" win as another example of people voting "no" when they do not understand an amendment.

The mayor said he had "no statement at this time" on what effect the election might have on the pre-election offer of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. to reduce electric rates by $3.5 million in exchange for a municipal light plant expansion feasability survey. The C&SOE had offered to contribute $50,000 toward the cost of the independent survey.

The mayor added that he has no plans to re-submit the issue at the November General Election.



$160 At Stake In Confederate Jackpot

This newspaper—the very one you are holding—may be worth $160.

One—just one—of the 75,000 Hartley Newspapers that came off the press this week was stamped with the "Confederate 5" emblem. Clearly visible, it is hand stamped in a brightly colored ink, and appears in one of the ads.

Here's the payoff: if you find this "5" it's worth $5 in "Confederate" cash, good for $5 worth of merchandise from any advertiser appearing in a Hartley Newspaper during the week the finder wishes to spend it. If you are a paid subscriber, its value zooms to the jackpot of $160.

But that's not all! Twenty of the Hartley Newspapers were stamped with the numeral "1" like this:

They're in colored ink, too, and are worth $1 in trade to the lucky finders.

If you find any of these emblems, take or mail the entire page to 2465 W. Broad-st. It must be received before noon, Monday, May 13.

Three Hartley Newspaper readers decreased last week's winnings by three "Confederate" dollars. Winners of one "Confederate" dollar were Edwin Powers, 294 S. Richardson-av; Mrs. Caroline Ballinger, 600 Greenlawn-av, and Mrs. Edna Minshall, 91 N. Ogden-av. This means the 22 "Confederate" dollars not claimed in last week's contest have been added to last week's jackpot of $138 to make the new total of $160.

Hartley Newspaper employes and carriers or members of their families are not eligible to participate in this contest. The finder of the "5" emblem must take the paper to the Hartley Newspaper office in person to claim his winnings. For further information call the Hartley Newspapers office, BR. 4-1155.

HOW'S YOUR BOX SCORE?

Jeweler Uses Unique Credit Rating System

By JANE ROBINSON

You can have too many children and too many charge accounts for the good of your credit.

But the more bank accounts, the merrier.

This was the conclusion Lou Klass drew from a chart in a trade magazine several years ago, and his experience with the "credit-point" system as owner of the Hilltop Jewelry and Typewriter Service has backed it up.

Too often credit is extended upon a hunch, a pretty face or a fish-tailed automobile parked nearby.

But Klass asks a few questions, nimbly adds a few figures and either you're IN or OUT.

Though being under 40 won't damage your credit rating too much, a score of less than 40 points and it's thumbs down on any buy-now, pay-later plans.

This system takes in consideration a dozen aspects of your life, and assumes your score will drop you into a category where others with like tallies have proved to be either good or bad accounts.

If you own your home you are off to a good start with nine fat points. There's on'- a measly three if you rent, though living with relatives earns you six.

Now it is important just how long you've lived in that home. Over three years and you're a fair-haired boy with another 10 points. Although some credit is given for less tenancy, there's not a single point rung up if you've moved in the last six months.

And you better have a telephone in your name if you want the big seven, though one in the house will give you three.

A million dollars tucked away in the mattress won't help you, but there's seven points for a checking or saving account, and ten for both.

Highest credit rating begins at age 40, but slips away for 10 years after 50, only to rebound after 60. With no score given the under-ager, you can buy six points with your age in the score of years until 40 when it hits nine. After the next decade it slips down three notches, to level off at eight ater 60.

You can admit to five or six children and come off reasonably well with three points, bunt fewer double it; more and you've earned another goose egg.

A dim view is also taken of too many charge accounts. One will earn you five precious points, two will give you eight, but more than that and the figure is back down to six.

This nosy system not only evaluates what you do, but how long you've done it. A profession or managerial post tops the list of occupations, with skilled and unskilled labor running closely behind. Clerical, sales and service people are four points better off than the unemployed, even though the idle may spend time clipping coupons.

But if you want to pass this test, don't go job-hopping too often. A new job and another zero. From one to two years gets you four, twice that for the next three years, and a whopping 11 after five years.

And don't change spouses. But if you do, get a nice tidy divorce, not an informal or legal separation. The eight points for being married is halved for the person who is divorced and is non-existent for the separated, while bachelorhood is worth six.

When asked to give a reference, forget the loan company — that kind is only good for three, while a previous account or a major firm will get you nine. Finally, whether the credit bureau rates you can be the telling point, pushing you either into the high, clean air over 50 with a husky 12 or a "very good," or kicking away your dreams of saying, "Just charge it," with no points at all or "slow."

With 17 years of credit experience behind him, Klass relies implicitly on this system. Neither old clothes or a fancy address impresses him. All he wants to know is "Do you add up?"

With a 40 you're on your way, a 50 and your credit's healthy, and over 60 you are in like Flynn.

EZ Repair Service Does Plumbing, Gas Repair Jobs

"I didn't even know how to hold a hammer until I went to work for my father-in-law", Those were the words of a man who is now the owner and manager of one of Columbus' most successful and progressive plumbing repair services.

Sidney Hirsh, owner of EZ Gas Leaks and Plumbing Repair Service, 228 S. Champion-av, had just completed his first year in the College of Commerce at Ohio State University as an accounting student when he was called upon to help his father-in-law look after several properties in the Columbus area.

Hirsh said "I noticed we were spending more and more time and money with plumbers and repair men in connection with our properties, so I decided to form my own company and take over some of the work."

In 1956 Hirsh started the EZ Repair Service and hired one man to help him. Exchanging his white shirt and tie for a plumber's apron he went to work on each repair job himself and soon the business was expanding.

Today EZ Repair has a staff of three plumbers, a shop foreman, two helpers and a ditch-digger to take care of all repair work. The company stresses repair jobs only and specializes in plumbing and gas leak work.

Manager Hirsh recommended that anyone contemplating furnace cleaning and the checking of gas appliance lines have the work done as early as possible. He added that many persons put off the needed repairs and checking until the fall and this causes a rush for service at the last minute. This can be avoided by doing the job as early as possible in preperation for the coming year, he said.

In many cases EZ Repair Service has worked closely with the Columbus Fire Prevention Bureau in repair of dangerous carbon monoxide leaks in homes and buildings.

For this reason the company has a great deal of experience in finding the dangerous leaks and repairing them before serious trouble is caused.

"Anyone suspecting a carbon monoxide leak should have it checked without delay", said Hirsh, "this could be the repair job that will save a life".

With a staff of seven trained men and repair facilities covering over 5000 square feet of floor space EZ Repair Service is fully equipped to take care of any type of plumbing or gas repair job.

Trained repairmen are available at any hour of the night or day by calling 253-7717 to take care of any emergency repair jobs that might be needed.

Local Realtors Will Join In Celebration Of Realtor Week

Nearly 1,700 area realtors and salesmen will join with over 73,000 realtors across the country in celebrating Realtor Week, May 12 through 18, according to Paul J. Falco, president of the Columbus Board of Realtors.

"A realtor," Falco said, "is pledged to follow a strict code of ethics that is enforced through the local board of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

"This code of ethics that realtors are pledged to uphold is not a vague chant with loosely-worded ideas that may be interpreted almost any way the reader wants," Falco continued, "it is a specific code with 30 articles that state exactly what a realtor may and may not do in order to remain a member of NAREB and the Columbus Board. And, of these 30 articles, 20 are designed to protect the public."

The primary obligation of the realtor under this code is to keep the interests of both the buyer and the seller uppermost in mind during a real estate transaction.

The term realtor was adopted by NAREB in 1916, and members have exclusive right to use the term which is registered in the United States Patent Office. The parent organization, founded in 1908, has offices in Chicago, Ill., and Washington, D.C.

Realtors are kept aware of changes in real estate law, mortgage rates, buying trends and innumerable other business factors, through publications of the association's professional staff, which maintains close contact with such developments throughout the country.

Buckeye Record Club Makes Stereo Music Available

To establish a new and unique service for the people of Central Ohio, the Buckeye Record Club, Inc., was established in January, 1963, 4150 E. Main-st.

The basic idea, devised by club president, Bob Dixon, is to fill the needs to area stereo music fans. Plans are designed for individuals who already own a stereo set or for those who wish to purchase a set and join the club's record program.

Record selections are made from a list, including at least 100 records from more than 12 different labels, sent to members of the club each month.

In some cases the club makes it possible to purchase a stereo set and also provides records that are included in the membership cost. Other features include the privilege of buying stereo accessories at discount prices through the club. For those already owning a stereo set the club will furnish records at discount prices.

A locally-owned and controlled company, the Buckeye Record Club offers membership to any interested person and will be happy to make arrangements with anyone contacting the local office at 237-5321.

STEADY, OLD GIRL. Sgt. Robert Potteiger holds aloft one of the great horned owls that he has imported to Lockbourne AFB. Discouraged with more conventional methods of pigeon control in Jumbo hangar, the sergeant is baby-sitting "John and Jim," or more recently "Joan and Jim," with fond hopes that their presence will discourage doves from homesteading in the rafters of the five-story structure.

LAFB SERGEANT BECOMES HORNED OWL NURSE MAID

By JANE ROBINSON

But Sgt. Robert Potteiger certainly does.

He is head of production control at Lockbourne AFB and as his problems began to pile up when literally thousands of pigeons decided to roost in Jumbo hangar, he ceased to be a bird-lover.

His commanding officer didn't quite think the sergeant had flipped when Potteiger requested a couple of great horned owls, but he had a reasonable doubt.

It seems that last winter a snowy owl dropped in the hangar for a winter rest, and the pigeons took off like big fat oirds do.

They did not look forward to being the entree on any owl's menu.

Until the weather became warmer, and the wise old owl problems were solved.

with the ingenuity of the Air Force he requested a couple of great horned owls which he would nurture and lure into taking up permanent residence in the hangar.

The Ohio Division of Wildlife sent John and Jim, and the sergeant began his additional duties of nursemaid to a couple of real odd-bills.

Being hangar mates with jet bombers could be upsetting, so Potteiger built a bungalow high in the rafters to confine the pair until they become acclimated.

Knowing that many animals can be tamed by a free handout, the sergeant appealed to the boys in rodent control to save him a few live rats a day. These his charges polish off with baleful looks at their benefactor.

Rapidly becoming an authority on the life and loves of an owl, Potteiger is considering renaming John, Joan. Joan's lighter plumage is one of the indications that makes re-naming advisable.

Delighted with the prospects on increasing his flock, Potteiger cannot be blamed for hoping the creatures are self-supporting before there are little mouths to be fed.

The job of feeding baby birds is a full-time job, and Potteiger still has a job in running the hangar.

This week the "owl man," as he has been dubbed by his men, is busy building a roost over the shining hulks of the jets.

"I hope they will get turned around right and sleep during the day and swoop around scaring pigeons at night," he explained.

After all, it can be a little disconcerting for a jet mechanic to be dive bombed by a screeching taloned nightmare zeroing in at about 35 miles per hour.

Though Joan has a rather appealing look (if you go for bright yellow eyes and a beak to match), Joe is an old pirate with raw malevolence in his eye.

In the meantime, Potteiger claims he's "having a ball." Let's hope that ball doesn't bounce the wrong way, and the owls take to the woodland in preference to the Welfare State they are now enjoying.

There's always a few rugged individualists left, and Joe looks as if he's just such a bird. But maybe the love of a good woman and family responsibilities will tie him down.

Retires From Ohio State Life

Employes of the Ohio State Life Insurance Co., 336 E. Broad-st, gathered in the company recreation room on Apr. 30 to pay special tribute to Gladys Behm, 516 Elm-st, Groveport, who retired from the company after more than 45 years of service.

Gladys joined the local insurance company on Sept. 17, 1917, following graduation from Groveport High School. At that time only 12 people were employed by the company. Today there are more than 200.

County To Get Six Percent Of State's New Road Work

Ohio Highway Director Pearl Masheter has announced a five-year state-wide road building program calling for total expenditures of more than $1.7 billion dollars.

Franklin County will share in allocation of projects to the extent of about $123.6 million, or more than six percent of the statewide total.

The programmed highway projects for Franklin County will include a heavy concentration in interstate construction for which the federal government pays 90 percent of the cost.

During the biennium beginning July 1, 1963 the program calls for construction contracts covering 14.64 miles of interstate at a total cost of $42,468,000. The five-year interstate program calls for contracting of 63.75 miles at a total estimated cost of $123,594,000.

The Franklin County program also includes 6.45 miles of non-interstate work within municipalities at an estimated cost of $5,034,000, and 8.08 miles of rural road construction at an estimated $3,044,000 total cost.

State Highway Department programming indicates contracts for all Franklin County interstate construction by the end of fiscal year 1970, (June 30, 1970.)

HOW'S YOUR BOX SCORE?

Jeweler Uses Unique Credit Rating System

By JANE ROBINSON

You can have too many children and too many charge accounts for the good of your credit.

But the more bank accounts, the merrier.

This was the conclusion Lou Klass drew from a chart in a trade magazine several years ago, and his experience with the "credit-point" system as owner of the Hilltop Jewelry and Typewriter Service has backed it up.

Too often credit is extended upon a hunch, a pretty face or a fish-tailed automobile parked nearby.

But Klass asks a few questions, nimbly adds a few figures and either you're IN or OUT.

Though being under 40 won't damage your credit rating too much, a score of less than 40 points and it's thumbs down on any buy-now, pay-later plans.

This system takes in consideration a dozen aspects of your life, and assumes your score will drop you into a category where others with like tallies have proved to be either good or bad accounts.

If you own your home you are off to a good start with nine fat points. There's only a measly three if you rent, though living with relatives earns you six.

Now it is important just how long you've lived in that home. Over three years and you're a fair-haired boy with another 10 points. Although some credit is given for less tenancy, there's not a single point rung up if you've moved in the last six months.

And you better have a telephone in your name if you want the big seven, though one in the house will give you three.

A million dollars tucked away in the mattress won't help you, but there's seven points for a checking or saving account, and ten for both.

Highest credit rating begins at age 40, but slips away for 10 years after 50, only to rebound after 60. With no score given the under-ager, you can buy six points with your age in the score of years until 40 when it hits nine. After the next decade it slips down three notches, to level off at eight ater 60.

You can admit to five or six children and come off reasonably well with three points, bunt fewer double it; more and you've earned another goose egg.

A dim view is also taken of too many charge accounts. One will earn you five precious points, two will give you eight, but more than that and the figure is back down to six.

This nosy system not only evaluates what you do, but how long you've done it. A profession or managerial post tops the list of occupations, with skilled and unskilled labor running closely behind. Clerical, sales and service people are four points better off than the unemployed, even though the idle may spend time clipping coupons.

But if you want to pass this test, don't go job-hopping too often. A new job and another zero. From one to two years gets you four, twice that for the next three years, and a whopping 11 after five years.

And don't change spouses. But if you do, get a nice tidy divorce, not an informal or legal separation. The eight points for being married is halved for the person who is divorced and is non-existent for the separated, while bachelorhood is worth six.

When asked to give a reference, forget the loan company — that kind is only good for three, while a previous account or a major firm will get you nine. Finally, whether the credit bureau rates you can be the telling point, pushing you either into the high, clean air over 50 with a husky 12 or a "very good," or kicking away your dreams of saying, "Just charge it," with no points at all or "slow."

With 17 years of credit experience behind him, Klass relies implicitly on this system. Neither old clothes or a fancy address impresses him. All he wants to know is "Do you add up?"

With a 40 you're on your way, a 50 and your credit's healthy, and over 60 you are in like Flynn.

EZ Repair Service Does Plumbing, Gas Repair Jobs

"I didn't even know how to hold a hammer until I went to work for my father-in-law". Those were the words of a man who is now the owner and manager of one of Columbus' most successful and progressive plumbing repair service.

Sidney Hirsh, owner of EZ Gas Leaks and Plumbing Repair Service, 228 S. Champion-av, had just completed his first year in the College of Commerce at Ohio State University as an accounting student when he was called upon to help his father-in-law look after several properties in the Columbus area.

Hirsh said "I noticed we were spending more and more time and money with plumbers and repair men in connection with our properties, so I decided to form my own company and take over some of the work."

In 1956 Hirsh started the EZ Repair Service and hired one man to help him. Exchanging his white shirt and tie for a plumber's apron he went to work on each repair job himself and soon the business was expanding.

Today EZ Repair has a staff of three plumbers, a shop foreman, two helpers and a ditch-digger to take care of all repair work. The company stresses repair jobs only and specializes in plumbing and gas leak work.

Manager Hirsh recommended that anyone contemplating furnace cleaning and the checking of gas appliance lines have the work done as early as possible. He added that many persons put off the needed repairs and checking until the appliance is needed in the fall and this causes a rush for service at the last minute. This can be avoided by doing the job as early as possible in preperation for the coming year, he said.

In many cases EZ Repair Service has worked closely with the Columbus Fire Prevention Bureau in repair of dangerous carbon monoxide leaks in homes and buildings.

For this reason the company has a great deal of experience in finding the dangerous leaks and repairing them before serious trouble is caused.

"Anyone suspecting a carbon monoxide leak should have it checked without delay", said Hirsh, "this could be the repair job that will save a life".

With a staff of seven trained men and repair facilities covering over 5000 square feet of floor space EZ Repair Service is fully equipped to take care of any type of plumbing or gas repair job.

Trained repairmen are available at any hour of the night or day by calling 253-7717 to take care of any emergency repair jobs that might be needed.

Local Realtors Will Join In Celebration Of Realtor Week

Nearly 1,700 area realtors and salesmen will join with over 73,000 realtors across the country in celebrating Realtor Week, May 12 through 18, according to Paul J. Falco, president of the Columbus Board of Realtors.

"A realtor," Falco said, "is pledged to follow a strict code of ethics that is enforced through the local board of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

"This code of ethics that realtors are pledged to uphold is not a vague chant with loosely-worded ideas that may be interpreted almost any way the reader wants," Falco continued, "it is a specific code with 30 articles that state exactly what a realtor may and may not do in order to remain a member of NAREB and the Columbus Board. And, of these 30 articles, 20 are designed to protect the public."

The primary obligation of the realtor under this code is to keep the interests of both the buyer and the seller uppermost in mind during a real estate transaction.

The term realtor was adopted by NAREB in 1916, and members have exclusive right to use the term which is registered in the United States Patent Office. The parent organization, founded in 1908, has offices in Chicago, Ill., and Washington, D.C.

Realtors are kept aware of changes in real estate law, mortgage rates, buying trends and innumerable other business factors, through publications of the association's professional staff, which maintains close contact with such developments throughout the country.

Buckeye Record Club Makes Stereo Music Available

To establish a new and unique service for the people of Central Ohio, the Buckeye Record Club, Inc., was established in January, 1963, 4150 E. Main-st.

The basic idea, devised by club president, Bob Dixon, is to fill the needs to area stereo music fans. Plans are designed for individuals who already own a stereo set or for those who wish to purchase a set and join the club's record program.

Record selections are made from a list, including at least 100 records from more than 12 different labels, sent to members of the club each month.

In some cases the club makes it possible to purchase a stereo set and also provides records that are included in the membership cost. Other features include the privilege of buying stereo accessories at discount prices through the club. For those already owning a stereo set the club will furnish records at discount prices.

A locally-owned and controlled company, the Buckeye Record Club offers membership to any interested person and will be happy to make arrangements with anyone contacting the local office at 237-5321.

STEADY, OLD GIRL. Sgt. Robert Potteiger holds aloft one of the great horned owls that he has imported to Lockbourne AFB. Discouraged with more conventional methods of pigeon control in Jumbo hangar, the sergeant is baby-sitting "John and Jim," or more recently "Joan and Jim," with fond hopes that their presence will discourage doves from homesteading in the rafters of the five-story structure.

LAFB SERGEANT BECOMES HORNED OWL NURSE MAID

By JANE ROBINSON

But Sgt. Robert Potteiger certainly does.

He is head of production control at Lockbourne AFB and as his problems began to pile up when literally thousands of pigeons decided to roost in Jumbo hangar, he ceased to be a bird-lover.

His commanding officer didn't quite think the sergeant had flipped when Potteiger requested a couple of great horned owls, but he had a reasonable doubt.

It seems that last winter a snowy owl dropped in the hangar for a winter rest, and the pigeons took off like big fat oirds do.

They did not look forward to being the entree on any owl's menu.

Until the weather became warmer, and the wise old owl problems were solved.

with the ingenuity of the Air Force he requested a couple of great horned owls which he would nurture and lurg into taking up permanent residence in the hangar.

The Ohio Division of Wildlife sent John and Jim, and the sergeant began his additional duties of nursemaid to a couple of real odd-bills.

Being hangar mates with jet bombers could be upsetting, so Potteiger built a bungalow high in the rafters to confine the pair until they become acclimated.

Knowing that many animals can be tamed by a free handout, the sergeant appealed to the boys in rodent control to save him a few live rats a day. These his charges polish off with baleful looks at their benefactor.

Rapidly becoming an authority on the life and loves of an owl, Potteiger is considering renaming John, Joan. Joan's lighter plumage is one of the indications that makes re-naming advisable.

Delighted with the prospects on increasing his flock, Potteiger cannot be blamed for hoping the creatures are self-supporting before there are little mouths to be fed.

The job of feeding baby birds is a full-time job, and Potteiger still has a job in running the hangar.

This week the "owl man," as he has been dubbed by his men, is busy building a roost over the shining hulks of the jets.

"I hope they will get turned around right and sleep during the day and swoop around scaring pigeons at night," he explained.

After all, it can be a little disconcerting for a jet mechanic to be dive bombed by a screeching taloned nightmare zeroing in at about 35 miles per hour.

Though Joan has a rather appealing look (if you go for bright yellow eyes and a beak to match), Joe is an old pirate with raw malevolence in his eye.

In the meantime, Potteiger claims he's "having a ball." Let's hope that ball doesn't bounce the wrong way, and the owls take to the woodland in preference to the Welfare State they are now enjoying.

There's always a few rugged individualists left, and Joe looks as if he's just such a bird. But maybe the love of a good woman and family responsibilities will tie him down.

Retires From Ohio State Life

Employes of the Ohio State Life Insurance Co., 336 E. Broad-st, gathered in the company recreation room on Apr. 30 to pay special tribute to Gladys Behm, 516 Elm-st, Groveport, who retired from the company after more than 45 years of service.

Gladys joined the local insurance company on Sept. 17, 1917, following graduation from Groveport High School. At that time only 12 people were employed by the company. Today there are more than 200.

County To Get Six Percent Of State's New Road Work

Ohio Highway Director Pearl Masheter has announced a five-year state-wide road building program calling for total expenditures of more than $1.7 billion dollars.

Franklin County will share in allocation of projects to the extent of about $123.6 million, or more than six percent of the statewide total.

The programmed highway projects for Franklin County will include a heavy concentration in interstate construction for which the federal government pays 90 percent of the cost.

During the biennium beginning July 1, 1963 the program calls for construction contracts covering 14.64 miles of interstate at a total cost of $42,468,000. The five-year interstate program calls for contracting of 63.75 miles at a total estimated cost of $123,594,000.

The Franklin County program also includes 6.45 miles of non-interstate work within municipalities at an estimated cost of $5,034,000, and 8.08 miles of rural road construction at an estimated $3,044,000 total cost.

State Highway Department programming indicates contracts for all Franklin County interstate construction by the end of fiscal year 1970, (June 30, 1970.)

Conservation was the basic theme for the Mohawk District spring camporee, which was held May 3, 4 and 5 at the Southeast Conservation Club.

The following troops participated in the overnight: 9, 23, 56, 77, 88, 92, 31, 244, 511, 230, 530, 243, 526, a nd Posts 2 and 77. Troop 77 won the plaque for the cleanest campsite in the entire district. This is the second straight overnight they have won this award.

One of the main projects was work on improving the lake at the club. This lake is claimed to be the oldest natural lake in Ohio, formed during the glacial period. Another project was the planting of 300 trees, 200 done on Saturday and 100 on Sunday.

The main feature of the campfire on Saturday night was an Order of the Arrow tapout. Twenty-three boys and leaders were recognized as candidates for membership in the order.

21 Barrett Students On 'Test Team'

Twenty-one Barrett Junior High students formed an "Ohio State Scholarship Team" that participated in the final district-state scholarship tests Saturday on the Buckeye campus.

They included:

SCIENCE 9 — Bill Davy, Harold Mullins and Tom Mayfield. LATIN 1—Mary Pritchard, Linda Lumbert and Sandra Clark. LATIN II — Tim O'Neill, Arlene Eubanks and Don Tate. SPANISH 1 — Diego Arduini, Nancy Esselstein and Janet Trott.

ENGLISH 9 — Jean Cox, Doris Oursler and Donna Dent. GEOMETRY — Doug Meszaros, Bob Yunker and John Workmaster. ALGEBRA I — Claudia Dunigan, Bill Lawhorn and Sharon Cunningham.

"Noting that only the better students participated in the Central Ohio Preliminary test," said Barrett Principal Ken Olbert, "It is of interest to underscore the achievements of Davy, who scored in top one per cent, Miss Dunigan in the top two per cent, and Arduini in the top five per cent."

In some subject areas, more than 18,000 top students were tested from the public and parochial schools of Central Ohio. No member of the Barrett team scored in the lower 50 per cent of pupils tested.

"I am once again pleased to announce these splendid results," Olbert added. "Year in and year out Barrett scholars demonstrate through these state-wide, rigorous examinations that they can compete with any pupils anywhere."

SpittlebugShould Be Exterminated Now; Ag Experts

Now is the time to kill spittlebugs. The pin-head sized, orange-colored nymphs suck the sap from weeds, grass and legumes and form masses of spittle on the plants where they live.

Severe infestations have reduced hay yields as much as 50 per cent when not controlled, according to County Agent George Ganyard.

Adult populations of the insect were low last fall but it will be good business for farmers to check their meadows now and if there is an average of one nymph per stalk, it will pay to spray the field.

Lindane or methoxychlor may be used. One pint of 25 per cent emulsion concentrate of methoxychlor per acre in at least 10 gallons (20 gallons is better) of water is recommended.

The earlier the spraying is done after the nymphs are discovered, the greater the benefit from spraying.

These precautions are important to be sure no illegal residues remain after spraying:

1. Allow 30 days after applying Lindane before pasturing or cutting for hay.

2. Allow seven days before harvest if methoxychlor is used.

First point in the U.S. to catch the rays of the rising sun is Mount Katahdin, Me.

Fungi have no green coloring matter and therefore they cannot manufacture their own food, even though they are plants.

A Crown for Mother

You, as a Mother, are honored by your children on a special day — Mother's Day. How the little things they make for you with their own small hands please you and warm your heart.

It warms and quickens the heart of God when you honor Him on His special day. "Remember the Sabbath Day, to keep it holy." Exodus 20:8. Worship God on this next Sunday in the church of your choice. We should honor our loving Heavenly Father even as we expect our children to honor us.

Attend church on Mother's Day.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

South Runners Place Third At Hilltop Relays

South's Bulldog runners, unable to gain more than one first-place finish, placed third in Friday's Hilltop Relays at West's Magly Field.

Junior discus man Joe Cook picked up the Rebs' lone blue ribbon with a toss of 141'8". South collected two runner-up finishes in the high jump and two-mile relay but the Bulldogs' six third-place awards told the scoring story.

SOUTH GATHERED a total of 47 1/3 points as compared with winning East's 95 and runnerup Central's 69 5/6.

The Rams' lone wins came in the 880 relay (Mike Gray, George Maurer, Tim Sauer and Roger Whaley), 100-yard dash (Whaley) and discus toss (Maurer).

NEITHER ST. Marys nor County League mate Rosary could place well at Saturday's Canal Winchester Relays, won by Westerville (54) as both teams tied for ninth place with seven points apiece.

Third-place finishes went to Rosary's Jim Groce in the 440 and the Rams' George Maurer in the discus competition.

Both teams will compete tomorrow in the Franklin County Meet at Canal Winchester. The Crusaders are the meet's defending champions. Action gets underway at 4 p.m. and continues into the evening.

Rebs Bounced In AA Play

By ART KIENZLE

Action was light for coach Bob Nolan's South High baseballers this week as the Rebs fought a losing battle with Upper Arlington for a tournament berth, 6-3, at South.

The Rebs kept their game with Arlington close (3-3) for six innings but gave way in the seventh frame for three Golden Bear runs to lose the thriller, 6-3.

STARTER BOB White and Terry Emrich gave up their biggest hit output of the season as the Bear hitters grabbed 11 bingles.

In other area action, Marion-Franklin was victimized by a patented Whitehall comeback as the Rams burned the Devils, 4-3, in extra frames.

M-F MOUNDSMAN John Hopgood, staked to a 3-0 first inning lead, appeared to have the Rams stymied until the final inning when Dave Millington's two-run single knotted the score and brought on Gene DeBolt.

The extra frame was unlucky for the Devils as Jerry Ramsey rode home on a M-F bobble for the winning tally.

Linden sidelined Aquinas by the same 4-3 score, scoring its winning runs in the sixth after Gary Mangini's three-run homer had given the Irish a 3-2 lead one inning earlier.

McKinley moundsmen Bob Farington and Lyn Fitzer held the Terriers to three hits.

Hitting Heavy As Old Timers Open Loop Play

In the opening games of the South Side Old Timers Slo-pitch League, Babberts blasted the South Club, 19-6.

Planks came through with a 14-9 win over Schoenling. Bow Wow blasted the Arena, 16-10, and Duquesne won over Blatz, 13-8, as they came from behind to win.

DON'S INN won out in a close contest, edging Delbels, 15-14.

There was a total of 16 home runs in the league's opening action. Cliff Antes and Ed Schaefer both homered for Don's as Bill Schwall hit two round trippers for Delbels.

Jim Taylor hit the lone homer of the game for the Duquesne team. Tony Oddi of Blatz collected five for five for the losers.

PAUL BRAUN homered for Babberts in its win over the South Club.

Hugh Cleary, Bill Morin and Gene Perry all collected home runs as their team lost to the Bow Wow. Don Moore hit a four bagger for the winners.

Mum's The Word But— Muskies Now At Dillon

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROB COCHRAN

One of the worst-kept fishing secrets of the season is that muskies have been hitting like crazy for more than three weeks at Dillon Dam. This new reservoir in Licking and Muskingum counties has been attracting fishermen from all over Central Ohio.

Muskellunge fishermen are naturally a closed-mouth lot but the word leaked out last fall that a lot of rather skinny muskies were being caught. Most of these were thrown back as they went up to about 24 inches in length, and were just getting to the size where they were fun to catch. But the fish have been taking in calories since then, and some are now 30 inches or so long and weigh seven to eight pounds.

THESE ARE not trophies, but they are keepers and the race is on. We are a little slow in reporting it, but it's not easy to wring pet fishing locations out of a lot of anglers.

Most everybody knows about it now, and yet a fisherman will tell you in hushed tones about seeing four muskies on a stringer. It still takes some urging before he will say the magic words "Dillon Dam." Habits of a lifetime are difficult to give up.

If you know anything about muskies, you will realize what a terrific catch four fish would be. Sometimes good fishermen go 10, 20 or more years without landing a single muskellunge.

THE STORY is often told of a man spending every vacation for years in Wisconsin, hoping to catch a muskie—then as an old man he finally succeeds. These are rather rare experiences, for with unlimited patience and persistence you can catch this moody monster. Maybe not the first year or so, but they can be caught.

Several places are known as "muskie capitals," including a section of Wisconsin, Chatauqua Lake in Western New York and the St. Lawrence River. It may be hard for the old timers to believe, but Ohio is giving them a run for their money since the Division of Wildlife embarked on its muskie stocking program several years ago.

About five years back, Rocky Fork Lake was hot with up to 50 muskies being taken on a good weekend. Then the focus moved to Leesville Lake, although the fishing was not quite so frantic. Last year Piedmont stole the limelight, and apparently is continuing to offer good muskie fishing this spring. Last year the state record for muskellunge was broken by a 31-pound fish taken from Deer Creek Reservoir.

THERE ARE NO world records being set here, and the fishing is not usually easy, but if catching a muskie is your goal your chances are very good in your home state. Almost all of the muskellunge taken in Ohio are caught on artificial lures, and the bigger the better seems to be the rule. A lot of smaller muskies are caught by accident on bass tackle, but it is rare if you hold a big one with such puny equipment.

To take the sport seriously you should have a rather heavy rod with plenty of "backbone." You should use line of 18 and 20-pound test, a wire leader and a sturdy casting or spinning reel. Preference of lures varies greatly, although the larger size Bomber is popular some places.

If you want to tackle the tough one, catch a muskie. And the best place to go right now is Dillon.

Indians Invite Hi Schoolboys For BB Clinic

The Cleveland Indians have announced plans for their Second Annual High School Baseball Clinic scheduled for the Stadium on Saturday morning, June 1, at 10:00 a.m.

Manager Gabe Paul stated that the entire Indian squad would be on hand to assist in the demonstrations and instructions for each position.

GEORGE KOZAK, who is in charge of the ticket requests for the clinic, announced that 120 Ohio high schools already have mailed in their orders which totaled 3,219 as of Monday morning.

Last year the total number of schools represented was 107 with 2,743 players taking part in the clinic.

Additional orders are still being accepted and high school coaches and officials may obtain tickets by writing to Kozak at the Cleveland Board of Education.

Following the clinic, players and coaches will be guests of the Indians for the afternoon game against the New York Yankees.

Marine Fitness Meet Set May 18 At F-H

A youth physical fitness program, sponsored by the Belleau Woods Detachment of the Marine Corps League will be held Saturday, May 18, at Franklin Heights Stadium.

All high schools in the state were invited to participate and those in the southern half of the state will compete in Columbus.

A MEET will be held in Cleveland Stadium for those in Northern Ohio. All teams will perform prescribed exercises including:

1. Set-ups
2. Pull-ups
3. Shuttle run
4. Standing broad jump
5. 600 yard run-walk

All teams will be judged by an established scoring chart. An estimated 50 schools will compete, each fielding a five-man team. State-wide, approximately 140,000 boys will be involved in this program.

Both team and individual scores will be tallied and high teams and individuals will be awarded trophies. All who qualify will receive patches to acknowledge their achievements.

This is part of a national program, endorsed by the President of the United States, to encourage physical fitness among the youth of America.

Tribe Fans—Greatest Tragedy Since Hamlet

Mr. Webster lists addiction as "the condition of giving assent to a habit or inclination." For all the verbosity of his 1,724 pages of New World Dictionary, that's the best word we could find to describe our long-standing love affair with the Cleveland Indians.

In simpliest terms, we're "hooked" on the Tribe.

THE CONDITION isn't always fatal, and although it's usually seasonal (late March to early September), it's practically incurable and almost sure to invoke pain somewhere between July 4 and mid-August.

The malady is common in other forms, usually depending on geographical location. The only area we've found where the disease is completely painless is the Bronx borough of New York City.

The first symptoms become obvious when the infected person tears through the morning sports pages until he finds the box or line score characteristic of his condition.

THE LATTER stages occur when the victim can't wait for the morning edition and drives downtown for the early press run.

Our psychiatrist sadly explained our particular obsession at a recent session by pointing out that we probably would have eventually grown into a normal adult had it not been for the 1954 World Series Giants over Indians, four games to none).

Now that we think about it, those "days of wine and Rosen" were the golden ones.

THE SADDEST part of the whole situation is that we had done so well "kicking" all those other childhood habits like Roy Rogers and peanut butter sandwiches.

What's roughest about being a diehard Indian fan is the paralleled necessity of becoming a confirmed "Yankee-hater."

Sport magazine will sell millions of copies of its June edition to Indian fans since its cover is emblazoned with the time-tired question, "Is the Yankee Dynasty Dead?"

TRIBE ADDICTS will eagerly read the six-page spread to sadly learn that, despite the fact that six of the seven Yankee farm clubs finished last or second last in '62, there's no spirit of pessimism evident in the organization.

With no more going for them but wishful thinking, faithful Indian followers will be drawn to the Cleveland-NewYork series this summer like the moth to the flame. There are no greater gluttons for punishment.

For example, it is our estimation that when Whitey Ford blasted a home run off Mudcat Grant in a recent TV game, 156 ulcers were born.

IN FACT, had Will Shakespeare been born three centuries later, he more than likely could have toppled his Hamlet or MacBeth effort with a tragedy based on Indian fans.

Yes, we suppose that there are far worse fates in life than being hooked on the Indians. But for year-to-year frustration and life time despair on the installament plan, there's nothing like it.

Junior Jet Applications Available Now At Schools

The Junior Jet League baseball applications will be available in Columbus schools this week for all eight to 12 year old boys who are interested in playing baseball this summer in the Columbus Recreation Department's Junior Jet League baseball program.

The applications should be taken home, filled out by parents and returned to the school by Friday, May 10.

THE COLUMBUS Recreation Department has designed this popular program so that every boy will be on a team and play in every game regardless of size or ability. The main objective is to provide an opportunity for boys to learn how to play baseball by actually playing under qualified leadership with ample safety precaution.

The Columbus Recreation Department provides professional leadership, playing facilities, and the equipment while various civic and fraternal groups supply T-shirts for all players on various leagues.

LAST YEAR the 350 teams in this program played two games a week throughout the summer and involved over 6,000 boys. A greater number of teams is expected to organize this year and several new league areas will be established.

Confederate Money Is Good Again!

Hartley Newspapers Confederate Money–That Is!

Here's How:

Yes, sir, Rebel currency is as good as any present day American money, that is if you are a reader of one of the Hartley Suburban Newspapers.

Each week one insignia like the number 5 at the right will be printed in one ad in some copy of one of the Hartley Newspapers. If your copy is the one, you merely bring or mail it to the office of Hartley Newspapers, 2465 West Broad St. not later than noon Monday following publication and you will be given a Hartley Newspaper $5 Confederate Bill.

But, if your are a paid in advance subscriber or regularly pay your newsboy, you will receive the Jackpot. During the first week of the contest the Jackpot will be worth $25. All unclaimed Confederate money offered each week will be added to the Jackpot the following week. This means that in all probability the jackpot will continue to grow each week until some lucky Hartley Newspaper subscriber cashes it in.

But Confederate money isn't worth anything you say. Not so with Hartley Newspapers' Confederate Money. Just take it to any store advertising in this week's issue of a Hartley Newspaper and it can be spent just like any other currency. Hartley Newspapers in turn will redeem all such currency at full value when turned in by a Hartley Newspaper advertiser. Further details of the contest are explained on Page One of this week's Hartley Newspapers.

If you have been receiving a copy of any of the Hartley Newspapers each week from your carrier or by mail and have not paid your carrier or paid in advance for your mail subscription, you are not eligible to win the jackpot. So, call BR. 4-1155, ask for the Circulation Dept. and determine the status of your subscription right now.

To Be Sure You Don't Miss Your Chance To Cash In On This Big Event, Pay Your Carrier Every Month, Or Mail In Your Subscription Now!

SERIOUS THOUGHT GOES INTO TYPICAL SEMINAR AT WESTGATE SCHOOL.

School Seminars Good Idea

Other users of tax money, from federal on down to local level, should take a cue from the Columbus Board of Education. They should encourage neighborhood seminars on program and finance similar to the three weekly discussions now being held in every school in Columbus.

More than 4,000 responsible citizens—men and women representing the homemakers, industry, labor and the professions—sat down the evening of May 1 to make serious appraisal of our school operation. Two hours were devoted to an analysis of "What The School Dollar Buys Today." This week's topic is "Where the School Dollar Comes From," and the series will conclude on May 15 with "Where Do We Go From Here?"

The seminars serve a good purpose. Public misconceptions of the schools and their problems are cleared up and good suggestions are made which should certainly help shape future planning. School Board President Paul R. Langdon and the administrative staff are to be commended for organizing the sessions.

Why couldn't more "grass roots" talks be held regarding the other things that consume so much of our tax money—highways, the postal service, welfare, foreign aid, and the like? It might just be the step needed to give the government back to the people.

Our Goals, Revisited

It is a good practice to occasionally review and restate one's primary goals and hopes. In this day of anti-this and anti-that it is equally important to know what we are FOR.

These are the basic goals we continue to pursue: The best in supervised recreation programs—Speedy construction of the express system—Proper planning for the orderly growth of communities—The best possible schools for our youngsters—Prohibiting the display and sale of crime and horror publications — increased local interest in local, state and national government.

Our editorial voice will be evident in the many areas related to these broad goals. We will progress only so far as our readers will permit through their interest, criticisms and active support.

A Day For Mom...

A man may work from sun to sun, but a Mother's work is never done.

There is, however, a one-day break each year in the endless routine that faces Mom. Mother's Day is Sunday, May 12.

There is little we can say in tribute to Mother that has not already been more eloquently presented.

There is an abundance of love in our hearts for "Mom," the original earthly source of all our love. God grant that "her day" may remind us to return this love in equal daily installments throughout the year.

An Editor's Outlook ... by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

Our Cuisine Often Downright Criminal

You can eat and drink all the way across America and never be poisoned. You can be sure the water in your glass is free from typhoid. There will be no amoebas on the lettuce. The milk won't give you undulant fever. You can forget the injunctions, observed by wise travelers in most of the world, against swallowing anything that hasn't been peeled or boiled.

Jones

The only tragedy is that you can eat your way across America and not have a single taste thrill. Unless you hunt up the local gourmets who know the spots where the preparation of food is a prideful thing, you can travel from Eastport, Me., to San Ysidro in a bleak wasteland of tired salads, gray roastbeef, doughy breads, mushy vegetables, and rainwater coffee. Yes, you can even pay a cover charge for these delights.

We don't have the worst food in the world. The British have learned how to boil the taste out of everything. The most awful dish on earth is perhaps kidney pie and brussels sprouts in an English railway restaurant. The average hotel dinner in Iran or India or Egypt or New Zealand is a pretty sobering experience.

But America ought to have the best food in the world. We have the best groceries. We have the juciest fruit, the fattest steers, the finest vegetables, the hardest wheat and the most contented cows. Most of the great chefs of the world would give their gold bridgework to have at that supermarket right down the block from your house.

The chief difference between the average French and American cooks is that we make second class dishes out of first class materials and they make first class dishes out of second class materials. They turn stringy beef and even horsemeat into succulence by the adroit use of spices and an understanding of marination. The French housewife may put her soup stock in an old lard can on the back of the stove and it may stay there for weeks. This is not the most sanitary practice. But she can come up with a gravy that sets the angels singing.

We have demeaned the dignity of cooking among our women. Few girls take seriously their high school cooking classes. The superstition has arisen that the young lady who concentrates on kitchen prowess is confessing a lack of sex appeal. It is considered more feminine to try to trap your husband with a beehive hairdo and purple nail polish. The apron and the skillet are supposed to be symbols of desperation.

But the plain fact is that, after the ardor of the honeymoon has cooled, men are best held by a firm grip on their stomachs. It takes a lot to survive TV dinners and instant thisas and thatas.

There is no dearth of fine cookbooks. For a modest price the Mennonites will reveal the secrets of snitz and knep, streusel kuchen, and pfeffernusse. My friend, Herman Deutsch of The New Orleans Item, recently brought out a book containing the great Brennan's recipes, and don't let the pseudo-sophisticates tell you that the top New Orleans restaurants are overrated. They are not. Life Magazine recently published the best-illustrated cookbook ever produced, and the famous "Joy of Cooking" by the late Irma Rombauer justly went through about 15 editions.

The only trouble is that while all women buy these books, few read them. After about the third year of marriage the average American wife has settled her kitchen repertoire on 10 or 15 standard dinners, many of them badly prepared because she got in late from the women's club where they were discussing what can be done about the high divorce rates.

What American husbands need are more wives who can do things with neck meat, chuck roast and rump steak. They need wives who will spend two or three weeks in earnest experimentation and come up with 40 dishes that have a little subtlety.

And wouldn't it be wonderful if those miserable fry cooks who pass themselves off as chefs in thousands of American hotel and motel coffee shops mastered just three fine dishes — one each for breakfast, lunch and dinner?

In driving across the country how'd you like to start the day with huevos rancheros in Pennsylvania, and then go on to a real Poor Boy sandwich lunch in Ohio and supper of roasted calf liver with bearnaise sauce in Indiana? It shouldn't be hard to teach even a hamburger turner how to prepare three things well and voila! you have specialties that can make the house famous.

Let us not be carried away with cynicism. America has more fine restaurants now than it ever had. World War II drove many of the world's great chefs to our shores. One-time gustatory deserts like Pittsburgh, Omaha and Dallas are now familiar with flaming casseroles. And, to be fair, there are many wives who take their kitchen duties seriously and are killing their husbands pleasantly with sweetbreads-in-wine and shoo-fly pie.

Nor would it be wise for a people to worship their bellies too much. If the French had spent half as much time preparing for war as they did hunting truffles, Hitler wouldn't have walked over them.

But we Americans can do a lot better than collision-mat pancakes, cardboard pie crusts and vulcanized chicken. Let's dust off those cookbooks.

Here's the Answer

"Now, Don't Forget Mother's Day!"

ODE TO MOTHER

Mother is a symbol of love,
Devotion with feeling expressed,
A refuge to whom we turned
In joy or in our distress.
Mother to burdens bear,
In silence to endure,
Through trial and tribulation,
In peace or toil of war.

God gave us mother,
His spirit on us to descend,
Through her His love to impart,
A love that never ends.
Mother with motherly wisdom
To answer our requests,
Ever thank God for mother,
For her we were richly blessed.

So let us remember mother
For a debt of love we owe,
By deed or word express it,
On her some gift bestow.

Guest Pulpit . .

Rev. Styres

Jesus astounded his followers when the greatest event in His movement came. They were anxious to break the big resurrection story. His word was "wait." There were yet two great events to come, the Ascension and Pentecost. It seemed reasonable to tell the news as it came in three big stories. Jesus said wait and then go into all the world and tell the whole story.

The gospel is not a series of unrelated mistakes and recoveries. It is a God-directed life that brought redemption to men.

There is spiritual therapy in the command to wait. It was a pause to regain faith and composure. Ten days of praying together settled social differences that remained from the dark week. Peter and Mark, who often used the words straitway and forthwith, had time to stop, ponder Jesus' words and gaze at the map of prophecy. It is good for every man in his haste-ridden day to stop, close his eyes to the world and its schedule, and bring his heart to normal pace long enough to know God.

There is stabilizing power in the coming experience. While the life of Christ was well ordered, often his disciples were lost in meaningless activity. The experience at Pentecost gave direction to their faith. They had a world to win.

Pentecost gave them inner power over sin and themselves. They were no longer tossed like a wave in the sea. Their waiting brought them to receive the person of the Holy Spirit. Jesus called Him the comforter. They found Him present in every trial stabilizing their lives against all evil forces. He made ignorant men often bold and wise.

Today men who wait on God are not without strength.

Children Spoon-Fed Shoddy Patriotism

"Why, that is his victory portrait, Junior. It was taken shortly after the Backyard Fence Campaign of 1937. With that very hoe he cracked open the skull of his neighbor, George Bullnoggin, who had built a fence three inches on your grandfather's side of the lot line."

"Is that why Grandfather hit him with the hoe?"

McPeek

"Yes, Junior. When Grandfather told George Bullnoggin the fence was on his property, Bullnoggin refused to move it back. Before long the argument became violent and Grandfather resorted to the hoe. It was a great victory. Bullnoggin's skull was fractured, but when he recovered he moved the fence back. We all were very proud of Grandfather. He was the family hero."

"But, Mother, couldn't all the trouble have been avoided if they had employed a surveyor or used the courts?"

"Perhaps, Junior. But it was a matter of pride with Grandfather. He knew the fence was on his side and he didn't need a surveyor or a judge to tell him that."

Does the foregoing seem ludicrous? Certainly it does. But change the backyards to nations, the fence to a border, and the situation could be a page from the "glorious" history of some country, or in the case of the vanquished, a "dark page" in history.

What is the point of this analogue — simple though it may be?

First, let me recall Jenkin Lloyd Jones' column on this page three weeks ago in which he deplored the lack, or scarcity, of old-fashioned patriotism in today's books for children.

Well, I too wish our children were imbued with more patriotism—and, for that matter, also adults. Not the hypocritical, militaristic jingoism of yesteryear, but rather a patriotism built on honesty, truth and concern for man, all men. Why must we continue to glorify war to foster patriotism? Glorification of wars only breeds more wars.

Certainly we had best begin teaching a brand of patriotism based on truth, rather than on chauvinism and nationalistic self-interest (of which Hitler was the most notorious teacher), if we expect to defeat communism.

War won't do it. Somebody once said that neither wars nor jails can kill ideas. Then it seems logical that only ideas—better ideas—can overcome ideas. So why should we resort to drums and bugles and deceit in an attempt to strengthen the idea of free democracy—man's greatest idea!

As for school books, my eight-year-old son recently brought home an illustrated book about the Civil War. On its cover was a picture of two immaculately uniformed and armed young soldiers — one in the blue of the North and the other in the grey of the South, both with their uplifted eyes shining with idealism.

The content of the book was little different. A youngster reading it would be left with the belief that the Civil War was a majestic struggle of two noble factions fighting on antiseptic battlefields solely for the glory of man and nation.

It was enough to make an intelligent person vomit. If we must teach our children about the Civil War, let's teach them the truth — it was a senseless, barbaric, internecine slaughter of thousands that pitted friend against friend, brother against brother, and neighbor against neighbor. It was a war that erupted when statecraft collapsed, and even the moral issue of slavery was not solely at cause. The underlying, more responsible cause, as in most wars, was economics, the economics of the relatively small "slave power" and its blind, greedy determination to keep its economic death grip on the South.

I like to think that if we were to teach the truth to our children they might profit by our mistakes, and those of our forefathers, and grow up to do a better job of running this nation than we have.

Can we truly boast of our accomplishments when we have averaged two wars per generation?

Of course, with today's nuclear weapons, that's one war more than our sons probably will get to serve in if we continue to glorify war.

In re-reading this, I am afraid that persons not familiar with my views might decide that I am a pacifist. This is not so. I do not claim that all wars are unavoidable. But having voluntarily served in two of them I only desire that we wake up and make every effort to avoid a new one.

Isn't that what we promised those fellows lying overseas beneath the small American flags?

Frosting On The Cake

by "UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

Some time ago, one of my columns carried a paragraph that "how to stay sane in a world gone nuts" is the $64,000 question for decent people today. Now, every day we read tragic stories of insane behavior.

For example, the wild "boat hopping" escapade that cost three prominent lives and injured many more, who survived drowning only by a miracle.

The other morning we read of some mechanic in Cleveland who ripped all the wiring out of a dozen computing machines because he was afraid of losing his job.

The list is endless of such madness by "adult-infants." Frustrated and fear-bedeviled, they lack both capacity to cope with life and total lack of objective maturity. It is no mystery anymore why "mental illness" is one of our gravest social problems.

Ill-educated people simply must escape from their own enslavement by circumstance and pretense and frustration.

There is a marvelous catalogue of wise and helpful research available to all such persons, once they wish professional aid in their personal private problems. But, unless they will read instead of squandering hours and hours of their spare time on TV trash and violence, what can one hope for them?

SENSENBRENNER TELLS DEMS:

'Put 'Umph' In Triumph'

By JOHN AUBLE, JR.

Former Columbus Mayor Jack Sensenbrenner urged Democrats to "find the 'umph' in 'triumph' all over again."

He spoke during the Franklin County Jefferson-Jackson banquet Thursday night, sponsored by the Franklin County Young Democratic Club. Sensenbrenner (a candidate again in the mayoralty race) told some 500 party members that they "have to be more active in Democratic circles."

He added:

"It's time we break some big windows in our souls and adhere to the three 'D's in the Democratic party: Decision, Discipline and Dedication."

Sensenbrenner told the crowd that they should, at least, "get on their telephones" to spread the Democratic word. "I'm not everybody," he said, "but I am somebody. I can't do everything but I can do something."

The speaker warned against "petty jealousies" within the party and theorized that the Dems "cannot move forward with small thinking. We must disagree agreeably," he said.

In other activity, County Engineer Guy Elbin was selected as the first-ever life member in the Young Democratic Club.

Elbin confirmed reports that he would be a candidate in the upcoming election despite rumors to the contrary.

The 72-year-old politician said that he's "not on cane or crutches yet" and that after next year's election he'll "probably come back for more."

The evening's principal speaker, Murphy D. Lincoln (president of Nationwide Insurance Co.), was made the second life member.

Lincoln

Lincoln pointed out that hunger ("for food, land and self-respect") is the world's worst enemy today.

"Satisfy this hunger," Lincoln believes, "and the menaces of the world will disappear like magic. Fail and we'll be buried in a nuclear war."

Rather than a pro-Democratic approach, Lincoln stated that "regardless of party affiliation, the peoples of the world should work together for the good of all.

"There is a tremendous challenge for the young people to do things in America that have never been done before," the insurance executive pointed out. "The Communists are working harder at what they're after than the people of the free world."

The traditional "Outstanding Young Democrat" award this year went to Al Kauffman. He is club treasurer this season and served as vice-president last year.

County Treasurer Newton A. Thatcher, who first came to the court house in 1908 to watch his father who was a reporter for a local newspaper, added a note of humor regarding party fund donations.

Referring to the fact that the new Franklin County Dem Chairman is Jerry F. Ryan, Thatcher proposed that fund donations be referred to as "Jerry-Toll" to "help keep away that tired feeling."

The Franklin County Young Democratic Club Received word Sunday that it received first place in Ohio for participation in the recent state convention in Warren, O.

FOOD MARKETS THIS WEEK

When Freezing Meat At Home--Be Careful

By ESTELLE B. FRANKS

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:
Vegetables — Homegrown asparagus, potatoes, celery, sweet corn, carrots, lettuce
Fruits—Bananas, cooking apples, local rhubarb
Meats and Poultry—Chuck roasts, steak "specials," ham, pork shoulder cuts, fryers, large eggs
Other Foods—Dairy products, canned tomato products, canned peaches.

"We are purchasing a side of beef. Should we have it 'quick frozen' at the locker plant, or can I do this in our newly purchased home freezer?" This is a question often asked at this season when families are taking advantage of the plentiful beef supply to restock their freezers.

Mrs. Franks

The answer is, by all means have it quick-frozen at the locker plant (usually included in the cost of processing). This holds true for a quarter of beef as well as for a side. Home freezers do not have the capacity to freeze such quantities of meat fast enough. If the meat is not frozen fast it will not hold its original quality in the freezer.

Dr. R. D. VanStavern, Extension Specialist, Animal Science, O.S.U., explains it in this way. Quick-freezing causes the natural juices of the meat to be frozen in small ice crystals within the muscle fibers. The small ice crystals will not rupture the muscle, so quick-frozen meat will thaw with a minimum of drip-loss. On the other hand, meat frozen slowly will have large ice crystals, the natural juices will be drawn from the muscle and there will be a correspondingly large drip-loss when thawed.

Now, if you are buying extra cuts—for exampe, steaks or chucks on "special"—that's different. Small quantities of meat will freeze rapidly in the home freezer.

Two things are important: (1) Keep the air out . . . keep the moisture in . . . by proper wrapping. (2) Freeze the meat fast and hold it at zero degree Fahrenheit or below until used.

So, as soon as you get meat home from the market, remove the store wrapping, wrap it properly for freezing, quick-freeze it and store it where the temperature remains steady at zero degrees F. or below.

The wrapping is important but not difficult. A good laminated freezer paper or heavy duty foil will do a good job. Use the "drug store" or the "butcher wrap." More expensive, but also good, is a plastic freezer bag. Just slip the cut of meat into the bag, squeeze out all the air and seal.

The importance of holding meat at zero degrees F. until it is used cannot be over emphasized. If you own a good home freezer you have no worries on that score, but if you are using a refrigerator-freezer combination check the temperature with a portable thermometer. If the frozen-food section does not hold zero or below, you are not really equipped to store meats for extended periods of time.

Remember—in general—the quality of meat is not improved by freezing, but it can be lowered considerably by improper freezing and storing.

The First Lady of Your Heart

Every home has its own First Lady . . . Mother! She is first in love, first in devotion, first in the hearts of her family. Who else means so much to you in so many ways? What other day is so deeply significant as the one set aside to honor the first lady of your heart:

MOTHER'S DAY, MAY 12

For Mother's 365 days a year of caring for you, one day seems all too scant to say the things and do the things that will adequately express your love and appreciation. But you can do your best to make the most of it . . . knowing that Mother, as always, will find her richest rewards in your thoughtfulness.

A Satisfied Customer Says "THANKS"

Ashville IGA Super Market
Ashville, Ohio

300 North Long Street — JOHN E. LITTLE, Manager

February 20, 1963

Hartley Newspapers
2465 West Broad St.
Columbus 4, Ohio

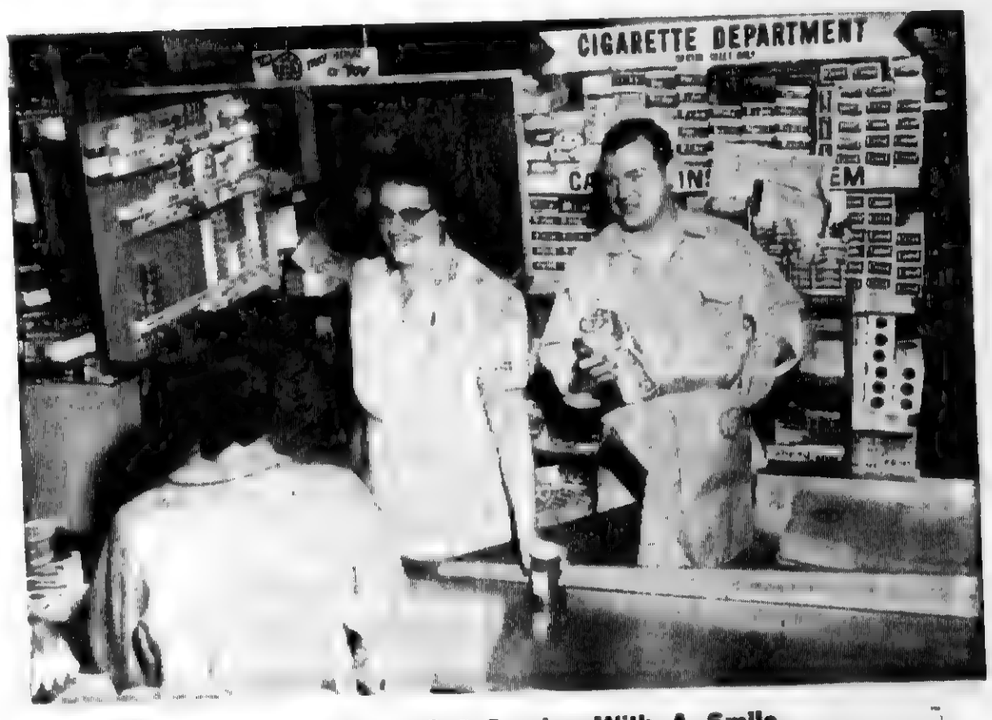
Gentlemen:

When your Mr. DeSpelder reminded us today that we had completed another year's contract for display advertising in the Rural Urban News, I felt it was appropriate that we express our appreciation to your organization for the fine service we have had from your sales representative in this time and also say thanks for the good job your paper is doing.

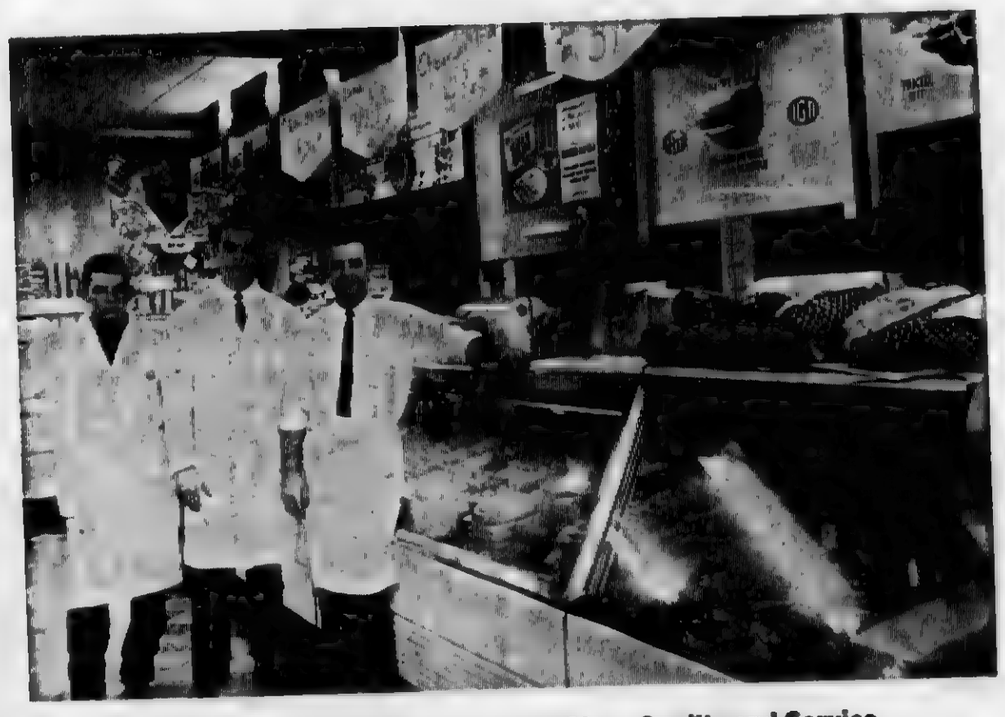
When we started this campaign in your paper we had hoped it would drew business to our store from several miles around. It has done just that and we have been highly pleased with our week to week increases.

Today we are enjoying a new high in business in our Ashville IGA Store and attribute our success in a large degree to our regular weekly ad in the Rural Urban News.

Again, thanks for this fine service and for the good job you are doing in carrying the news of the wide area served by your newspaper.



Very truly yours,
John E. Little
John E. Little, Manager



An outstanding feature in each weekly issue of the Southeast Rural-Urban News is the large ad of Ashville IGA. Consistent use of this paper has been a real business builder for this fine store.

John Little, Mgr.

Speedy Check-Out Service With A Smile

A Well Stocked Meat Department Gives Quality and Service

The above is a typical "Success Story" from a satisfied Hartley Newspapers customer. The advertising of Ashville IGA has been successful as a result of:

1. A good store has good merchandise being sold at enticing prices.
2. Their advertising message has always been large enough to attract attention.
3. Their ad copy has been appealing and well laid out.
4. Their message has appeared regularly each week in the South East Rural-Urban News, a good suburban newspaper.

All Seven of the Hartley Suburban Newspapers are tailored to the needs and interests of their communities.

A reader survey shows that 68% of the homes receiving these papers retain them for as many as five to six days. Another 23.6% keep the paper in the home a full week, until the next issue arrives.

This staying power of Hartley Newspapers is the equivalent of five days insertions in a daily paper.

Further details regarding the use of Hartley Newspapers may be had by calling the Display Advertising Department, BR. 4-1155 or dropping a note to Hartley Newspapers, 2465 W. Broad St., Columbus 4, Ohio.

The Gadabout

Priscilla LaRue Lanex
HI. 4-1651

The many area residents may not be aware of the fact when they are enjoying a "night out," they might be relaxing in an artistically decorated supper club, bowling establishment or theater that employed the services of an 'outstanding personality,' Glen Wisecarver.

Except for a year in California and his World War II service time, Glen has been a South Sider all his life. He attended Siebert Street Elementary, Barrett Junior High and South High Schools. His first decorating job was the "Ballyhoo," which was done about 1936 or 1937.

While in service he was shifted from one branch of the army to another, due to his artistic ability. His five years of service saw him in Special Services, Signal Corps, Ordnance, Engineers and Combat Engineers. While with the engineers in Newfoundland, he designed two service men's clubs, as an example of how the army utilized his talents.

A resident of 2415 S. High-st, he has been a free-lance agent nearly all his working years. Even a partial list of establishments he has decorated sounds like a veritable "where to go" directory for the city.

Past jobs have been the Jai Lai, Presutti's, The Sands, Skyroom, Riviera, Town and Country, Everglades, Top and Ciro's. His decorating ability is still to be seen at El Tempo, Old Johnson's, El Dorado, Pattons, High Meadows Grove, Driftwood, Max's, Key Club, Lakeview Inn, Ranch, Rainbow Lanes, Scioto Lanes and Main Lanes.

Glen's skill has become known throughout Ohio, so he has done many jobs in other sections of the state as well, both in cocktail lounges and bowling establishments.

When employed to do a job, Glen does the complete task from A to Z; from preliminary sketches to the type of menu card to be used. He prefers doing business this way, to assure himself, as well as his customer, that the finished job will approximate the preliminary sketches. Any wall murals that are needed are done in his home. There are fewer "sidewalk supervisors" around, and the job is done more quickly.

His love of art goes deeply, for it furnishes his relaxation as well as his livelihood. Although he employs more contemporary methods in his professional work, he leans toward traditional stylings in his leisure-time paintings. These have been exhibited at the Clarmont, Tremont and Olentangy Inns.

His wife, the former Betty Ford, laughs as she says no other home in the city can claim so many nails in the walls, holding nothing but empty hooks. This unusual decoration comes about because the artist sells his output nearly as quickly as he creates it. Betty, also a lifetime South Sider, learned long ago not to become too attached to any one picture her husband created.

The Wisecarver household includes Diana Lee, Jeffrey and Cheryl. One son, Jan, is married. The Wisecarvers attend the South High EUB Church.

While talking to the Wisecarvers an interesting but informative bit of information was learned about the Lakeview Inn. Another well-known South High graduate, Robert Reed, is one of the owners of the South Side spot. In addition to the attorney, the ownership is shared by Orville Conrad and C. V. Perry.

The South High School Y-Teens will hold their 17th annual Rose Prom on Friday, May 10, from 9 p.m. to midnight. Mal Morrison and his orchestra will furnish the music.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Larry Edwards, who exchanged wedding vows in the early spring, and are now residents of 900 S. Washington-av.

The ailing list includes David Hopkins, who had a tonsillectomy at St. Anthony's Hospital; Debbie Sherrod, 1431 S. Fourth-st, who has a broken leg; David Duffey, 3511 Scottwood-rd, who has a broken arm; Floris Wilkins, 521 Jenkins-av, who has an injured foot; Hazel Schwab, a patient in 223 North, Doctors Hospital, following surgery; Albert Schiveley, in room 615, Grant Hospital, as a surgery patient. John Keller, 307 Stewart-av, is currently a patient at Grant Hospital, room 706, and his neighbor, Ethel Osborn, 306 Stewart-av, is convalescing at home following surgery in the same hospital.

It's been a long time since we've had a train ride and so this past week we took a recommendation to take the Erie Lackawana out of Marion for Chicago.

A four hour trip in relative comfort was relaxing. But more than all else we were confronted on all sides by courtesy. It dispelled some ideas we had about the "way you are treated on the railroads."

When the trainman learned I had a daughter (Mrs. Bill Woodcox) living in Rochester, Ind., and when I casually remarked I should have called her and had a greeting from her as the train made a one minute stop, the trainman said, "I'll take care of that" and proceeded to get off at the next stop and have the dispatcher call ahead to notify my daughter.

We failed to make connections on the way west but a very apologetic station man at Rochester told us to leave it to him. He would have her at the station on our return Saturday morning.

Sure enough, we enjoyed a two-minute visit with the daughter, three youngsters and their dog . . . all through the courtesy of the boys on the Erie!

Observations: One of the most useless contraptions of the day is the installation of clocks in automobiles.. Only one in a thousand ever produces the correct time . . . If more of the radio and TV commercials were laid end to end the programs would be much more enjoyable . . . . One of the jokester friends advises that the missionaries have made such progress with the cannibals that they now eat with knife and fork and will not eat meat on Friday . . . .

Any Lesson For The Gals?

A lot has been said about the Rockefeller wedding and far be it from me to add my two cents' worth, but knowing it will stir up some pros and cons I present herewith a reprint from Ann Gerber's column from Chicago North Side Sunday Star:

"There is a lesson to be learned in the fact that Gov. Nelson Rockefeller was just remarried—to a young woman nicknamed "Happy." Did this eligible man take unto himself a bride called "Naggy" or "Droopy" or "Grumpy?" Oh ,no! Rocky knows a good woman when he sees one, a gal who is fun to be with, who takes life with a smile, who doesn't complain constantly, and so through the years she's been called "Happy." (Yes, we agree it is easier to be "Happy" with wealth and good looks, but anyone can be a delight to know.) What would your husband nickname you? Fatty? Creepy? Sexy? Messy? Sunny? Take your pick!

Papers Win In National Competition

A special section of this newspaper published last fall in salute to five local "Suburban Homemakers of the Year" has won first prize in a national contest.

The award was presented Friday to C. Carlton Hartley, publisher of the Hartley Newspapers, at a convention of Accredited Home Newspapers in Chicago.

Honorable mentions were won by other Hartley publications in the following categories: general excellence—the Reynoldsburg Record; community service, South-East Rural-Urban News (school bond issue information); editorial and news content—the Hilltop Record and the Reynoldsburg Record; best local feature column, West Rural-Urban News (Rod Cochran's "Inside on the Outdoors.")

The contest was judged at the Medill School of Journalism, Northwestern University.

Lincoln Park Center Bids Nixed; May Delay Project

'V' FOR VICTORY AND NO. 2

THESE HAPPY-looking members of the Southern Kiwanis Club strike a Winston Churchill type pose with a little more meaning in that symbolic "V" than just "victory." The two fingers also imply that it's the second annual Southern Kiwanis Summer Festival planned to run from Monday, May 20 to Saturday, May 25, with a youth matinee on Saturday from 1 to 5 p.m. At left is first vice-president Bill Bellamy with festival chairman Otto Meier. Gooding Amusement is furnishing the rides with the whole show being staged on the Lincoln Park school grounds at Woodrow and Ann-sts.

Confederate Jackpot At $179 Mark

It's growing, growing, but not yet gone!

Another shot in the arm from the winnings not claimed in last week's offering of "Confederate" cash brings this week's jackpot total to a staggering $179 in Hartley Newspapers "Confederate" money. And so far there has not even been a nibble at the big cash.

Six winners backed last week's offering of 25 "Confederate" dollars down to $19. This means that amount of money has been added to last week's $160 jackpot for the new total which could go to a lucky subscriber this week.

Incidentally, you must be a paid subscriber to a Hartley Newspaper to win the jackpot prize.

Bids for the proposed Lincoln Park Recreation Center were termed "out of line" recently by officials who reported Tuesday that there's a "good chance" the project will be delayed.

According to N. J. Barack, city recreation director, it was to be recommended to the Recreation Commission, Wednesday, that the city readvertise for new bids.

Results of this meeting were not available at South Side Leader press time but Barack said earlier that there was a "very strong chance" that the commission would agree to the recommendation.

The city originally had planned to break ground the first of June and, if the readvertising has to be done, new bids can't be sought until at least June 18. Then there's a 30-day period after that before actual construction can begin.

Even though local residents will remember that it was Lincoln Park that was pre-empted, to a degree, for the building of Westgate Recreation Center. Barack said that further delay was "not a pressing matter."

As the recreation leader sees it, the center will still be built in a year and not too far off the previously decided completion date of August, 1964.

After selecting a bid, Barack added, the project must be completed within a year. There are some federal funds involved and some reported time restrictions on those.

Have Your Flag For Armed Forces Day

Have you made arrangements for an "Avenue of Flags" in your neighborhood yet? With just a few days left until Armed Forces Day, Saturday, May 18, the project suggested two weeks ago by Hartley Newspapers has caught on in many areas in and around Columbus.

The rush to purchase the new 50-star flag, offered at a big savings by Hartley Newspapers has been almost unbelievable. Several neighborhoods have already contacted the newspaper office for more information to complete their "Avenue of Flags" project.

The plan is made possible by a special offer made by Hartley Newspapers for a limited time. During this offer anyone can purchase a beautiful, colorfast cotton, 50-star American flag, complete with halyard, six-foot wooden staff, top decoration and window socket at tremendous savings.

The flag kit, which usually retails for $5.95, and a one-year subscription to any Hartley Newspaper, valued at $3, are both available for a limited time for only $5. The price includes delivery of the flag kit to your home.

The offer is open to old friends and new subscribers to a Hartley Newspaper. If already a subscriber, the new subscription will be added to the present date of expiration extending the date by one year.

This is a golden opportunity to display old-fashioned patriotism on the very next patriotic holiday. Don't let yourself be the one who does not have a flag in front of your home on Armed Forces Day, Flag Day, Memorial Day, the Fourth of July or any flag-flying day. A handy booklet, included in your flag kit, will tell you each special day you should have a flag displayed and explain the proper way to exhibit it.

Fill in the coupon in today's flag advertisement in this copy of your Hartley Newspaper without delay . . . there are just a few days left before Armed Forces Day and your flag should be displayed with pride.

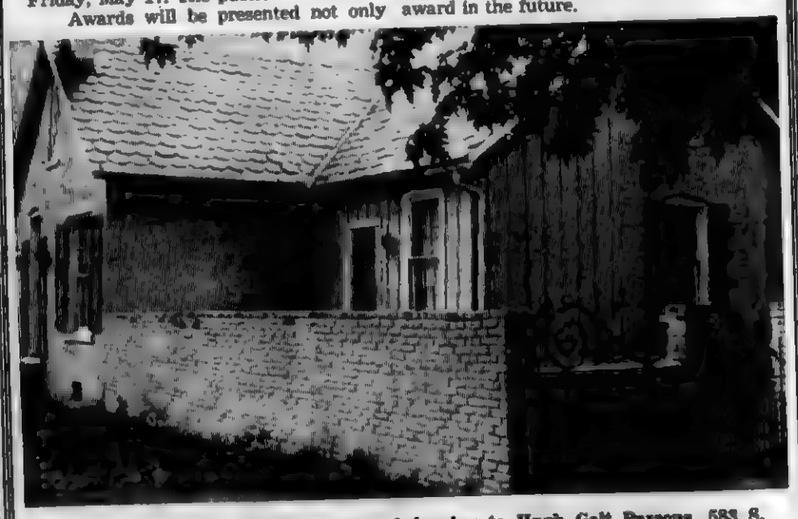
German Village Area Home Is 1963 PLAN Award Winner

One South Side home — in the historic German Village area — was a winner this week of the 1963 Planning, Landscaping and Architectural Needs (PLAN) award.

It's the residence of Hugh Galt Parsons, 583 S. Fifth-st, in the German Village which was commended by PLAN officials for "thoughtful rehabilitation recapturing the simplicity and dignity of the original German settlement."



Awards will be presented to all the winners by Mayor Ralston Westlake in City Hall council chambers at 4 p.m. Friday, May 17. The public is invited.

Awards will be presented not only to the owners of the winning buildings or property but also to the architect, landscape architect or artist responsible for its creation.

PLAN urged all residents to keep this annual contest in mind and to continue to look for possible award nominations.

Such nominations may be sent in any time for consideration in 1964 to PLAN, 65 S. Fourth-st.

A new feature to be judged in the Decorative Arts category will be art exhibitions. Any art exhibit open to the public could be nominated for a PLAN award in the future.

THIS GERMAN Village home, belonging to Hugh Galt Parsons, 583 S. Fifth-st, was a recent winner in the 1963 PLAN award. It was commmended for "thoughtful rehabilitation recapturing the simplicity and dignity of the original German settlement."

Five-Year Highway Program Revealed

Franklin County's portion of the announced five-year, 61.7 billion state-wide road building will include an estimated 78.28 miles of construction at a total of about $131,672,000. The totals include 63.75 miles of Interstate work at a cost of approximately $123.5 million (previously announced).

Non-interstate contracts (listed below) will account for 14.53 miles of work at an estimated total cost of $8,078,000.

The five-year program runs from fiscal year 1964, beginning July 1, 1963, through fiscal year 1968, ending June 30, 1968.

Area projects (by fiscal year) include the following:

Scheduled for fiscal 1964 is a project to reconstruct and widen State Rt. 317, north from relocated US Rt. 23 to existing US Rt. 33. Estimated total cost is $202,000.

Two S R 317 projects, calling for reconstruction and widening to four lanes, are slated for fiscal 1967. One project will extend for 1.08 miles, north from existing US Rt. 33 to Refugee-rd, at an estimated cost of $600,000. The second project calls for extension of the first project between Refugee - rd and Groves-rd at an estimated cost of $420,000.

Parade Will Top-Off Three-Day Salute To Area Armed Forces

Two marching bands from Marion-Franklin High School will join the "big parade" Sunday at 2 p.m. when it starts moving through downtown Columbus, highlighting the three day Armed Forces Week celebration.

Celebration of National Armed Forces Week begins in Columbus with drill teams from Capital and Ohio State and Lockbourne marching around the State House at 11 a.m. awaiting the arrival at noon sharp of Lt. General Andrew T. McNamara, director of the U. S. Defense Supply Agency.

He will be greeted by a 15-gun salute from a National Guard 105MM. battery, and then "piped" across High-st by the piper and drummer from the 38 Division band to the Neil House. There he will be the principal speaker at a luncheon attended by 500 business and professional men and women of the city.

"We want the men who write huge checks to the federal government to hear the man who spends $3 billion of taxpayers' money a year tell just what he does with their dollars," explained Col. Harry E. Richter, chairman of the chairman of the luncheon.

Never Too Old--Nor Young--For Tuberculosis Tests, States Fry

"Everyone, no matter what his age, needs to have a TB test," said Gerald D. Fry, executive director of the Tuberculosis Society.

"Operation Checkmates" is offering free Mantoux tuberculin tests right now to everyone over a month old living between Morrill-av and the New York Central Railroad.

South Siders have shown enthusiastic response to "Checkmates" so far. Fry said today that the Society hopes this response will continue throughout the program which ends June 8.

A Look Is Taken At Ohio State Aid To Public Schools

Leaders in 168 Ohio school districts met last summer and aired their views on educational problems.

Almost complete agreement was shown on one matter—that the state should carry more of the costs of educating our children.

Proposals to this end have bogged down in the current legislature; it seems assemblymen do not agree with the voters back home.

Before parents can take one step that is open to them — that of referendum -- it is important they should know to what extent the State of Ohio now contributes.

This article, one of a series concerning schools, will outline the formula by which state aid is received.

The first step is to set the number of "teacher units." This is done by dividing enrollment by 30, assumed as the average number of pupils in a class.

For each such unit, four budget items are allowed.

The first of these is salary This fluctuates with the years of training a teacher has. Though only $3,600 is allowed for an instructor with less than three years of college, a teacher with a master's degree is adjudged to receive $4,850.

Next, 12 per cent of the total salary allowance is provided to cover retirement funds and sick leave.

Overhead, such as services, books and supplies are considered by a $1,700 allowance for each unit.

Transportation is the fourth item and theoretically boards are reimbursed for this expense. The State Board of Education contends the amount available is not always adequate.

Educational TV programs entitle the district to an extra $5 a unit, and each vocational class or special class for the handicapped is made a unit.

To provide for administration, art and music teachers and librarians, the state allows one additional unit for every eight.

Once these basic figures are set up any district with at least 10 mills of tax levy for school operation may draw state funds by the Foundation Program formula.

It subtracts $12.50 per $1,000 carried on the tax duplicates of the district. This represents the local share of the cost. The balance is furnished by Ohio.

In the areas where the 12.5 mill tax exceeds the total budget, the formula is dropped. A flat sum of $2,100 for each unit is substituted. This happens only when property values are high compared to the number of pupils.

On a state-wide basis, the share of the districts averages 69 per cent of actual costs.

The board desires to change the formula so that more of the school burden will rest on the state.

A later report will present what changes it has proposed and some of the ways the public believes Ohio can raise the money.

New Development May Change Address To Simple Numbers

By ED CHURCHILL

The Columbus Post Office is doing its share to help U.S. Postmaster General J. Edward Day please congressional economists by aiding in the development of "ZIP."

In the not-too-distant future "ZIP" (Zoning Improvement Plan) will speed up mail delivery and cut handling costs by as much as one-third.

The POD says the method will eliminate six handlings of mail and be especially economical in handling of business mail from publishers, mail order houses, utilities companies, insurance companies, etc., which account for nearly 70 per cent of the 68 million pieces of mail each year.

Here's how it works:

- The country will be divided into 10 "national ZIP areas," designated by a single number. (Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana and Michigan would be "4".)
- Each area would then be divided into sections, designated by a two-digit number. (Columbus' section would be 32.)
- The fourth and fifth digits would be the zone number in the city (such as 24, 11, 06, etc.).

Large volume mailers will numerically address their mail and sort it before it hits the post office, all through the magic of electronic processing equipment.

When the mail comes into the sectional post office it is then dispatched to the branch office or that of a smaller community in the section.

But then the new system stops and the same 100-year-old method of hoofing it around town by mail carriers takes over.

Just exactly when this new program will go into effect is not known yet, but Post Office Department spokesmen say it won't be too long.

Of course, help is needed to get the program off the ground.

Right now the Post Office Department is asking that all return addresses contain the sender's zone number so that large-volume mailers will have the last two digits of the "ZIP" code number to include in the address.

Also, after July 1, patrons are requested to ask their postman what his "ZIP" code number is.

Taxes Subject Of Town Meeting

The Columbus Town Meeting, to be seen on WBNS-TV, Sunday, May 19, from 4 to 5 p.m., will deal with "Ohio's Current Income: Are Additional Taxes Needed?" The program will be rebroadcast at 9:10 the same evening on WBNS Radio.

Discussing the subject will be Senator Frank King, Democrat Minority Leader of the Ohio Senate; Dr. George W. Thatcher, Miami University, Department of Economics, who is the director of tax revision alternatives for the Ohio tax system; Senator Roy L. Gardner, Republican member of the Ohio Senate Finance Committee, and Representative Ralph Fisher, Republican chairman of the Ohio House Finance Committee. Huntington Carlile will serve as moderator.

Viewers are invited to participate in the discussion by calling WBNS TV while the program is in session.

Confederate Money Is Good Again!

Hartley Newspapers Confederate Money–That Is!

Here's How:

Yes, sir, Rebel currency is as good as any present day American money, that is if you are a reader of one of the Hartley Suburban Newspapers.

Each week one insignia like the number 5 at the right will be printed in one ad in some copy of one of the Hartley Newspapers. If your copy is the one, you merely bring or mail it to the office of Hartley Newspapers, 2465 West Broad St. not later than noon Monday following publication and you will be given a Hartley Newspaper $5 Confederate Bill.

But, if your are a paid in advance subscriber or regularly pay your newsboy, you will receive the Jackpot. During the first week of the contest the Jackpot will be worth $25. All unclaimed Confederate money offered each week will be added to the Jackpot the following week. This means that in all probability the jackpot will continue to grow each week until some lucky Hartley Newspaper subscriber cashes it in.

But Confederate money isn't worth anything you say. Not so with Hartley Newspapers' Confederate Money. Just take it to any store advertising in this week's issue of a Hartley Newspaper and it can be spent just like any other currency. Hartley Newspapers in turn will redeem all such currency at full value when turned in by a Hartley Newspaper advertiser. Further details of the contest are explained on Page One of this week's Hartley Newspapers.

If you have been receiving a copy of any of the Hartley Newspapers each week from your carrier or by mail and have not paid your carrier or paid in advance for your mail subscription, you are not eligible to win the Jackpot. So, call BR. 4-1155, ask for the Circulation Dept. and determine the status of your subscription right now.

To Be Sure You Don't Miss Your Chance To Cash In On This Big Event, Pay Your Carrier Every Month, Or Mail In Your Subscription Now!

The Knowledge of the Lord

Habakkuk 2:14. "For the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea."

The Church is chosen of God to spread the good news that God has a plan to redeem men and reconcile them unto Himself through the vicarious sacrifice of Jesus Christ our Lord. The Church will be so successful in spreading this glorious knowledge in the world that God says the earth will be as full of it as the waters that fill the ocean. Attend church and become a part of this great undertaking.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for men and of His demand for men to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH... THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

Some South Side Families Have All The Talent . . .

In acquiring the information for today's Outstanding Personality, the discovery was made that a second member of the family deserved recognition also.

This writer, being ever thrifty in all things, will therefore save that material for a later profile. The family that rates two outstanding personality spots is the one of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lewis Wheeler, Sr., formerly of 2822 S. High-st.

Today's delineation is that of Carl Lewis, Jr., better known as Lew, and a future edition will feature his younger brother, Robert, more readily recognized as "Rod," to his friends and South High classmates. It seems logical to highlight Lew at this time of year, when thoughts are turning towards anticipated vacations and the great outdoors.

Lew has chosen a vastly different way of life from that of his contemporaries. The blood of explorers and pioneers must course strongly through his veins for he prefers a communion with nature in its primitive state, in all his endeavors. He is a hunter, fisherman, guide and bush pilot, depending on the season of the year, in Minnesota.

His former friends and neighbors would find him to be tanned and weather-beaten, a natural result of his life in the elements. His career would have been that of a mining engineer had he followed his original course, for he spent three years at OSU studying that subject.

However, the lure of Alaska proved too great so he and two friends headed west and north to Fairbanks in 1933. A year was spent there, then he returned to Minnesota. In that year he had the misfortune of experiencing a fire, which leveled a cabin he had built, destroyed all his books and possessions including his dog.

Once again he headed for Alaska, driving his car to Seattle, Wash., where he sold his transportation for the price of the rest of the journey. Another year passed in the then territorial possession. When returning to the mainland a second time, he brought four Eskimo husky dogs with him. His brother, Rod, and sister, Mildred, were on hand to greet him and to transport his possessions to Minnesota once again. These pre-war years were spent in occupations such as lumberman, fire-tower watchman, hunter, trapper, guide, fisherman, etc.

His knowledge of the outdoors was utilized by his country during the second World War, for he was assigned to the Rescue Corps, as were some of his huskies. These dogs had increased in number through the years, incidentally. Lew and his dogs underwent their training at Camp Hale, Colo., then spent the war years in Greenland.

The core of the "non-drafted" huskies brought about a vivid recollection for Lou's sister, Mildred, who was now Mrs. Russell Leist, and the mother of two small sons. Mildred, her sons, and her parents, spent some time in Minnesota looking after the huskies. Mildred was able to do this, because her serviceman husband was in the ETO at the time. Mildred remembers -50 degree weather, and the necessity of melting the snow to secure water to wash her baby's underthings. However the cold is "dry" in Minnesota and not as penetrating as our own damp winters.

Following his service years, Lou once again returned to his chosen life as an outdoorsman.

A long-time dream came true for him about two years ago, when he opened his own vacation trailer camp on Crane Lake. This is the only such camp in that area.

Assisting him with the operation of the camp is his French-Canadian wife, Linda. Crane Lake is one of the chain of lakes that runs into the Lake of the Woods. The water in the area is so pure that it can be drunk directly from the lakes. Lou, his wife and six-year-old daughter, Carla, live as far north as one can and still reside in the U.S., dwelling as they do, not too far from the International Falls.

Indeed, in many of the streams and lakes thereabouts, a fisherman can be in the U.S. on one side, and by crossing to the opposite bank he will be in Canada. The area also marks the watershed of the continent. A nearby marker proclaims that south of the area all rivers flow into the Mississippi and tributaries, while to the north all waters flow into the Hudson Bay, etc.

Roads are gradually being built in the section, but Lew's residence is at the end of the line on the American side. As a result, boats and planes are necessary modes of transportation in the area. It seems impossible to those of us who dwell in busy, buzzing cities, that there could still be sections of the nation that look just as they did in the days that the red men were the sole inhabitants of the continent.

Lew has acted as a guide for many important men in his career. It never fails to amuse him that the ardent sportsman allows nothing to daunt him. As an example one of last winter's minus 48 degree days found him on the lake as usual, guiding an avid ice fisherman to a spot where the finny creatures could be found. Lew is an excellent guide and his knowledge of geology and geography make a trip with him informative and interesting. He has made it his business to learn as many of Mother Nature's secrets as possible.

The three Wheelers live in a lovely little home surrounded by pines and a large picture window gives a view of Crane Lake. His latest project has been improving a snowmobile which resembles a motorcycle set on toboggan runners. These hybrid creations are quite necessary in winter in this section of the country, and, equipped with radio telephones, have meant the difference between life and death for some of the northern residents.

For Lews' Columbus friends who would like to contact him we'll include this address: Wheeler's Vacation Trailer Camp, Crane Lake, Minnesota.

Cut Spending Before Taxes

We are told by the Kennedy Administration that a tax cut in the lower income brackets will stimulate buying power and result in an upturn for the total economy. This does not seem unreasonable.

Our national economic problem, however, demands something more effective than providing added buying power for those who are already healthy consumers. What we desperately need is a vehicle by which more Americans will be placed in the healthy consumer class.

Our government and legislative leaders know very well that such a goal calls for a lessening of the tax burden nearer the top than at the bottom of the tax schedules. The tools are available to build a tax structure that will release capital for investment in industrial expansion. The natural by-product of more jobs will result in more buying power for more people.

There is one drawback to this approach. The professional politicians do not see it as much of a vote-getter. We think that these same political pros have overlooked (or looked over) the native intelligence of the so-called lower income bracket citizen they purport to help.

Many of the people who stand to benefit from the proposed tax reduction simply don't want any part of it. Why? Because they will never buy the theory that it is good practice to cut the source of federal revenue while at the same time increasing government expenditures.

Tax reforms? Certainly. Let's see that Uncle Sam is not victimized by a tax system replete with loopholes for the sharpies. But let's be just as firm in demanding a tax reduction that will BEST stimulate the national economy. And let's see to it that any reduction in basic operating funds is matched by a cutback in expenditures.

Frosting On The Cake

By

"UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

One of the most heartwarming signs of the times is the turn to the right in so many aspects of our national life. The educational housecleaning, so long overdue, is gaining momentum everywhere.

It is again respectable for teachers to make kids mind and judges are lowering the boom on punks and their parents alike. Junior is no longer king of all he surveys in more and more homes. Sissy is no longer a glorified Cleopatra who has tried for too long to rule the roost and behave like age 22 at age 12.

More lawns are being mowed; more garages cleaned out; and more backyard gardens are planted and cared for than we have seen in many a year. Every school has growing societies who have awakened to the age-old truth that work is respectable.

Damage suits against parents are being won every day in court after court for all kinds of vandalism and destruction of private property. When Mom and Pop really get hurt in the "pocket nerve," they wake up and come to their senses again. Many a wild kid who thought he could get away with murder because "he is a juvenile," is now getting the bad news both at home and in court.

STRICTLY FRESH

When the grass looks greener on the other side of the fence, it may be they take better care of it over there.

The best way to make the next generation better is to grow them better.

There is no right way to do the wrong thing.

Always borrow from pessimists—they never expect to get their money back, anyway.

Claims Collection Agencies Careless

To The Editor:

My experience is one that I am sure many others have had too. I wonder if any one knows how this organized racket can be stopped without resorting to law-suits all over the nation?

It is not uncommon for persons to have names alike. The sad part of this situation is that persons with an A-1 credit rating often are ruined by persons of the same name who run up bills all over the country and who are collection agencies' delights. For if it were not for such persons these agencies would be out of business real quick, so we must assume that they are not investigated by any legal body and as a result have been working this racket at the expense of persons with the same name.

I have been getting bills, threatening phone calls, been visited by collectors, had my wages garnisheed, threatened with law suits etc, from 1919 up to the present. They come from as far off as Philadelphia, Cleveland, Detroit and Buffalo, and all charged to the same person — whose first and last name is the same as mine.

So a man jumps a bill and the collection agency gets the job of collecting it. They run down every one in the city directory and telephone book who has the same last name and do not attempt to find out if it is the one they want or not. They simply fire you a nasty letter or call you up and demand payment.

This has been happening to me for the past 40 odd years and in each case it can be traced to some person who has jumped a bill. What good is the Better Business Bureau, credit bureaus, etc, if they do not stop the credit of such persons? Must we spend our small income in law suits to protect our credit and good name, or will the law do it for us?

Lauds Flag Offer

To The Editor:

Capitol City Chapter 3, Disabled American Veterans, wishes to express its hearty approval and commend you for the promotion of the way to secure a 50-star American flag so that "Old Glory" can be displayed on patriotic days.

We feel that the lack of displaying our National Emblem on patriotic days by the citizens of Columbus is astounding.

We salute you in this effort to place in the hands of our citizens a 50-star American flag at a very low cost. May the demand for them far exceed your expectations.

OF GODS AND GOD

Their mills
Grind slowly while
The gods decide the fate
Of mortal men.
So men once thought.
But now, still ignorant,
They can at least believe
That one God reigns supreme
In His own Universe
And man is heir
To His eternal grace.

Sometime in the dim, dark, dusty past, legend, folklore, and mythology began to emerge as history. Meanwhile, the ancients had created in their own minds a galaxy of gods, some with human attributes who ruled mankind, his environment, and his fate. Among them were the supreme Grecian god Zeus and his Roman counterpart Jupiter.

Now, as millions believe, the Hebrew Jehovah, the Christian God, and Moslem Allah are the one supreme Creator and Ruler of the Universe.

Perhaps Occidentials can never fully understand the great Oriental religions. But in the West, most believe with varying interpretations, that the one God is one of justice, mercy, and eternal grace.

It says here . . . .

Need Statue To Man Who Lost His Shirt

In front of the old sub-treasury building on Wall Street there stands a statue of George Washington, marking the spot on which the first president took his oath of office. Down the street is the New York Stock Exchange. In front of the exchange someone ought to erect a statue of an eager little man with a slightly pointed head holding a fistful of securities. The man should be bare from the waist up — symbolic of those who have lost their shirts in the market.

Jones

Both George and the little man deserve the respect of the American people. George nursed the infant nation through the hazards of federalism on the right and wild-eyed democracy on the left until it learned how to walk as a republic. And the shirtless one provided the free market that produced a vigorous economy. You can't have the right to win without assuming the right to lose.

To millions of the uninitiated, Wall Street is a gigantic poker game in which the losers must balance off the winners. This isn't true. More can be won on Wall Street than need be lost. For this isn't a rigid game of deuces wild or spit-in-the-ocean where a fixed amount of wealth merely changes hands. If all the automobiles are selling well all the automobile stocks can go up. A rise in one doesn't have to mean a fall in another. Discounting temporary fluctuations, over the long period the cumulative value of all securities traded has risen enormously simply because the wealth of the country has risen likewise.

But the trouble with a stock exchange is that the value of a stock is judged not simply in terms of the financial health of the company or in the percentage of its dividend return, but also on a much more rubbery theory, namely what you think someone else will think it's going to be worth next month. Here's where the crap shooting comes in.

Wall Street has always been full of "glamour stocks" and "growth stocks," many of them trading at 40 and 50 times earnings. Some companies that never even showed a profit have attracted eager buyers. Nor have these buyers been necessarily insane. Consider a company that plows most of its earnings into research and plant expansion, or that is engaged in developing new products that may have enormous potential popularity. It can't be judged on the same basis of — let's say — a railroad stock where the price-earnings ratio may be favorable and the dividend return even generous, but where volume has been slipping and deferred maintenance haunts its future.

But glamour fields attract heavy competition. And a firm that gained preeminence in vacuum tubes can get walloped by transistors, and now some transistor functions may pass to the tunnel diodes. A maker of "space-age" hardware can be made or broken by the shift of a government contract. In the field of science the industrial game of king-on-the-hill is a rough one.

How about taking refuge in the "blue chips?" It's hard to believe that anything very bad will happen to American Telephone or General Motors or the great integrated oils. But where are the blue chips of yesteryear? The New Haven Railroad that supported the foundations of many a mansion in Newport and Palm Beach is in bankruptcy. Giant U.S. Steel went from a high of 91 in 1961 to a low of 38 less than a year later. International Business Machines lost almost half its market value in the shakeout last spring.

So you want to play it smart. You look for "special situations." It's not hard to get on a lot of mailing lists and for a small price you can be let in on the identities of stocks that "seem ready for an upside break-out" or are about to complete "a sharp saucer movement." But there's a fine old saying, "If you're so smart, why ain't you rich?" And you can't hang the man who sells you a bum guess for a dollar as long as he admits he's guessing.

The legitimate brokerage houses are great hedgers, for the more honest a Wall Street observer is the more he covers bets in all directions. One assures customers that the market is healthy "but is likely to remain in a trading range." Another advises: "Selective buying may be undertaken on price dips." A third cautions: "A constructive investment policy remains in order." And a fourth unloads this: "As yet, there has been no significant surge in earnings to bring about persistent aggressive buying for the rise. At the same time, since business is not deteriorating, it may prove a mistake to be guided altogether by traditional methods of security evaluation."

How do you like your eggs?

But the worst thing about the stock market is the stampede factor. Industrials lost a third of their value in the May break last year. Yet the value of American industry changed hardly at all, since investment was constant and business was good. Someone has said, "The stock market is the only barometer that makes its own weather."

So hail to the shirtless loser. In any system guaranteed to have no losers everybody loses. The managed economies of communist states theoretically give everyone an equal share in industry and fix output and rig prices, ostensibly at least, for the benefit of all. And the result is chronic and universal want. It is only where risk is acknowledged, and is encouraged by the real chance of reward, that a mass economy functions well.

Digit Fidgeters—Try This New Method

It's quite possible anthropologists in the far future will be able to discern the skeletons of primitive 20th Cenutry Americans by the enlarged bones of the right forefinger.

And for this little bit of sleuth-ease they will be able to thank the Bell Telephone Company and its finger-muscle-building 11-digit direct dial system. Something like the bulging calves of dancers.

McPeek

But, the phone company's switch to the all-digit system has brought me nothing but headaches. I am one of those unfortunates whose memories draw blanks when it comes to numbers. To place a call to an unfamiliar number, I must write the number on paper and clumsily refer to it no less than two or three times while dialing.

Perhaps a reporter friend in Chicago, also afflicted with a number memory block, has found the answer. He substitutes the digits of phone numbers he frequently uses to letters that form words. He uses the association method. By studying the combination of letters on each finger hole of the dial (excepting numbers 1 and 0) he forms words that fit the person whose number he is calling.

For instance, he says he has substituted the letters FAT-HEAD for the phone number of a certain pompous city official. Naturally, he no longer has trouble remembering that particular number.

Other samples of his method, he said, include:

TIC-TOCK — a lady friend whose habitual tardiness indicates an inability to tell time.

IOU-MUCH — a brother who is always putting the bite on him.

DUM-BELL — His editor's home phone number.

OLE-BAGH — His former mother-in-law.

SAE-TENN — His bookie.

SAD-SAKK — An assistant to the mayor.

MUS-CLES — His former wife.

GOO-PERR — A cutie, whose brain he compares to a peanut.

CUM-CROSS — The finance company which holds title to his car.

RES-RUME — A saloon where he conducts social research.

BUL-HAID — The home number of the cutie in the circulation who ignores him.

Apparently I don't even have a knack for converting numbers to words. The only one I could come up with was TEE-OFFF, the number of a golfing champion. But little good it does me. He refuses to play with me since the day I carelessly walked across his line of putt during a bingle-bangle-bungle match in which he dropped $1.30. To heck with him. Who needs the number of a poor loser?

'The Utopia Of Man, Or Kingdom Of God?'

Matthew 16:26: "For what will it profit a man, if he gains the whole world, and forfeits his life? Or what shall a man give in return for his life?"

The most perplexing question troubling men today is still the age-old question of idolatry.

While in the first two of the 10 Commandments we are reminded that the Lord our God is one God, and that we are to have no other gods before Him, modern men have been reaping the heartache of the violation of the very essence of these commandments. Men of today are more intelligent than to fashion idolatrous images such as golden calves like the Hebrews of antiquity. Nevertheless, the faith of most men today vainly hopes that the intelligence and technology of this modern age shall eventuate in the perfect way of life and the highest standard of living—this stands as the most insidious idol ever fashioned before the very eyes of God!

Rev. Bosworth

Our whole modern civilization occupies its entire industry and attention so exclusively upon the seemingly stupendous accomplishments of our contemporary age that virtually all of us find ourselves a part of this most fantastic idol. The idol is none other than modern man himself, who is so impressed with his abilities and accomplishments that he pitifully and vainly imagines he has utterly no need of God, indeed, so he thinks, if there even is any God at all!

Truly this is the height of idolatry, for we are now beginning to reap the insidious fruits of this monster. International communism is one tyrannical child of this idolatry which has given birth to the notion that man is capable of constructing his very destiny, utopia, the "perfect and classless state."

The answer to the ridiculousness of our modern situation is still perfectly posed by the troublesome question Jesus raised in the text mentioned above: "For what will it profit a man, if he gains the whole world (a perfect utopia), and forfeits his life?"

The Bible from beginning to end, and especially by its proclamation of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, forever affirms that by the sheer grace of God alone shall men be saved from even their most charming sin, modern idolatry, the vain hope in their own ability to work out and earn that which comes solely as a gift from God to the penitent — salvation!

What can we do? We must destroy our faith in the accomplishments of men, which is utter folly when thought to be sufficient to win God's favor, and see such accomplishments for what they are; idols, false gods. We must once again so trust in the Lord and His promise unto us when we are truly faithful that our accomplishments can be solely expressions of grateful love unto Him for His mercy unto us.

Then we shall see Him use what has heretofore been our idols, to the glory of His own kingdom. Then we shall see Him wrought what is the very height of vanity for us to try, the very Kingdom of God in the presence eventually of all men. This is what Jesus meant when He said, "If any man would come after Me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow Me. For whoever would save his life (in the vain hopes of utopia) shall lose it, and whoever would lose his life for My sake will find it."

Speedway Sets Opening Sunday Night

BY BILL GRAY

Sunday night at 7 is the time for the opening of the 1963 season at Columbus Motor Speedway, with Super Modifieds and late models competing in at least seven events. The first event of the evening gets underway at 8.

The late - models, 1954 through 1961 cars, will be running their first season on a regular schedule at the Williams-rd one-third blacktop oval.

IN APPEARANCE these cars look like the cars that you and I drive on the streets and highways with the exception of many safety features that have been added such as roll-bars and seat belts, plus other safety items.

The Super-Modifieds have been built from the ground up and there is no limitation to their engine sizes. These are the cars that have been running and holding the records at the South Side track.

Following opening night, racing at Columbus Motor Speedway will be held on Friday and Sunday nights with time trials starting at 7 p.m. and racing at 8.

Reb Baseballers Drop Pair In CL Scramble

By ART KIENZLE

The baseball season for South High's nine comes to a close in just nine days and the Bulldogs have a lot of ground to cover, as they rest in the second half of the CL standings following last week's encounters.

Early last week, the Rebs played DeSales and won a 14-5 slugfest with sophomore Terry Emrich throwing a cool, three-hitter.

WHETSTONE WAS South's guest later in the week and the Rebs took their worst beating of the season, 16-5, with the winning Braves grabbing 18 hits.

Friday, the Bulldogs traveled to East where they lost to a quick Tiger team, 5-1. East scored all its runs in the first inning off starter Bob White.

The Rebs play at Eastmoor tomorrow and then come home for a contest against Marion-Franklin Tuesday.

IN THE ONLY other area diamond action, luckless Rosary dropped a pair of non-league encounters to University (9-7) and DeSales (7-3).

The Crusaders seemed on their way to their first win of the spring against the Little Bucks, leading 7-2, entering the final frame.

But the Bucklings came up with five runs in the seventh to knot the count and then pushed across the winning tallies in the first extra frame.

Sophomore Zizek Gets County Nod

Rosary outfielder Joe Zizek was named this week to the all-county baseball team following a vote of loop coaches.

Zizek was one of the five sophomores selected to the team which is composed of 18 members.

Other members were:

Smallmouth Bass Hittin' At Erie, Local Streams

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROB COCHRAN

The fishing picture is warming up, and hottest news is from Lake Erie where the smallmouth bass are reported hitting in the island area. Eldon Hales, party boat captain operating out of Catawba Marina Sales, says the bass are off and running with good catches being made for about a week. One boat of anglers caught more than 100 smallmouths in a day.

This is some of the sportiest fishing to be found in Ohio. Although the lake is quite a distance from this area, more and more anglers are falling under Erie's spell. When you hit the smallmouths or white bass on a feeding spree up there, its a memorable experience.

ROLLIE RECOB, West Jefferson, reports that this has been a phenomenal spring for catching crappies in Big Darby Creek. "I've sold more crappie minnows this year than ever before, and the crappies are still hitting," said Recob.

Another observation from a bait dealer is that a few soft craws are being found and stream smallmouth bass hit good with the first general craw shedding.

It seems that when there are a lot of craws in the water, rather than the bass getting their fill they become greedy and try to eat them all. Fishing at such a time is advisable according to the old-timers.

SMALLMOUTH BASS are generally considered to be one of the top sport fishes in the state — it's good news when they are being caught at Lake Erie and in local waters too.

Sportiest fishing at Lake Erie is with artificials, although many are taken on live baits. This spring surge of fishing occurs when the water temperature reaches 54 or 55 degrees, as it did last week.

The fish have not spawned yet, and will not be nearly so easy to find or catch a little later on. They are usually in shallow water now, four or five feet deep, and are particularly susceptible to spinners on the order of ABU, Shyster and Mepps.

THE MOST POPULAR way to fish for them is to let your boat drift parallel to shore and cast in toward shore, and by shore I mean one of the islands in western Lake Erie. If you have a strike or catch a fish or two, then start the motor and go back to windward and drift over the same spot. If you hit it lucky, this type of fishing can be fabulous.

One of the dangers of Lake Erie is the weather. Not only can a blow come up and endanger your safety, but you may drive all the way there and find a nor'easter whoopin' it up making fishing impossible.

And the wind doesn't blow for just an hour or two. It might blow for two or three days, and it may take another two or three days for the water to settle again and the fish to begin hitting.

BUT THE PRIZE of a good day on the lake is worth the chance. If the weatherman cooperates, you should plan on a smallmouth expedition right now. This bass bonanza may not last for more than another week.

If local streams are in good condition, then a bass trip right here at home will be in order. Soft craws may be available, but these bass will also take artificials. This is definitely the time to tackle our "sportiest fish."

Everybody Hits As South Y Church Loops Open Play

Action in the South Side "Y" Inter-Church Softball leagues got underway last week with the hitters enjoying a real holiday as they scattered hits to all sections of Southwood Field.

MONDAY JUNIORS — In games played in the washday circuit, Livingston Methodist nosed out a fine Parsons Baptist team, 5-3; Hungarian UCC won over Welch Avenue Free Will Baptist, and Emmanuel Lutheran scored a victory over Gates - Fourth Methodist.

GIRLS — In this 11 team league, Hungarian UCC eked out a win over Emannuel, St. Paul UCC won a close one from Hope Lutheran, South Methodist outscored Ohio, Southwood Church of Christ defeated Livingston Methodist, and Brookwood squeaked past Parsons.

After the crowd noise had ded down, sideline observers judged the following as the best players: Margie Santo, Kathy Mason, Cathy Heinlein, Peggy Dupler, Carol Larimer, Pat Koch, Sharon Chase, Loretta Boso, Jean Summers, Sue Stewart, J. Ross, S. Warner, J. Weaver, C. Jividen, Diane Cummings, Dinah Caldwell, Janis Moore and Ramona Winone.

WEDNESDAY JUNIORS— Play in this section also was exciting as St. John UCC, Ohio Avenue EUB, and Hope Lutheran rode into victory lane with opening night wins over St. Paul Lutheran, South Methodist and Southwood Church of Christ respectively.

Bob Uhlig, Carl Faris, David Price, Leroy Sturgill, Steve Rudd, John Workmaster, Larry Milligan R. Landefelt, B. Ellinger and Mark Olson played best for their teams.

Play in the Intermediate and Adult slow pitch divisions is scheduled to get underway tonight and Friday.

Bulldog Runners Third At Eastmoor Relays

South's cinder Bulldogs placed third in the Eastmoor Relays Saturday, thanks largely to the hurdling efforts of one Willie Thompson.

Speedy Willie garnered the Rebs' one first place, covering the low hurdles in 21.7. Thompson also notched a second place in the high hurdles.

SOUTH ACCUMULATED a total of 23½ points to finish behind winner Central (46) and runnerup Whitehall (42).

Thompson had to relinquish scoring honors to Central's George Trammell who took firsts in 100, 220 and 440 to add up to 19 markers.

In the County League Meet at Canal Winchester, defending champion Rosary (21) and St. Marys (10) placed sixth and seventh respectively.

THE CRUSADERS' top efforts came with two runnerup finishes in the 880 and mile (Joe Smithberger) and a third place finish by Jim Groce in the 440.

Earlier in the week, the Rams dropped a triangular meet decision to Hamilton Township (County Meet winner), 98 to 26½. Reynoldsburg was third with 25½.

MIKE GRAY'S victory in the low hurdles was St. Mary's lone first.

Only other cinder meets of the week involved Marion-Franklin. The Red Devils placed second between winner West (74) and Brookhaven (23) with 49 points at Magly Field Saturday and dropped a 94 5/6 to 23 1/6 verdict to North earlier in the week.

'Good Hit, Good Glove' Not Enough Anymore

Last week a friend of ours, who is presently negotiating the purchase of a local cabaret, was bemoaning the fact that he had missed out on the sponsorship of a softball team this spring.

It had always been our belief that the advertisement scrolled across the broad shoulders and back of the heavy-hitting center fielder completed the relationship between player and sponsor.

BUT APPARENTLY we have been mistaken all these years. The system is a bit more complicated than that.

Personnel selection problems alone are staggering. For example, the confirmed vegetarian can't play for a meat packing company and the guy who can't stand anchovies probably won't be on Pasquale's Pizza roster regardless of his hitting average.

Our friend's problem is even more ticklish. "In many leagues, the unwritten law prescribes that the losers treat the winners to several rounds of "coke" at the winner's establishment," he said.

"FOR THIS reason, it's important to recruit players who not only can win ball games with the big hit but who are also of a thirsty nature."

The most embarrassing angle of the whole situation occurs, however, when the better ball players sign with more than one club. It's not uncommon at all for a player to switch diamonds and jerseys the same evening and play for the competition.

We thought we could cheer our friend up by giving him a tip on a fellow we know who might be coaxed into wearing the local colors next season.

"HOW'S HE hit?" he asked.

"Like an Al Kaline."

"Got any speed?"

"Runs like Maury Wills."

"How about his throwing arm?"

"Brings it out of left field like Rocky Colavito."

"What about his stomach?"

"Ulcers," we admitted sheepishly.

HE LOOKED at us as if he had just entered the "twilight zone." Just like we said —"good hit, good glove" just isn't good enough any more.

BIT OF WIT(T) — City Recreation Director Nick Barack has his committee selected to study the "Interference problems" created by the city's hopes of constructing a second municipal golf course under the approach to Port Columbus on E. Hamilton-rd (Wit an Wisdom, Mar. 21).

Barack has received a reply from the Recreation Department at Oakland, Calif., where a similar situation was considered. "At Oakland, the airport runway runs through the middle of the course with fairways and greens on either side," Barack said.

"The difference between our two situations involves the distractions and hazards of the runway takeoff (Oakland) and the low flying approach over the entire course (Columbus)."

BARACK ADMITTED that the Oakland course is presently under construction and they apparently were "willing to take the chance" that the city's golfers would patronize the course under the existing conditions.

But until Barack's committee gets out for a "couple of rounds" on the local turf, the question of whether this city will go ahead with its plan on the 135 acres is still literally up in the air.

Dentist Will Open East Side Office

Dr. James E Bartholomew has announced the opening of his office for the practice of general dentistry at 4150 E. Main-st, Whitehall.

Dr. Bartholomew, a graduate of Circleville High School, Capital University and the College of Dentistry at Ohio State University, served two years in the U. S. Navy Dental Corps at Camp Pendelton, Calif., Marine Corps Base. For the past 10 months he has been associated with a dental office in Piqua, O.

JEANNE WESTMORELAND adds more Ideal Chili Sauce to the display at Ideal Coney Island, 397 S. High-st, for customers who like to make the specialty of the house, two, three or four-way spaghetti, at home. The sauce, made for a recipe developed by owner Jim Zirkopluos, can also be used to make many other tasty dishes from recipes included on the label of each can or jar of the product. It is available exclusively at Ideal Coney Island.

Secret Recipe Used In House Specialty At Ideal Coney Island

One of the most popular restaurants in the area of the Franklin County Court House is Ideal Coney Island, located directly across the street at 397 S. High-st. A handy place to stop by for a cup of coffee or a quick sandwich, the popular downtown eatery was taken over 10 years ago by Jim Zirkopoulos, who came to the United States from Greece 12 years ago.

Because of its downtown location and access to several large office buildings many local diners are becoming aware of a new dish in the Columbus area, the specialty of Ideal Coney Island.

The idea of two-way, three-way and four-way spaghetti is not new, according to Jim, but had not been used much in the Columbus area until he learned of the recipe from friends who traveled often to Cincinnati and brought the idea back home with them.

When the owner of Ideal Coney Island learned of the popularity of the dish in the "Queen City" he traveled there to try it out and learn the recipe. The meal turned out to be spaghetti with a specially prepared chili sauce for two-way, add cheese for three-way and add cheese and onions for four-way. This was the recipe Jim returned to Columbus with.

The next problem was to develop a chili sauce, which each chef protects as a closely guarded secret.

Jim began this task by using all the skill and experience he had gathered in his many years as a chef and cook. The end product became the "personality" of the specialty of the house, the combination spaghetti.

According to the manager, the sauce became so popular that he now manufactures it for resale at Ideal Coney Island. The sauce can also be used on hot dogs, for chili con carne, in making chili beans, on sandwiches and for preparing Johnny Marzetti. The recipe for all these items including the combination spaghetti is included on the label of any size of the sauce sold by Ideal.

Manufactured in four different sizes, the popular sauce is available only from Ideal Coney Island and is priced from a 12⅞¾¾¾ priced from a 12½-ounce jar at 49 cents to a 32-ounce can at $1.05.

As Jim put it, "Most people have tried everything else from Italian to Japanese food. Now we would like them to try our combination spaghetti. It can be prepared at home by using our sauce or you can try it at Ideal Coney Island. It's the specialty of the house."

Buckeye Federal Reveals New East Side Office Plans

A new Buckeye Savings and Loan Association East Side branch office will be constructed later this year at the intersection of Livingston and Harlow-avs, according to an announcement by William S. Guthrie, president.

At the same time it was announced that Guthrie was recently elected to the board of directors of Action, Inc., the national public service organization concerned with the physical environment in cities. Action functions especially as the voice of private enterprise in the renewal of cities.

The new Buckeye office on the East Side will be erected on stilts, according to preliminary architectural plans. It will serve as a "walk-in, drive-in" banking facility. The manager's office, safe deposit boxes and a meeting room will be located on the second floor, with the drive-in facility underneath this area.

Choice of the location, Gutherie explained, was dictated by the fact that Buckeye Federal's present eastern branch customers are mostly in this immediate area and this location will serve them to better advantage than the present office located in the Great Eastern Shopping Center. The new branch will also be near to a principal north-south access in relation to future freeway traffic.

Upon completion by the end of 1963, the company's Great Eastern Shopping Center office will be discontinued.

No Fatal Traffic Mishaps In April

There were no fatal traffic accidents reported in Columbus during the month of April according to a report issued from the office of Police Chief George Scholer. However, Chief Scholer pointed out that traffic accidents had increased and law enforcement was down for the last 15 days of the month.

South Side traffic districts were cited by the police chief for good work and reminded to keep up enforcement on traffic laws in the area.

Mary Jane Schilling Real Estate Is Located In German Village

Five years ago a Columbus grandmother decided to quit her job as a bookkeeper and take up real estate sales. As Mary Jane Schilling explained it, "My children were all grown up and I thought it would be fun to work for myself."

That was the beginning of Mary Jane Schilling Real Estate Brokerage with offices located in a stately, old German Village home at 555 S. Fifth-st. Since that time Mrs. Schilling has become successful in the real estate business in the fields of buying, selling and trading property in all areas of Columbus.

Her specialty is found in the growing real estate market which surrounds her in German Village. In her own words, "I have a great faith in the future of German Village and feel that someday it will be a feature of Columbus, similar to Williamsburg and Alexandria in Virginia."

She added, "The homes in the village are well constructed and the neighborhood is quiet, We have few disciplinary problems with the children here and the neighbors are all friendly people. I think many former residents and people interested in returning to the city are going to settle in the German Village area."

Mrs. Schilling likes to specialize in hard to sell property, especially on the East and South Side. Her one-woman office has developed a business of buying, selling or trading homes, and she takes pride in the fact that every customer gets personal service. As she explained it, "Since I'm my only employe, everybody deals directly with me."

MARY JANE SCHILLING stands at the entrance of her home and office at 555 S. Fifth-st, surrounded by pictures of her family in the background. The grandmother of 14 grandchildren opened her real estate office in the German Village area three years ago to promote the sale of the stately, old homes in that section of Columbus. She feels the future of German Village is "unlimited" and the area will soon become a show place for Columbus.

Mrs. Schilling obviously takes great pride in her four children and 14 grandchildren and has their pictures prominately displayed at the entrance to her home and office. She explains that her whole family was instrumental in getting her business started when she decided to open her own office.

"I feel that my business will grow with the development of German Village, and I feel that eventually this area will become one of the most popular and picturesque sections of Columbus," she stated.

The warranty, taking effect immediately, is the first offered by a home builder for this long of a period. Fritsche stated the warranty covers "structural" components, which he defined as the "basic" parts of a home such as foundation, roof, floors and stairways.

Never Too Old—

Fry said, "We have had month old babies and great-grandmothers visit the twin cruisers this past week A TB test is important for both these age groups as well as everyone in between."

The Mantoux tuberculin test is quick and painless. One small boy, after getting his free skin test this week, stepped down off the cruiser where a group of friends were watching with wide-eyes. He disappointed them all, by announcing in a loud voice, "Boy, big deal! That didn't hurt a bit!"

In the Mantoux test, a doctor injects a small amount of harmless liquid into the skin of the forearm. Forty-eight to 72 hours later, the doctor examines the arm and determines whether or not there are TB germs in the body.

"A positive reaction to the skin test," explained Fry, "does not necessarily mean the individual has TB. It does, however, mean he has been exposed to someone who does have active TB. Positive reactors found during 'Operation Checkmates' will be advised to have yearly chest X-rays to spot TB early if it should develop."

"Operation Checkmates" is part of the Tuberculosis Society's program to wipe out contagious TB in high incidence areas throughout the city.

This 58-block area reports six to eight new cases of TB every year.

"TB tests are for everyone over one month old," Fry concluded, "and everyone 15 years or older can have a free chest X-ray. Remember, no one is safe from TB until everyone is safe."

Focusing attention upon The Community!

That is the major purpose of Hartley Newspapers. . . . To keep you well informed about your local governments, your schools, activities of a social nature, feature stories concerning the people of your community . . . in fact everything of a local nature which serves to permit you to be better community informed.

The tremendous success enjoyed by Hartley Newspapers is reflected in the phenomenal increase in circulation. More than 74,000 homes in the Columbus area receive a Hartley publication each week. This means that some 250,000 persons are regular readers of our newspapers.

Little wonder that we stick out our chests and opine that "focusing attention upon the community" has been responsible to a great extent for our greatly increased circulation, which has more than tripled in a decade.

Hearing Set For Trailer Tax Case

A court hearing has been scheduled Wednesday, May 22, for Jesse Landis, operator of a trailer park at 2909 Lockbourne-rd, for not registering his house trailer for real estate tax purposes.

Charges that Landis failed to register his house trailer were filed in Columbus Municipal Court by a deputy county auditor. Deputy Auditor Kenneth Handiboe said the tax amounts to an estimated $150 for the two-year period covered by the charges and a conviction would carry an additional fine of from $25 to $50.

Handiboe stated this was the first charge filed in Franklin County for alleged trailer license law violations. He added he expects to file similar charges against other house trailer owners in an effort to get all such homes in the county registered for tax purposes.

★ SETTLEMENT REPORT ON RELIEFERS SHOWS: ★

'Spring Spoiled By Chill Of Fear'

The staff at the South Side Settlement House, 363 Reeb-av, painted a not-too-pretty picture of the welfare problem in the area in its periodic "Settlement News" for May.

In the lead article, entitled "Welfare Cuts Equal Hunger, Fear" the staff listed the names of the governor, two Ohio senators and the seven local house of representative members in the General Assembly urging reliefers to write letters.

"As we go to press," the article reads, "it is spring — spring spoiled with the chill of fear. The unemployment level in Ohio is 6.6 per cent of the labor force. The state's unemployed are estimated at 253,000.

"And this spring the state of Ohio has cut back matching funds for poor relief from 50 to 40 per cent.

"Last year when relief was cut to 40 per cent, children sickened from malnutrition; mothers went to pieces and had nervous breakdowns; children were kept home from school because their parents had no breakfast or lunch to feed them and would not send them out hungry to school.

"'Austerity' is a fancy word. It is used in Ohio today to cover an ugly reality — the hunger and harm and hurt that the poor endure who are ill or unemployed. The most cruel blows of all are directed at the children — the children of the poor and deserted — for the terrible crime that they were born and still live."

As far as printing the names of lawmakers, the settlement urged reliefers to "telephone or write to your governor and state senators and representatives. Tell them to pass state budgetary funds so that Ohio can provide minimum standards of health and decency for families on ADC (Aid to Dependent

School Seminars Of Real Value

This past week some 4,000 persons participated in the last of three weekly seminars sponsored by the Columbus Public School system.

In each case a recorder has prepared a summary of the suggestions and conclusions of the group. My conclusions may not exactly coincide with those of the group but I do present these observations:

1. This type of participation program is certainly to be commended. Some good things should be forthcoming. In any event, some 4,000 persons are better acquainted with their school operations than they were before.

2. Under discussion was the possibility of a four quarter plan. It was pointed out that as many as 60 years ago this was tried. However, in the case of some areas, school boards are finding it necessary to take some such steps for the further utilization of their buildings. While it appears to be evident that school officials can find many reasons why school buildings should not be used for a longer period each year, we believe some of these reasons would be overcome if necessity so dictated.

3. It was the general consensus among the participants that it is better to pay our way locally than to rely upon federal funds for our education program.

4. Another field of possible income for Columbus might be the proposal to ask for state aid to cover education of children whose parents are on state payrolls similar to the thing that is being done in federal aid being extended to cover costs of educating children of service personnel and other federal employes.

5. It is highly desirable that our teachers do not become involved in strong teacher unions.

6. If there is any shortcoming in the education of a child it appears that it can be traced back in many cases

"CHECKMATES" Honorary Chairman William P. Boermle, Sr. (left), and Gerald D. Fry, executive director of the Tuberculosis Society of Columbus and Franklin County, illustrate the number of homes yet to be reached in the "Operation Checkmates" program, offering free TB tests and chest X-rays to South Siders through June 7.

411 South Siders Get TB Checkups

A total of 411 South Siders have received free Christmas Seal TB tests and chest X-rays at the Tuberculosis Society's "Operation Checkmates" cruisers, as of May 9.

The Christmas Seal X-ray Cruiser and its twin TB testing unit, which have been making visits in the area between Morrill-av and the New York Central Railroad since May 6, have given free Mantoux tuberculin tests to 400 residents of the area and free chest X-rays to 242 residents.

Of the 400 people who received free TB skin tests, 81 had positive reactions. A positive reaction to the test does not necessarily mean the person has active tuberculosis, but it does show he has been in close contact with someone who does have active TB and that TB germs have entered his body.

People of all ages have had free TB skin tests, according to E. Clifford Roberts, director of the "Checkmates" program. There were 164 children TB tested and 236 adults. Three children and 78 adults had positive reactions.

"Using these figures from the first three days," Roberts said, "we can safely say that approximately 34 per cent of all adults tested have TB germs in their bodies."

"This is a high percentage of positive reactors," Roberts continued, "but we are not surprised when we remember that this area has six to eight new cases of TB every year."

Most South Siders have realized the importance of having both life-saving checks against TB, according to Roberts. More than half the people who came aboard the cruisers requested both the free TB test and chest X-ray.

Only seven people over 15 years, which is the age requirement for the chest X-ray, took only the TB test. Eleven persons over 15 years had only the chest X-ray.

"We are pleased with the cooperation shown by the people who have received Mantoux skin tests," Roberts stated. "When you have this test, you must return within 48 to 72 hours to have the test examined by the doctor. Out of the 400 people tested during the first three days, only 50 failed to come back for the examination."

The schedule of "Checkmates" locations for next week is:

Friday (May 24), Bucher and Hosack-st, 1-7 p.m. Saturday (May 25), Merritt and Fourth-st, 11 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday (May 27), Hosack and High-sts, 2-8 p.m. Tuesday (May 28), Woodrow and High-sts, 2-8 p.m.

AN EDITORIAL

People On Relief Are Still People

People on relief are people.

This is something that needs saying time and again—especially now when the problems of financing our relief programs are so much discussed.

Reliefers in the main are people with the same general hopes and moral standards as those around them.

So often they are people who are innocent victims of brutalities or brutes of our civilization. And so often they are men and women who are willing to work hard to regain their economic feet.

Just how bad are things? Here's a smattering of stories from social workers at the South Side Settlement House where the problem is being felt bitterly.

A South Side woman who lived through the bitter months of 1962 when poor relief was cut to 40 per cent of the state minimum told a meeting of the South Side Family Council what it was like:

"When relief went to 40 per cent, we just went down. Our rent was $50 and our checks came to $56. We had $6 left for food and utilities after we paid the rent.

"We paid it, because even to be sick or starve you need a place to live. But the gas and electric were shut off. I didn't have lights for seven months. Gas wasn't off so long.

"But, when the gas went I began to cook with coal oil. That was horrible. The fumes almost knocked my eyes out. I couldn't breathe. Then I began not to see.

"I thought I was blind but later the clinic said it was the coal oil and nerves. We sat in the back room; shut the rest of the house off and tried to heat just one room.

"We were there in the dark — just coal oil fumes and no lights. We ate stuff people gave us and commodities. It was a horrible time. When we got our lights turned back on, it was queer. I didn't think the winter would ever end or that we would make it."

On Apr. 8 a mother came to the settlement to tell them that her baby was back in Children's Hospital:

"I took her to Children's Hospital and they kept her. I was afraid to tell them at Children's we didn't have heat. She's only five months and she's had pneumonia twice.

"The first time I told them the gas was shut off, but the second time I was afraid they'd have me up on neglect. But I can't help it. My gas bill is over $100 and my relief check don't cover rent and food.

"I had to get juice for the other kids when they were sick and just couldn't. The first time gas was shut off, I had it opened in another name; but they caught me and shut it aff again. They warned me I'd go to Marysville if I pulled a trick like that. If I get sent to Marysville, who will watch the kids?"

And right here might be the place to print a great line forwarded by Roberts Mann, a thoughtful naturalist in the Chicago area. He just wanted to share it with as many persons as possible and it seems appropriate in connection with the above thoughts.

NOT TO BE mistaken for the hear-no-evil-see-no-evil monkeys are these three owners of the Village Art Colony, which is to be a highlight of the Sunday, June 23 German Village Tour. They are, top to bottom, Phil Kientz, Byron Kohn and George Wilson. Those are diplomas (children's coloring books) that they gave out Friday during a party for members attending a so-called "formal graduation" ceremony.

TOUR HIGHLIGHT

German Village Art May Be French As French Fries, But...

By JOHN AUBLE, JR.

Perhaps the nicest side of the German Village Historical Society showed itself Friday night. That is, the fun-loving, laughing facet of the German personality.

Members of the German Village Art Colony on S. Third-st, across from the Society's office, staged a kind of "graduation party" for art students — complete with dimmed lights and dripping candles.

It served as a warm up for the upcoming German Village tour in which art is expected to play a bigger-than-ever part.

Art Colony members will stage exhibits throughout the day of the tour.

Despite the fact that the Village's prime function is to preserve the German heritage, observers were certain that the Colony took on more of a French flair during the party which could've been just as appropriate in Greenwich Village, New York.

Making the point by citing the presence of berets and candles in wine bottles led to a discussion of German art with the Colony's three owners, Phil, Kientz, Bryon Kohn and George Wilson.

The Germans, it seems, were never really leaders in the painting arts, although it's easy to point out some sculptors from long-ago Germany who rank with the masters.

Incidentally, because of the sculpturing aspect of German culture, the Colony trio has promised that classes in this art are to start soon.

It was pointed out that German craftsmen were

LEADERS IN GERMAN ART

- Altdorfer, 1480 (?) - 1538 (Hilly Landscape) depicting romantic woods with shaggy moss and lacy foliage.
- L. Cranach, 1472-1553 (Apollo and Diana) featuring Gothic intricacy of line mellowed by Renaissance gayety.
- A. Durer, 1471-1528 (The Four Preachers) showing monumental Reformation figures with massive, rugged heads.
- M. Grunewald, 1480 (?) - 1530 (Crucifixion), which is tortured Gothic realism, weird fantasy and line pattern.
- Holbein, 1497 (?) - 1543 (The Merchant Gisze), a merchant with apparatus in fine, clear detail. Considered an outstanding example of German art is Albrecht Durer's "Portrait of Hieronymus Holzschuher" painted in 1526, but not particularly considered a masterpiece.

VILLAGE TOUR IS LONGER THIS YEAR

Plans were announced this week to extend the length of time for the popular German Village tour scheduled for Sunday, June 23, in the South Side's historical section.

General Chairman Bill Scheurer, 2146 Elgin-rd, says the tour will begin at 10 a.m. and last until 6 p.m., with the early morning starting time lengthening the trip by some two hours.

"We're confident of getting 4,000 people down here," Scheurer said. "We felt that starting at 10 a.m. would make it convenient for persons to attend church in the area and then go immediately on the tour."

There were 3100 who saw the area last year and the only major complaint was from some oldsters who felt the heat of the afternoon was a little uncomfortable.

"This way," Scheurer added, "they can take the tour during the cooler morning hours." The traditional parade will be held at 2 p.m. instead of kicking off the tour as in previous years.

New School Districts Drawn On Southside

The creation of five school districts, the awarding of ten $500 grants to Columbus Public School personnel, and the revision of some existing school districts were major items of business before the Columbus Board of Education Tuesday afternoon.

On the Southside, boundary lines for the new Buckeye Junior High and Moler Elementary Schools were drawn, and a teacher at Roosevelt Junior High was awarded one of the study grants.

Changes in boundary lines were approved for Marion-Franklin and Mohawk Junior Highs, and for Deshler, Clarfield, Fairwood, Forest Park, Fornof, Helmandale, Heyl, Livingston, Smith Road, Watkins and Moler Elementaries.

Harry E. Staats, English teacher at Roosevelt, will use his study grant to prepare a manual to be used in the teaching of reading.

He will interview teachers in remedial reading and will attend a three-weeks' seminar in Boulder, Col. Staats will also purchase a visual teaching aid for use at Roosevelt in the reading program.

BUCKEYE

District boundaries for Buckeye Junior High will begin at the intersection of the Scioto River and the western extension of the New York Central RR, following a line east to the Chesapeake and Ohio RR; southeast to the Columbus School District line; west, south and north to the point of origin.

MOLER

Moler Elementary district will begin at the intersection of Lockbourne and Frebis, move east along a line 100 feet north of Frebis to 100 feet west of Fairwood; north to the middle of Deshler; east to the Norfolk and Western RR; south to 100 feet south of Smith-rd; west to 100 feet west of Fairwood; north to 100 feet south of Moler-rd; west to the middle of Lockbourne-rd; north to the point of origin.

The district will also include the area beginning at the intersection of the Norfolk and Western RR and a line 100 feet north of Refugee-rd, move east to the City School District line; south and west to the railroad, and north to the point of origin.

MARION-FRANKLIN

Beginning at the junction of the Chesapeake and Ohio RR and the New York Central RR, east along the New York Central to a point 100 feet west of Lockbourne-rd; north to a point 100 feet south of Marion-rd; west to 100 feet west of Champion-av; north to 100 feet south of Woodrow-av, to a point 100 feet east of 20th-st; north to 200 feet south of Frebis-av; east to 100 feet west of Berkeley-rd; north to 100 feet north of Frebis-av; east to the Nor-

CONFEDERATE JACKPOT CONTINUES TO CLIMB

Correct Emblem Worth $203

The Hartley "Confederate Money" jackpot has just gone into a higher orbit than last week, reaching an all-time high of $203. Last week's losers can be this week's winners, however, because the amount not claimed has been added to the new grand total.

By checking the advertisements of this paper for this insignia and finding it, you could reduce this week's offering by five "Confederate" bills. If you are a paid subscriber to a Hartley Newspaper you get not only the $5 but the entire jackpot as well. The emblem is always printed in a bright color and is found in the white space of one of today's advertisements. It appears in only one of the 72,000 newspapers printed for distribution this week.

Twenty papers contain this insignia hidden somewhere in the advertising section, also printed in a bright, colored ink. If you find such an emblem, you can turn it in to the Hartley Newspaper Office, 2465 W. Broad-st, either by mail or in person, and claim one "Confederate" bill. You need not be a paid subscriber to win the one of the five.

Mrs. R. G. Paschal, 104 S. Highland-av, was the single winner of $1 in "Confederate" cash last week. She can spend this bill at any place of business advertising in a Hartley Newspaper during the week she wishes to spend it.

Anyone can claim the "Confederate" money. You must, however, be a paid subscriber to win the jackpot. The finder of the "5" insignia must bring the entire paper containing the insignia to the Hartley Newspapers office to claim the jackpot or the five "Confederate" dollars.

All "Confederate" cash can be spent just like money with any advertiser in a Hartley Newspaper. The contest is not open to employes, including carriers, or members of their families. Deadline for claiming "Confederate Money" winnings is noon on Monday following publication of the paper.

St. Paul's To Become Six-Grade School In Fall

Twenty-nine boys and girls will don caps and gowns to receive their diplomas from St. Paul's Lutheran Kindergarten Friday, May 31, 7 p.m.

The Christian kindergarten has been in operation since 1951, and this will be the 12th class to be graduated.

In 1960 St. Paul's added first and second grades, in 1961, third and fourth grades, making a complete Lutheran parochial school of kindergarten and six grades taught by four teachers.

Lutheran parochial schools must meet the State of Ohio standards for length of school day and year, required subjects and certification of teachers. At the same time, the school presents the Christian religion as confessed by the Lutheran Church.

Kindergarten and the first and second grades are filled for the 1963-1964 school year, but there is still room for additional pupils in the third through the sixth grades.

There is no tuition as such for pupils of members or non-members, but there is an $8 yearly supply fee, and parents who are able and willing may make donations to the school.

The school receives $3000 per year from the congregation, plus the salary of the kindergarten teacher. The rest must come from private donations from parents of children in the school and from other interested persons within and without the congregation.

Pupils may ride the bus for $1.50 per week.

Witnesses Plan Three Conventions

Jehovah's Witnesses will hold three conventions this year, instead of two as in previous years. The announcement was made by John O. Brehmer, presiding minister of the Columbus South Unit.

Brehmer explained that Milwaukee has been added to the New York and Los Angeles sites, due to the limited facilities in New York. The new stadium for the New York Mets Baseball Club is not completed, and the Polo Grounds will not be available.

According to Brehmer, the majority of his congregation will be traveling to New York for the eight-day gathering, to be held July 7 to 14 in Yankee Stadium. A crowd of 125,000 is expected.

Make it a happy habit to read the Jenkin Lloyd Jones column each week on the editorial page of your Hartley Newspaper.

Ask any boy and he will tell you...

IT'S A WONDERFUL FEELING

When winter is past and most of the spring rains have come and gone, what a joy it is for a boy to go barefoot and feel the warm moist earth oozing up between his toes and the hot sun on his back... It's a wonderful feeling — remember?

If it has been some time since you were in the warm company of like-minded Christians and basked in the warmth and love of God's glory and grace as manifested in His Church, attend this coming Sunday. It's a wonderful feeling to sense that you are in tune with God, your fellow man, and the universe.

"I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the House of the Lord." Psalm 122:1.

BUSINESS REVIEW

Fast Service Is Specialty Of Front Street Auto Wash

An economical car wash at a big savings in time is the specialty of Front Street Auto Wash, 261 S. Front-st, according to a company spokesman who explained that the complete job of washing and cleaning an automobile is completed in from only three to three and one-half minutes at a cost of only $1.75.

A special offer by the company enables regular customers to receive a car wash and cleaning at even more savings through the purchase of a thrift card. This plan enables the purchaser to receive four washes for $6, a savings of $1, or seven wash jobs for $10, a savings of $2.25. The card is available by request from the manager of Front Street Car Wash, Ervin Warner, or from a member of the staff.

Automatic equipment enables the firm to speed autos through the process of being cleaned and washed. A full-time staff of eight men speeds the task along. Every car which goes through the process is completely scrubbed and wiped off. The inside of the auto is also vacuumed with a sweeper, the dash and interior are wiped off, and the white or black tire sidewalls are cleaned. The entire process takes less time to do than to read about.

Although waxing a car is not a regular specialty of Front Street Auto Wash, this type of work is also done by prior arrangement. Appointments can be made by contacting the organization at CA. 8-4175.

One of the big advantages offered by the firm is the extremely fast service, not to mention, the complete cleaning job that every auto receives. For the driver or auto owner in a hurry, who wants his car looking its best, Front Street Auto Wash has the answer.

New Flag Supply Is On Order

Scores of new flags were seen flying in this area during Armed Forces Day over the past weekend.

Many of these flags belonged to readers of Hartley Newspapers who had already taken advantage of the new American flag offer being made by this paper.

The response to the plan has been so tremendous that the supply is exhausted.

For this reason Hartley Newspapers have decided to extend the original offer and another order has been placed with the manufacturer. The new supply should arrive within a few days.

In the meantime, if you have ordered a flag or plan to do so, we request that you bear with us for the short time until the new supply arrives.

The complete kit includes a 3x5 cotton, color-fast, 50-star flag, with staff, top, halyard and window socket. Usually priced at $5.95, the kit along with a one-year Hartley Newspaper subscription, valued at $3, is being offered for only $5.

If you have not ordered your flag yet, be sure and do so as quickly as possible to insure delivery before Memorial Day, May 30. Plan your "Avenue Of Flags" for this coming patriotic holiday. Check the advertisement in this edition of your newspaper and place your order now.

High accident location in the area listed by the semi-monthly report was on Lockbourne-rd, from Whittier to Frebis. Special attention was called for during the peak traffic hours of 4 p.m. to 10 p.m. Enforcement of laws pertaining to speed and reckless operation was requested in the bulletin.

One of the four fatal traffic accidents which occurred in Columbus during the 15-day period occurred on the South Side at the intersection of Frebis and Ellsworth. A pedestrian walking in the roadway was struck and killed by an oncoming auto.

One holdover petition and two new zoning requests were scheduled for action during the Wednesday meeting of the Columbus Planning Commission.

The holdover request sought a change from restricted rural residential to a commercial designation for property at 3320 Lockbourne-rd. If approved, the change would permit a two-chair beauty parlor in the basement of the dwelling.

New petitions filed included the following:

Change from single family to one-to-four family residential for an acreage parcel located north of Hanford-st and east of Nelson-rd. Plans call for construction of four-family apartments.

A plan to build a $3.5 million apartment project by the Columbus Housing Authority to replace the Franklin County Home on Alum Creek-dr is being held up by a pending bill before the Ohio House.

WILL THE REAL GERMAN SHEPHERD PLEASE STEP FORWARD?

NO ONE HAD ASKED, but none of the four dogs would have stepped forward — for two reasons. First, all were developed from the original German Shepherd herding dog. Second, all are trained to obey their masters. The masters and their dogs include Sgt. Sowers, Air Police, Lockbourne AFB, with a "police" dog; Patrolman Downey, Grove City Police Department, "police" dog; Gene Fullen, emcee of "Dialing For Dollars," the program on which they appeared; Stanley Doran, head trainer, Pilot Dogs, Inc., "seeing eye" dog, and Wayne Whitmer, president of the German Shepherd Dog Club of Central Ohio, Inc., with an obedience dog. On Sunday, May 26, the GSDC will hold its eighth annual Specialty at the Junior Fair Arena, Fairgrounds, starting at 8 a.m.

'Willie' Paces Rebs To District' 6th Spot

South's Willie Thompson picked up wins in both hurdle events Friday but the Bulldog runner's efforts could gain the Rebs no better than a sixth-place finish in the Central District Track and Field Meet at Worthington.

Thompson gained South's lone firsts, clearing the 120 highs in 14.9 while topping the field in the 180 lows with a time of :19.9.

ALSO HELPING to accumulate South's 13½ total (as compared with the Cards' winning 32), were a fifth-place position by Marshall Martin in the broad jump and Darrell Branham's third-place tie in the high jump.

Worthington picked up the AA crown by merit of the Cards' victory in the final mile relay event by a fraction of a second. Runnerup Central (31 points), who had led until this point, finished fifth in the event.

Four records were eclipsed in the process of the AA event. Delaware's Dan Rybolt set a new discus mark with a toss og 163' 1¾"; Central's George Trammell, only a sophomore, wiped out the old 440 time with a run of 49.6; Marysville's Jim Johnson tossed the shot 58' 5" and East's winning 880 relay team was clocked in 1:30.1.

Wasps, Loneliness Part Of Scoreboard Detail

When Columbus Jet publicity man Dave Miller ushered us to the confines of deep center field last week, he must have wondered what could possibly be exciting about spending a couple of hours browsing around the scoreboard.

What Dave didn't know was that while other neighborhood kids were dreaming about a seat in the dugout, we had always been hopeful of tasting the excitement of thrills of supplying Joe Fan with all the scores of all the games in all the leagues.

TO OUR AMAZEMENT, we found that the scoreboard job is neither exciting nor thrilling, but a little bit hazardous and certainly lonely.

The man that shuffles the metal scorecards at Jet Stadium is an 18-year-old OSU freshman, Jim McCann. Young Jim, who has been hopping out to the park for night games at 6:30 p.m. since 1956, is responsible for posting runs, hits and errors. (Balls, strikes and at bat are handled electronically from the press box).

Just like most other jobs, the scoreboard man doesn't just fall into his position. Jim started as a bullpen 'runner' (smuggling peanuts to hungry relievers) and eventually worked his way into his present duty.

JIM'S RIGHTHAND man is 15-year-old Tommy Cooper, son of GM Harold. Tom's job concerns climbing around the major league board and like Dad, worrying about things like losses and attendance.

Two of the major qualifications for scoreboard duty are agility (dodging a barrage of stones junior fans might decide to let fly over the center field wall) and grass roots public relations (sharing the scoreboard telephone with a nest of wasps.)

INCONSIDERATE ball players can also pose a problem, especially when they rattle home run balls between the scoreboards on successive days and fall over the outfield fence on top of you as Johnny Powers did a couple of seasons ago.

The scoreboard man must be a cool-headed sort even when the numbered plates seem sure to be exhausted (seven 'ones' in two and one-half innings the other evening).

Hot summer night games introduce another peril as squadrons of blood-thirsty mosquitos and fluttering millers, attracted by the bright spotlights, dive bomb the scoreboard crew with uncanny accuracy.

OLD BOY SCOUT training must be recalled and dusted off when chilly spring evenings necessitate the crackling sound of flames and wood. And even at the hottest Sunday doubleheader, the concession boys don't include the scoreboard on their circuit.

Disregarding wasp nests and pesky mosquitos, the unkindest cut of all came this spring when the powers that be decided that slowpoke firemen took too long arriving from the center field bullpen and placed them down the right and left field lines.

NOW THE SCOREBOARD area is virtually deserted. It's become a lonely place with only Tom's transister radio and a robin's nest with three unhatched eggs for company.

The boys harbored a turtle that wandered into the area for awhile but the lazy amphibian was small compensation for the diamond stories of the departed bullpen crew.

So any time you might notice an inverted 2 or a 6 that should really be a 9 on the Stadium scoreboard, don't be too critical. Remember all that glitters isn't gold. Everybody has their problems these days.

MAIL BAG DETAIL—Dear Mr. Wittenmeier,

A note of appreciation for last week's (May 9) really great column re: The Tribe! This, sir, is the story of my life and hard times as an Indian lover. Never have I seen our plight more graphically described.

Probably the high spot of my career as a fan was the day I sat in the stadium and watched Casey Stengel retrieve a pitcher the lights of my life had succeeded in knocking from the box. (I even have pictures to prove this momentous event!)

Those were indeed the golden "days of wins and Rosen" (one of the best puns ever).

Sincerely,
Jane T. Ault

DEAR MRS. AULT,

Your letter proves there's still hope. All this time, my Yankee friends have been telling me that ours was an extinct breed. Don't give up the ship!

Stocks Open At Speedway Friday Night

By BILL GRAY

The Columbus Motor Speedway will swing open its gates for the 1963 racing season Friday night, when a full program of flying-stock races is scheduled.

Following Friday night's lid-lifter, the Williams-rd raceway will run every Friday and Sunday night, with a combination program of super-modifieds and late-model events every Sunday evening.

THIS WILL be the first season that late-model cars will race regularly on the fast third-mile blacktop oval. These cars will be from 1954 through 1961 models and must be strictly stock in appearance. Changes in the motor can be "anything you can't see."

In the speedway's game of "Total," there will be $100 in cash in Friday's jackpot for the fan, or fans, who can correctly pick the first five finishers, in order, in the feature race. Entry cards are free and may be picked up at the ticket gate.

Time trials, both Friday and Sunday, begin at 7 p.m. with the first race set for 8 o'clock.

Fish, Scenery Lure Scribes To Fontana

FONTANA VILLAGE, N. C. — As the man stepped in the boat, he tossed a lure box to me and said "we'll try this for bass. I'm Bob Cook." We didn't talk anymore, for a while, as the outboard motor was purring and I was watching the spectacular beauty unfold of Fontana Lake and the Great Smoky Mountains wherein it lies.

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROB COCHRAN

My fishing partner was Will Keller, outdoor writer for the Cincinnati Post-Times-Star, and Bob told us that he would keep the boat at casting distance from the rocky shore. "Put your baits right in on the bank," he said. "Then twitch them for about four to six feet and then reel it." It was the same trick used by bass fishermen everywhere.

ON ABOUT MY twentieth cast the bait, a Boba-Linda manufactured by Cook, disappeared with a slurp and I was confronted with a largemouth bass sudsing up the water like a smallmouth. He jumped five times and ducked under the boat twice, but the bass was well hooked and we landed him.

This, of course, was not a surprise, for Fontana Lake is noted for its leaping largemouths. We had come nearly 500 miles to see some in action.

My second fish was a smallmouth, and we couldn't predict which would be next — largemouth or smallmouth. The shorelines here are steep and rock strewn. There are no brush or trees growing in the water, but there are large mats of driftwood backed up in some of the coves.

IT IS EASY fishing, for you simply work the shorelines at this time of the year. Casting around the rock outcrops and along the mats of drift seems to be the most productive procedure.

We stuck to artificials since Cook has a lot of confidence in his bait. Some of the other Buckeye fishermen (there are 31 writers on this trip) used live bait called "spring lizards." These are no more than salamanders caught by hand from beneath rocks in the fast-flowing stream here in the mountains. Faith in the Boba-Linda paid off, however, for we caught bass.

All the action we had was on this bait, and we tried some others. It is modeled after the famed Rapala which is difficult to find and disappears from sporting goods stores as fast as it arrives. You can get a Boba-Linda, however, from Robert L. Cook, Route 2, Maryville, Tenn. Price is $2.00.

THE FISHING possibilities here are enough to make you want to pack up and move. Fontana Lake is at the end of the huge TVA chain, and offers some 10,000 miles of shoreline to anglers. There is trout fishing in the mountain streams, the best, perhaps, being Hazel Creek.

Directly below Fontana Dam are two other dams belonging to the Aluminum Company of America — Cheoah and Santeetlah. There are trout and muskies in Cheoah and fine bass fishing in Santeetlah, which we fished today.

Water was higher here and had flooded some willows, and this is where we found the bass in Santeetlah. Later, I understand, the level will bed ropped and the rock shore will be more exposed.

THE ENTIRE Great Smoky area appears to be a large forest preserve. This vicinity is owned almost entirely by the government. There are the Great Smoky Mountains National Park, Joyce Kilmer Memorial Forest, Santeetlah Wildlife Area, and the Nantahala National Forest.

The scenery here is impressive, as many people know, but it cannot all be seen from a car. A walk through part of the Joyce Kilmer Forest is an experience you would not want to miss.

Here is a stand of trees that are as the pioneers saw them—huge hemlocks, tulip poplars and oaks. The area was owned by a lumber company, but the lakes in this region flooded the roads and a railroad track before these trees could be cut. Preserved now for all to see, a hike here is like walking in a cathedral.

LAUREL IS in bloom and the azaleas are just finishing their performance. The rhododendrons will put on their show for sightseers next month. With all of the government land here, there is enough development to allow the enjoyment of the area.

Fontana Village offers 305 cottages and a lodge to tourists, and has all the facilities of a small town. Actually that is what it is, for TVA built the place for construction workers when the dam was built during World War II.

Among other places I've seen are the motel and cabins at Thunderbird, and the beautiful, remote and scenic Snowbirds Lodge on a mountain top.

This trip has been too short — I hope to return soon.

Bill Schmidt Tops Hitters In Old Timer

There was plenty of action in the South Side Old Timers League Tuesday night at Southview as Arena put down Blatz 28-16 and Babberts blasted Schoenling 29-10.

Bow Wow defeated Don's Inn 17-4 and Duquesne won over Old Landmark 20-3 in other games.

HOME RUN hitters of the night were Bing Miller, Bill Nicely of Schoenling, Ray Jander, Pat Quillan and Hickory Eaton of Babberts Bob Townsend, Old Landmark; Bill Davis, Jim Amburly, Duquesne; Bob Shaver, Don's Inn; Herman Veit and Rich Herbert of Arena.

Bill Schmidt of Babberts took hitting honors for the night, getting five for five at the plate. Ted Rector and Herman Veit hit five for six.

Brookwood Gals, Hope, Pace Church Play

Wet grounds caused postponement of the games in the South Side "Y" Inter-Church Softball Program, Monday and Friday of last week, but there was plenty of action the remainder of the week as the hitters continued their fine stickwork.

GIRLS — Brookwood Presbyterian lassies parlayed good hitting with fine fielding as they racked up victory number two with a win over St. Paul United. Washington Ave. E.U.B. opened their season with an impressive triumph over Parsons Baptist and Hope evened up their season record (1-1) as they outscored Emmanuel in their "battle of Lutherans."

Patty Hall, Mary Girton, Mary Harmon, Jessie Mordoff, Diane Cummings, Dinah Caldwell, Peggy Dupler, Patty Koch, Susie Bell and Jo Ann Dethloff were tops for their respective teams in the batting department.

WEDNESDAY JUNIORS— Hope Lutheran took over the driver's seat in this circuit by taking a real thriller from St. John United, 9-6. In other games on the card Southwood Church of Christ came to life in the late innings to outscore St. Paul United and St. Paul Lutheran found their hitting eyes and rolled on to a victory over South Methodist outlasted St. Paul United in a thrill packed contest that saw both teams come up with classy fielding plays.

INTERMEDIATE BOYS — Roger Chapman and John Evans were tops in the hitter's parade in the "Big Boys" loop as Frebis Church of God topped Wilson Ave. Nazarene.

S. Haskin was Wilson's only consistant hitter. In another game South Methodist outlasted St. Paul United in a thrill packed contest that saw both teams come up with classy fielding plays.

South High Senior Gets Ben Medal

By MARILYN SCHMIDT
(Contributing Writer)

To a South High senior, bronze is definitely as good as gold.

Just ask Robert Scott, he'll verify it.

Scott was a recent recipient of the honored bronze medal from the Benjamin Franklin Chapter of the Ohio Society, Sons of the American Revolution.

The award was given for dependability, cooperation, leadership and patriotism.

Scott, along with 39 other high school and 54 junior high students, was given the honor in ceremonies at Indianola Junior High recently.

Municipal Judge Wilbur L. Shull made the presentations. Other speakers included Kenneth B. Johnston, chapter good citizen chairman; Charles A. Jones, president of the National Society SAR, and Chet Long, local news commentator.

Fishing Derby Opens June 12 At Schiller

The sixth annual Fishing Derby at Schiller Park will have its official opening Wednesday, June 12, and run all summer until Aug. 15.

This special event for all boys and girls, who are 14 years of age or under as of Sept. 1, 1963, is co-sponsored by the South East Lions Club and the Advisory Council of the Schiller Recreation Center.

APPLICATIONS for membership in the South East Lions Club Junior Fishing Club may be secured at any of the schools in this community or from Schiller Recreation Center.

Youngsters wishing to take part in this event should get an entry blank and have it filled out by his or her parents, then bring it to Schiller Center to receive an official membership card in the club.

This year there will again be a boys' and a girls' division.

SPECIAL PRIZES will be awarded for all tagged fish caught within the contest dates. Also, all club members will be eligible for other prizes to be awarded in a drawing on the final day of the contest.

When tagged fish are caught, the tag is to be given to a leader on the Schiller Playground so that the child's name can be registered as having caught that particular fish.

Reb 9 Downs Irish, Hawks

By ART KIENZLE

Coach Bob Nolan had better luck with his baseball team this past week as his South High nine took two close games, edging Aquinas, 3-2, and downing Hartley, 4-2, at home.

Highlights of the Terrier-Reb duel saw upcoming sophomore pitcher Terry Emrich go all the way in collecting his second win of the season, while Bill Howard smashed a two-run third-inning homer.

AGAINST HARTLEY, outfielder Howard (LA's Frank Howard's brother) turned pitcher as he gave the Rebs a victory over the Hawks with a four-hitter.

The Rebs have just two games remaining — a make-up with Eastmoor and North tomorrow.

Hamilton toppled the Crusaders, however, 6-1, picking up five of its runs in the first three frames.

Kids! Free Ads From Hartley Newspapers

Kids! Here is something just for you.

Once again Hartley newspapers are offering free want ads to boys and girls 16 years old or under. They're timed just right for the end of school, too.

Want a summer job? Like to trade some books? There's a big market for babysitters, grass cutters. Maybe you'd like to get rid of that old bicycle or be a pet walker.

Last year 204 kids submitted ads offering services, selling and swapping — just ask your parents what a Hartley Want Ad can do.

Your free ad will appear in the June 5 and 6 editions of all seven Hartley newspapers.

Here are the easy rules:

1. Only boys and girls 16 and under may submit free want ads.

2. Ads must not contain more than 20 words, including your name, address and phone number.

3. Name, address and phone must be listed or the ad cannot be accepted.

4. No ads will be accepted by telephone. They must be taken or mailed to Hartley Newspapers, Boys' and Girls' Want Ad Dept., 2465 W. Broad-st, Columbus 4, Ohio.

5. All ads must be received by 10 a.m. Monday, June 3.

6. The newspaper reserves the right to edit or reject any ad.

to beginning reading and an inability to express himself through the written word.

7. Our educational system could profit much if some system could be devised whereby the more capable and conscientious teachers could be rewarded on some basis other than the fact that they hold certain degrees and the fact they have served a certain number of years. More attention should be given to rewarding individual teachers for his or her exceptional ability to teach. More of these teachers should be kept in teaching rather than being elevated to administrative jobs where their services as excellent teachers are lost.

8. We need to devise some method of interesting more parents in a close relationship with the school and with their children's school work. Too many parents look upon the school teacher as a daytime baby sitter.

9. It is highly desirable that the matter of moral and character development is not overlooked and is made a part of the processes of learning to live together.

10. If and when reliable surveys show that more money is needed for new buildings and teachers' salaries, residents of the community should realize that this is their most important investment and should support such measures.

Children) and relief."

Bernard Wohl, executive director of the settlement; Al Wilder, president of the Columbus Settlement Staff Workers Assn., and Sol Isaac of the United Community Council called upon the City-County Relief Committee to keep grants at the 70 per cent level.

The committee, however, voted to cut to 50 per cent, but appealed to the state to rescind its cut and to return to 50 per cent matching funds for welfare.

If the state restored its cut, declared City Finance Director Wayne Freeman, the committee could return to 70 per cent of the state minimum.

Columbus School Officials Study Semester Alternates

(First of a two-part series)

The potentials of a four-quarter plan for school operation appears so tempting that a counter-argument seems hardly worth considering. But a realistic appraisal discloses that the question goes much deeper than the number of hours, weeks or months a school building lies idle.

Joseph L. Davis, executive assistant to Dr. Harold H. Eibling, superintendent of Columbus public schools, outlined the "four-quarter" plan in a report to Paul R. Langdon, president of the Columbus Board of Education.

The Davis report contained conclusions presented by a committee of three school principals. They were: Leslie Evans, committee chairman, Central High School; C. T. Hathaway, Franklin Junior High School, and Miss Dorothy Diehl, Clinton Elementary School.

While the report dealt with the feasibility of a four-quarter plan for Columbus public schools, it applies, generally, to the tri-mester concept. The report findings would also apply, generally, to school districts throughout the state.

Here are some of the advantages to be gained from a switch to the four-quarter plan:

1. Reduce the need for new buildings to the minimum.

2. Reduce overcrowding, because classes would be only three-quarters as large.

3. Benefit school personnel and parents by eliminating half-day sessions.

4. Reduce teacher shortages, and eliminate necessity of using unqualified teachers.

5. Allow teachers to work a full year, with corresponding increase in salary.

6. Permit pupils to make up failed subjects through attending the fourth quarter.

7. Allow brighter youngsters to accelerate by attending all quarters, affording opportunity for broader knowledge and/or earlier graduation.

In all, these advantages would seem to indicate a formula with equal and generous benefits to the parent, teacher and pupil. The four-quarter plan promises full utilization of physical facilities, and presents areas of help for both the slow learner and the gifted student.

But many who would readily back such a promising program at "face value" might have some second thoughts after giving equal consideration to the negative aspects.

Some of the disadvantages cited in the committee findings include:

1. Disruption of planned family vacations when children in various schools are not scheduled for vacation at the same time.

2. Difficulty in scheduling of such extracurricular activities as varsity sports, bands, orchestra, dramatics, debates, plays, etc.

3. Summer community activities and school playground programs would be disrupted. This would involve school playground noises while classes are in session, revamping of community activities to a year-round basis, and other related problems.

4. Building maintenance, cafeteria and transportation costs would increase.

5. Pupil transfer and adjustment problems would be intensified, particularly when from an area not using a similar plan.

6. Students who would be graduated at an earlier age might not be eligible for jobs or for admission to college.

7. Withut time for additional college work or educational travel, the quality of teaching may deteriorate.

It would seem that the disadvantages are as foreboding as the advantages are promising.

There is, however, a "middleground" approach, Davis reported — the extended school year. This is the area Davis covered, as a supplement to the committee findings, in his report to Langdon.

In expressing a belief that the "extended school year" formula would best meet present and anticipated needs, Davis listed the following three "important considerations:"

1. The improvement of learning opportunities for all children and youth as a common goal.

2. A "main responsibility" to provide opportunities for the optimum development of each pupil, and

3. That 39 weeks are already available for education; that the present progress is good, and getting better. "Let's make certain that we do nothing to cause any attrition in the strength of the present regular school year," Davis said.

(The second and concluding article in this series will explain the "extended school year" plan, its operation within the Columbus school system and its potential for the future.)

SUMMER CAMP

Basic preparations were made during the weekend for the Central Ohio Council's summer camp program planned for the vacation months.

Councilwide sessions were held at Camp Lazarus and Camp Greenhills, the two council reservations, to prepare troop leaders whose units will be using the camps. This is the first year the Greenhills site, near Logan, will be used in the summer program.

Training was for four different leaders within the individual troops. These leaders are Scoutmaster, program director, aquatics director and commissary director. A camping and cooking demonstration was also a part of the weekend.

This summer will be the first year that summer camp is held in the two different locations, Lazarus and Greenhills. Lazarus is for those units with or without a great deal of equipment, as troops can either use their own tents or sleep in camp shelters. Most meals there are eaten in the mess hall, and the greatest emphasis is on advancement.

Greenhills is strictly a rustic camp, since all troops must pitch their own tents and cook their meals. The emphasis here is more on putting Scoutcraft skills to practical use than on passing advancement.

A new facility to be found at Camp Lazarus this year is a rebuilt picnic grounds which Cub packs, Scout troops and Explorer posts can reserve during the summer.

'Printed Garbage' Infects

There are few who will deny the power of the written word and the picture as a virtually limitless source of education and knowledge for the human mind. Indeed, our great nation was advanced in its earliest days as much by the voracious reader as by the more formally educated scholar.

The advancement in printing and photography techniques and of distribution methods have not been without a serious negative aspect. Cheaper production and distribution factors have, unfortunately, resulted in the country being flooded with the "cheapest" type of printed and pictorial material — obscenity and pornography.

A recent article in the Journal, a publication of the National Council of Juvenile Court Judges, stresses a couple of points well worth being remembered by all parents. Prepared by the Cincinnati branch of Citizens For Decent Literature, the article says in part:

"Perverts are not born. No man is by nature a pervert." Manifestations of perversion "exist in youth because of circumstances under which they develop, because of the environment in which they live."

Certainly, an important part of the environment for youth is the type of reading material that is fed into inquisitive minds. (And it is a sad but true fact that the less desirable the material, the greater the promotion for readership.)

A U.S. Supreme Court decision in one smut-for-profit case stated the following test for obscenity:

"You may ask yourself does it offend the common conscience of the community by present-day standards."

Just what is our present-day standard? Do we want printed matter for our children to be food for constructive thought, or garbage for malnutrition and eventual intellectual starvation?

The World Knows . . .

With a well-earned hero's welcome behind him, Air Force Maj. L. Gordon Cooper, Jr., America's flyingest astronaut, returns now to the less glamorous role of an earthbound space technician.

Billed as the devil-may-care, lighthearted member of the original seven astronauts, Cooper proved that an effervescent personality need not interfere with the serious side of space travel.

Our space victory, while less spectacular, perhaps, than what the Russians SAY they have accomplished, is nonetheless, more impressive. Because we allowed "live" coverage by a free press, the world KNOWS what we have accomplished.

Weed Fatigue

Guest Pulpit . .
Trust And Let The Lord Lighten Your Load

We are living in a world of tension, strain and frustration but in Christ we can live relaxed under burdens. Certainly the Lord has given us every reason not to be tied up like a rubber band. He said, "Take my yoke upon you . . . for my yoke is easy and my burden is light."

Rev. Dick

If you should go to bed and lie there with all your muscles taut because you were afraid the bed would break down with you, you would not rest but would get up in the morning exhausted. To put it simply, you have to trust to be able to rest. Some people are still holding themselves inwardly taut, afraid that if they let go the grace of God won't sustain them, so they live exhausted lives, worn out from within.

One day an old woman trudged along the road with a heavy pack upon her back. A man in a wagon overtook her and offered her a lift. Grateful beyond words, she climbed in but sat there still holding her burden on her back. When the man suggested that she put it in the back of the wagon, she replied, "O, but it is so kind of you to carry me, I don't want to make you carry my burdens too."

We smile at the old lady and yet how many of us do just as she did? We believe that the grace of God can save our souls, but we do not trust that same grace to carry our daily burdens, our daily cares, and anxieties, our worries of business and the home. These we continue to keep on our own backs. The outcome is exhausted souls.

From out of childhood days many can remember. I am sure mother's quotations from the Bible that read like this: "Casting all your care upon Him for He careth for you." This was surely something to remember for how many of us have seen mother do that very thing? She cast all her care upon Him, for without this she could have never gone through what she did.

The Lord desires to be our burden bearer. He has paid the supreme price on Calvary for the sins of the whole world. And when we become His children through the new birth, He desires to bear our burdens as well as save our souls. The song writer phrased it this way: "O what needless pain we bear, all because we do not carry everything to God in prayer."

Frosting On The Cake

By
"UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

Thoughtful and informed millions are fed up to the gills with taxes piled on more taxes, including all of the back-door sneaks and leaks hidden all along the way. If there ever was a time for fearless and intelligent leadership in all units of government, it is now.

Academic geniuses now in power are still blissfully unaware of the general public temper about the whole mess. But, one of these days fate and our liberty-under-law form of government will catch up with them and perhaps Divine Providence will save us before the whole structure of something-for-nothing goes down the drain.

Party labels mean so little any more. The Republicans keep right on nominating and electing crazy spenders and secret socialist-minded men to office under a false pretense party label. Jeffersonians continue to pray and bide their time until the present economic madness in government has run its course. Then old Mother Nature and the lash of final circumstance disaster will give us the third oak in the forest of American Statesmanship.

The country will go back to work and the "nuts" will have to crawl back into the woodwork. A dollar will again be worth something and the tax burden will be "fumigated."

White Denies Report

To the Editor:

I am amazed at the report in the Sunday (May 12) Dispatch stating that some Republicans were attempting to draft me for the position of mayor if incumbent mayor Carl Huffman does not run in the November election.

But since the rumor has been circulated at this time, I feel that it is most important to make an official statement regarding this.

The city of Hilliard is faced with a dilemma in that many hats have been thrown in the ring for position of mayor, and yet none has stated a strong position with the exception of one man for the fall election—that man being councilman Steven King.

I am a strong advocate of the mayor-council form of government, this is true.

I am for a full time administration of the rapidly growing city. But I am also for "self-preservation of the community against the strong arm of the city of Columbus and those who would have Hilliard give in to them."

I am opposed to knuckling under to Columbus on water and sewer contracts which in the long run would jeopardize our community.

I am for the "sensible growth of the city of Hilliard" and believe that citizens should have more voice in the determination of this growth.

The citizens of Hilliard by their action on May 7 have selected a home-rule charter which is a strong-mayor form of government.

They voted 2-1 for the charter. They have indicated by this willingness that they want to see Hilliard progress under this form of government.

I believe that whoever the candidate for mayor may be, he must be willing to work with council and work for the people and all of the citizens of the city.

He must be able to compromise if the case may be for the betterment of the city. The future expansion of the city of Hilliard depends largely on the ability of the administrator and city fathers to hold fast against Columbus' desire to stamp out commercial and industrial growth in the Norwich Township and Hilliard city area.

Consideration of the present business establishments and the future of the present "old downtown" area must be considered. The biggest factor in Hilliard future development is "just how much are the citizens willing to pay for the future progress of the city—be it water, safety protection, or other items."

At the present moment the city is progressing forward, and on what appears to be a course of constructive action. Township officials and city officials have approved a course of action for a master plan. Development of park sites has been accomplished. These are items that the citizens have requested through surveys over the years. It appears to me that the people of the city of Hilliard by virtue of their passage of the charter want future progress and development without interference by the city of Columbus.

As to my candidacy for mayor, as appeared in an erroneous statement in a downtown paper; it came as a complete surprise to me.

I, however, at this time would not state that I would decline a draft for the position. I am 100 per cent for the city of Hilliard and what "all of the people want"—not just what a select few want.

In conclusion, the city of Hilliard can and will progress with a unified effort of the citizens who believe that Hilliard can stand on her own two feet and do the job themselves without help or strings attached or interference from outside the city.

An Editor's Outlook . . . by Jenkin Lloyd Jones
River People Made Of Stern Stuff

The old man and his wife, fishing from a boulder into the dark waters of the Ohio River, looked up with mild interest as the towboat, Lin Smith, 20 hours from Louisville, shoved her three giant gasoline barges toward Government Lock 48 on the Kentucky side.

High in the pilot house Capt. Ellis Gipson stood easily behind the steering handles. He wore a juanty long-billed cap and the casual expression of a man about to perform a trivial thing. Six hundred feet ahead the jackstaff on the lead barge swung slowly around toward the upper lock gate. A curl of water splashed the shore.

Jones

Suddenly a squall of cold wind out of Indiana caught the unwieldly tow at the moment the set of the current pushed her toward the rocks. The high prow of the first barge loomed over the startled fishing couple and they fled up the bank. Gipson rang full astern and set the reverse rudders over hard. There was a momentary pause at the brink of disaster.

"You'd better do somethin', Mr. Engineer," said Gipson quietly, "or we're goin' to tear her up."

And he leaned casually against the steering post, calmly munching a cud of tobacco until the engines caught and the huge tow halted in a boiling cauldron of mud and inched back into deep water.

Ever since that moment I have been an admirer of the rivermen.

It has been some years since my wife and I rode grandly down from Louisville to Baton Rouge in the air conditioned luxury of the Lin Smith. But I never cross the Mississippi or the Ohio or the Tennessee in an airplane without searching the stream for towboats. For the cool, calm men in the high glass pilot houses who buck upstream at five miles an hour are made of the same stuff as the bright boys at the jet controls who skim the earth at 550. These are no jobs for sissies.

Life on the river is better, of course, than in the Mark Twain age. Boilers don't blow. Steel hulls can snap the snags. Mark III radars outline the banks in the darkest fogs. And the upper Mississippi, the Ohio and the Tennessee are a series of slack water pools backed up behind the government dams.

But the Mississippi below Alton is still an untamed beast with the restless channel whipping back and forth, building up bars and ripping them out, swallowing plantations and moving farms from one state to another. You'll be vaguely disturbed in your sleep by a thump and the next morning you'll find the deck littered with leaves and branches, souvenirs of a bend shaved too closely in the darkness. The charts are no good on the lower river. You navigate by complicated sailing orders issued each week by the Army Engineers.

I remember Capt. John Philo Marionneaux, the Cajun skipper of the Lin Smith, who said of the river: "She's living and our enemy. Our companies may be competitors, but rivermen have to help each other."

For 24 hours a day the short-wave radio on the pilot house bulkhead chatters with skipper talk.

"Boy did I ever get messed up in Commerce Crossing! You don't take the shape of the shore off Campbell Light no more. Them two red buoys are out in the middle and you got to sashay around 'em and turn upriver of the dredge. Come back, Cap'n Billy."

"Thanks, Cap'n Oscar. We're comin' up on Hole-in-Wall now. There's mighty fast water in the Racetrack on account of the rise on the Yazoo. Watch for logs."

Minnesota, Mississippi and Pennsylvania voices come in with warnings of new hazards at old names — names like Whiskey Chute, Shoofly Bar, Pair o' Dice, Hop Joe, Free Nigger Point and Destruction Bend.

Well, here at Cincinnati they've been fitting out the Delta Queen for another cruise season. She's the last passenger-carrying packet on the rivers. Strangely, she was built in Scotland in sections and shipped to San Francisco where she spent years on the overnight run up to Sacramento. The famous Greene family of Cincinnati, which stubbornly refused to admit that packeting was dead, finally bought her and towed her around through the Panama Canal.

From now until the last of September she'll cover the Mississippi from New Orleans to St. Paul, the Tennessee as far as Chattanooga, and the Ohio to Pittsburgh. The green hills of Kentucky, the tall bluffs of Wisconsin and the delta canebrakes of Louisiana will echo to her steam calliope. She's the last of the Mohicans, the last of great tradition of the Natchez, the Robert E. Lee, the J. M. White, the Eclipse and the Grand Republic.

But the Mohicans may return. Business has been good and is getting better. An overcrowded and overhurried America may be about to discover the peace, the spaciousness of our river wildernesses.

Captain Ernest E. Wagner, 52-year-old skipper of the Delta Queen, guided me around the painters on the Texas deck and we leaned over the rail, looking at the thick waters.

"How did I get started on the river?" The captain laughed. "Dipping nickel ice cream cones on the boat that run up to the amusement park. I was a 17-year-old kid out of the Tennessee hills and I'd never seen a steamboat before. I dipped one day. Then I applied to be a deckhand. The river got me."

FOOD MARKETS THIS WEEK
Good Home Freezing Begins At The Market

By ESTELLE B. FRANKS

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:

Vegetables—Greenhouse tomatoes, asparagus, salad vegetables, new red potatoes, lettuce, green peppers

Fruits—Bananas, pineapple, local rhubarb, strawberries

Protein Foods—Beef "specials," fryers, pork shoulder roasts and steaks, dairy products, large eggs

When vegetables or fruits are at their best for table use it is usually the ideal time to buy them for freezing. This time, as a rule, coincides with peak of harvest . . . when supply, quality and price are all in your favor.

Mrs. Franks

Foods to watch your market for now are asparagus, rhubarb and strawberries. Local asparagus will be past its best come June 1. Rhubarb is tops now for freezing and the season is here for shipped-in strawberries. Kentucky and California are the heavy strawberry suppliers this week. Ohio strawberries start coming around Memorial Day; local growers expect the heaviest pickings the second week in June this year.

Choosing the proper variety is also an important factor in successful freezing of fruits and vegetables. Some varieties freeze better than others. For example, a variety of strawberries may taste fine in a fresh strawberry shortcake but may not make a satisfactory frozen product.

Extension Bulletin No. 369, "Freezing and Using Vegetables, Fruits and Prepared Foods," O.S.U., lists the common fruits and vegetables that are recommended for freezing. It also gives tips on selection and detailed preparation methods. Drop a card or phone the Franklin County Extension Office, Room 317 Old Post Office, 221-5411, Extension 454, if you want a copy of the bulletin.

RED MEAT SUPPLIES CONTINUE LARGE

Retail beef prices are expected to remain relatively low during the spring and into the summer as there are still large inventories of cattle on feed at heavier average dressed weights. Typical of the season, there are a number of fine front quarter features—chuck, roasts, beef stew and the wholesale front quarter to be cut for freezer storage.

Retail pork supplies are declining and will be noticeably lower through the summer months. However, a number of pre-planned specials are available at present on loin roasts and chops, butt roasts and steaks, country-style ribs and roll sausage. Bacon is still at very economical price levels along with a variety of smoked hams.

DAV Slams Sale

The Disabled American Veterans of Franklin County have only one fund-raising project on the streets of Columbus and other towns in Franklin County each year. This is the Forget-Me-Not Sale conducted in the fall. All legitimate salespersons are identified by the blue Forget-Me-Not and canister.

The so-called "Disabled Veterans" who have been selling plastic rosettes and other novelties in the shopping centers and other congested areas have absolutely no conection with the Disabled American Veterans, are not sponsored by the Disabled American Veterans and in some cases are not even veterans. The only persons benefited by the sale of these novelties are the salespersons themselves.

By DOROTHY DAVIES

Activities for the graduating class at South High School have been scheduled and some are already underway.

Rehearsals for commencement, class day, and baccalaureate are scheduled for May 23 and 27 and June 3.

Class day will be held Friday, May 31, at 1:30. This is a program for the underclassmen as well as the graduates.

Graduation is scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday, June 4, in the stadium. If the weather is bad the exercises will be re-scheduled Wednesday, June 5, either in the stadium or in the auditorium.

The senior banquet and prom are set for Wednesday, May 29. The banquet will begin at 6 p.m. The prom will be held from 9 p.m. to midnight.

Sophomores Put On Fashion Show

By CONNIE STEWART

"215 Day" was the theme of the style show presented May 15 at South by the advanced students in Mrs. Ruth Phipps' clothing classes.

The girls modeled casual outfits, sports clothes, suits, date dresses, and party dresses.

Many of the hats worn were made by the girls.

Participating in the style show were Anna Bean, Loretta Boso, Judy Conon, Myra Cantrell, Judy Carpenter, Katherine Collins, Norma Doneghy, Donna Estelle, Lyla Frost, Sharon Cozsd.

Janice Henthorne, Linda Howard, Mary Krautner, Dorothy Monford, Billy Jo Nelson, Marcia Nixon, Gail Werner, Norma Westmoreland, Dietra Byrd, Linda Bayes.

Fern Solveto, Sandy Sarchet, Cheryl Sibole, Bonnie Sowers, Peggy Walker, Delberta Eseman, Arlena Harrell, Lena Farley and Norma Siders.

All sophomore students wore badges May 15 to show that they were wearing two-piece dresses they made this year.

The dresses were of either plain or checked gingham.

Each girl created her own trim, made of eyelet, lace, embroidery, ric-rac, or a combination of these.

AT BARRETT JR. HIGH

Honor Students Are Awarded Silver Knight

At Barrett's traditional Awards Assembly this week, recognition was given students for outstanding academic accomplishment.

To earn the Silver Knight pin, representing membership in Barrett's Honor Society, students in grade nine must achieve grades of A or B, with at least one-half A's, in major subjects, and no grade lower than C in a minor subject. Following students have been designated Knights:

Arlene Eubanks, Linda Lumbert, Norma Marcum, Kay Moore, Doris Oursler, Julia Peck, Pam Ringer, Sharon Sibole.

American Legion essay winners were Dick Rings and Doris Oursler. This year's assigned topic was "What Can I Do To Help Preserve The American Democracy."

Twenty-five dollar savings bonds went to Bill Davy and Claudia Dunigan, the top scholars for the three year junior high school term.

These savings bonds are provided by the South Optimist Club and the Barrett Y-Teen Club.

Bill Lawhorn and Sharon Sibole were selected as "Top Boy and Girl" by their grade nine classmates. American Legion awards were presented to Bill and Sharon by representatives from Southway Post 144.

Also recognized were approximately 400 pupils who received service awards for good citizenship and service of different types to their school.

German Village—

—and still are, for that matter—as skilled in the making of hand-carved wooden objects and delicate glass and china articles as they are in building motors and machines.

German toymakers, especially those in the vicinity of the Black Forest, have for years made tiny dolls, tops and wooden toys from native timber. Often whole families work at carving toys.

But what about painting?

During the Renaissance in Northern Europe, many folks from Flanders entered German boundaries and brought with them the Gothic art features.

These Gothic features in Germany lasted on into the 1500's. One of the most famous German brushwielders was A. Durer (1471-1528), who was a master of both painting and engraving in the tight, intricate Gothic style.

The number of German artists listed in the art lover's "One Hundred of the World's Great Painters and Their Masterpieces" list is quite small, indeed.

And, who knows. Maybe the future painters who can attribute their backgrounds to Germany may bloom from the S. Third-st Art Colony.

At least, as German Village Society President Frank Fetch put it, "the colony adds a great deal of color to the Village." It should be a high spot on the Sunday, June 23, tour.

A. K. Pitchers Limit Long Ball As Loop Opens

Pitchers held a gallery of long ball hitters to only four home runs in the four games played in the Jewish Center A.K. loop openers last week.

Hal Paris with three hits, including a home run, led Kozy Kitchen to a 5-3 decision over Outdoor Military.

OUTDOOR JUMPED out into a two-run lead in its half of the first inning but never touched home plate again.

Ben Horowitz, a "rookie" this year, had two hits for the Militarymen.

Kozy Kitchen scored its five runs on 13 hits while Outdoor Military scored twice on seven hits. Ben Weis was the winning pitcher and Ben Horowitz the loser.

SEYMOUR BAKERY, led by Irv Flox and Ed Baier with four hits each, blasted Muffler King, 13-8. Dennis Browner hit for the circuit in the Seymour attack.

Howard Byer, Mort Rising and Henry Finke all had three hits for the Muffler men.

Seymour scored its 13 runs on 21 hits. Muffler King picked up nine safeties for its eight runs. Sanford Shaw was the winner and Gene Hameroff the loser.

MARTIN'S MARKET scored three runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to defeat a hard fighting Ontario team, 5-3.

Marty Friedman's long home run pushed over the three runs to ice the game. Ernie Michaelson hit a four-bagger for the Ontario team. Dick Stein was the winner and Meyer Kravitz the loser.

HACKMAN REALTY took a 5-4 cliff hanger from Wolman Insurance as Lenny Haas and Irv Lichtenstein picked up three hits a piece.

Stu Newpoff led the Wolman with three hits. Wolman outhit Hackman 15-14 but could only tally four runs.

Curiosity is a prime requirement for all who gather news, in addition to an interest in the activities of other people . . . "nosiness" is the word, in less polite circles.

This writer's curiosity led her to inquire of Jack Schleup the Hartley circulation manager, just how far afield the South Side Leader was sent.

Armed with his information we find that it goes to clipping services in cities such as Chicago, Ill.; Livingston, N.J.; Normal, Ill.; Washington, D.C.; Huntington, W. Va., and Mesa, Ariz. In Ohio, the leader is mailed to companies in Cleveland, Grove City, Xenia and London. Lockbourne Air Force Base and WRFD in Worthington, are also recipients of the paper.

Former area residents are able to keep track of the happenings. The postman delivers the familiar green packet to Washington, D.C.; Finley Park, Ill.; Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.; Oceola, Fla.; Ft. Worth, Texas; Cody, Wyo.; Ft. Lewis, Wash., and Conoga Park, Calif. Jack told us that many boys overseas receive the paper also, but that the ultimate destinations cannot be ascertained by APO numbers.

Individual residents in Cleveland and Cincinnati receive the home town community paper. One also goes to Forest, O., in Hardin County. Most of the smaller towns in the county are represented, too, such as Lockbourne, Grove City, Canal Winchester, Gahanna, Blacklick and Hilliard. We get around!

NO SHORTAGE OF FISHING SPOTS

THE BATTLE OF THE DAY is nearly over and the story of the one that didn't get away will be told and retold by these two anglers for many days . . . at least until the next big battle. Hundreds of lakes in Ohio have offered the avid fisherman a virtual paradise for many years and the future of the popular sport is insured by the Ohio Department of Natural Resources. Columbus is in the center of some of the finest lake, creek and river fishing to be found in the Midwest and hundreds of popular fishing spots are within a four-hour drive of the Ohio Capital City.

Make Plans To Protect Your Health For Traveling Abroad

If you're planning a summer trip out of the United States, it might be wise to consider a few factors concerning your own health before running to catch the Queen Mary.

Otis B. Schreuder, M.D., the medical director (overseas division) of Pan American World Airways, Inc., offers some tips.

First of all, Dr. Schreuder predicted that almost two million Americans will engage in international travel this year. This is more than enough to justify comment on the subject of health for the traveler.

Some travelers will ruin their trip by becoming ill, and this ruination begins early.

"Too often the traveler handicaps himself right from the start," the doctor said. "Frantic last-minute arrangements, farewell parties, the excitement and possible anxiety leave him exhausted and already below par."

The answer, of course, is to start early to avoid the rush.

If going away for any length of time, a physical examination and a dental checkup are in order, the doctor urges. "Your doctor can give the necessary immunizing shots for the section of the world you plan to visit, plus checking on your smallpox vaccination," he added.

You might also toss in a small, simple first-aid kit with the bare essentials: adhesive tape and gauze bandage or small tape-on bandages, aspirin and nasal spray. Take along an extra pair of eyeglasses or a prescription for a new pair in case your present ones are lost or broken.

"If you are a diabetic, are allergic to penicillin or have a condition that should require emergency care, then I strongly urge you to carry an identifying bracelet, tag or card indicating this," the doctor added.

Diarrhea, the most common tourist ailment, is most often caused by contaminated food, milk or water, although emotional tension and too-rich foods can also bring it on, he continued.

"If it strikes," Dr. Schreuder advises, "rest and diet on tea, chicken broth, boiled rice and applesauce. Consult a physician if it lasts more than a day or two."

Here's a final tip:

If in doubt about drinking water, boil it for five minutes or add three drops of tincture of iodine for each quart and let it stand a half hour.

On a more cheerful note, the doctor concluded by saying "very few tourists get sick, so don't be overly concerned about your health problem during the trip. The best policy is to decide on a set of reasonable precautions and then relax. Your stay abroad may be a medicine in itself."

Bon voyage!

Comedy Corner

"No, Herschel, I can't find anything in your future that says you're going to travel!"

OUTFIT THE DOG

Taking the family dog along on your boating trip? Then outfit him with a body harness rather than a collar, experts recommend. A harness makes it easier to pull Fido out of the water with a boat hook if he falls overboard.

Haydocy Reports Sales At All-Tme High

Paul Haydocy, president of Haydocy Pontiac, 500 W. Broad-st, reports that sales reached an all-time new high in new and used car sales and in the service department during the month of April at his auto dealership.

Haydocy attributed the new records to "a friendly atmosphere, excellent service and the best deals in town." Haydocy Pontiac has also continued to be one of the largest Pontiac dealerships in the state of Ohio, doing a large volume of business which in turn offers better prices to customers.

Haydocy said his agency is looking forward to exceeding last month's record figures during May and sales already are pointed in this direction.

The popular owner-manager of the auto agency is married, has six children and resides at 7575 Belaire-av, Dublin. He is an Air Force Veteran of World War II.

Jack Haydocy, 2277 Nayland-av, Upper Arlington, serves as vice-president of the organization and started in business with his brother at a Cleveland auto firm. In 1956 they purchased their present Pontiac dealership and moved to the Columbus area. Later a large used car lot was added to the business and one of the biggest body and fender repair shops in Columbus was installed.

Make The Most Of Your Vacation Film

By MARCUS ORR

No doubt about it — thousands of people will have happy vacations this summer, but they'll bring back nothing but a flock of sad pictures to show.

Good vacation pictures will be admired over and over again by your family and others. They can be worth many times their original cost, if you'll take time now to make them good.

Following are a few hints to help you make the most of your vacation photography:

Be familiar with your equipment. Too often the camera is the last item purchased (or borrowed) for that once-in-a-lifetime vacation. The results can be disastrous. You can ruin your fun while fumbling over the controls of a new camera. Practice with a few rolls before starting your trip. A camera dealer can show you where you went wrong and any defects in equipment can be spotted in time.

Protect your equipment. Travel is hard on cameras and film. Heat, salt water, and sand are special trouble makers. A good leather carrying case is worth the money. Film and accessories (keep gadgets to a minimum) should be kept in a sturdy box for auto travel. Try to place the box in the coolest part of the car and out of the view of thieves. (Incidentially, camera insurance, available from any general agent, is low cost and a wise investment.)

Heat is a real enemy of color film. For this reason you may wish to buy it as you go, if supply places are assured. Mail it to the processor as soon as it is taken from the camera. Never, but never, keep film supplies on the rear seat ledge of the car. Some photographers select the rear floor of the car for their film storage box, but this may not be good. It may be directly over a hot muffler. Today's greenhouse-glassed autos admit a lot of heat when the car is parked and locked up. A thermometer check may show that a well-insulated trunk and a blanket cover provide the best protection.

Choose films carefully. You'll probably want to do most of your travel pictures in color. There are many new products on the market and some may be confusing. Also beware of bargain "off-brand" films. They're seldom satisfactory. Be sure your camera settings match those given in the instruction sheets. Some modern color films require settings very similar to the black-and-white stuff of 10 years ago.

Scenic views seem to be the chief targets of vacation camera toters . . . although some of your most pleasing shots will be closeups of people, flowers, animals relics, etc. Large expanses of mountain, prairie, and water may appeal to the eye but often make disappointing pictures. Lighting and composition are most important for these. It's no longer a sin to point your camera into the general direction of the sun—providing you keep a low-cost sunshade on the lens. Landscapes will take on a new "texture" through this backlighting or sidelighting from the sun . . . just remember to allow a little more light into the lens. Nudge the pointer over a mark or two, say from f16 to f11 or f8.

Compose your scenics with some foreground objects in them. Pictures shot out over the water from the railing of a pleasure boat are seldom good . . . so step back 10 feet or so and include part of the boat. The difference will be gratifying. For distance landscapes, include a tree, a car, or person in the foreground to give depth and scale.

Many camera fans shoot their vacations with two cameras. Scenics are most economically shot on, say 35mm slides, the best of which may be made into pleasing enlarged prints for framing or picture book. Save the movie camera footage for the interesting little side trips . . . the true action. Shoot movies of that horseback ride to Hidden Falls, the morning of fishing, the Indian rain dance, the old fellow tending his tobacco patch, the ride on the ski-lift and Junior building his sand castles at the beach.

If you must shoot landscapes with that movie camera, do it in several takes. Don't swing the camera (called panning) in wide sweeps hoping to get everything in a 10-second burst. You'll make your audience dizzy.

A good rule for novice movie cameramen: make believe you have a bad case of rheumatism. Freeze your body while you hold the camera and let the subject do the moving. Pan the camera only when you must follow close-up fast action. If action in the scene "turns sour," stop the camera and choose a new angle. Liven up your footage with good closeups, signs to identify your location, faces of the people you see.

When you return home and all the pictures are assembled, be firm. Edit out all your "goofs", duplicate views, etc. Your family and friends will love you for it, and your reputation for good photography will be established.

Horse Auction Set For May 25

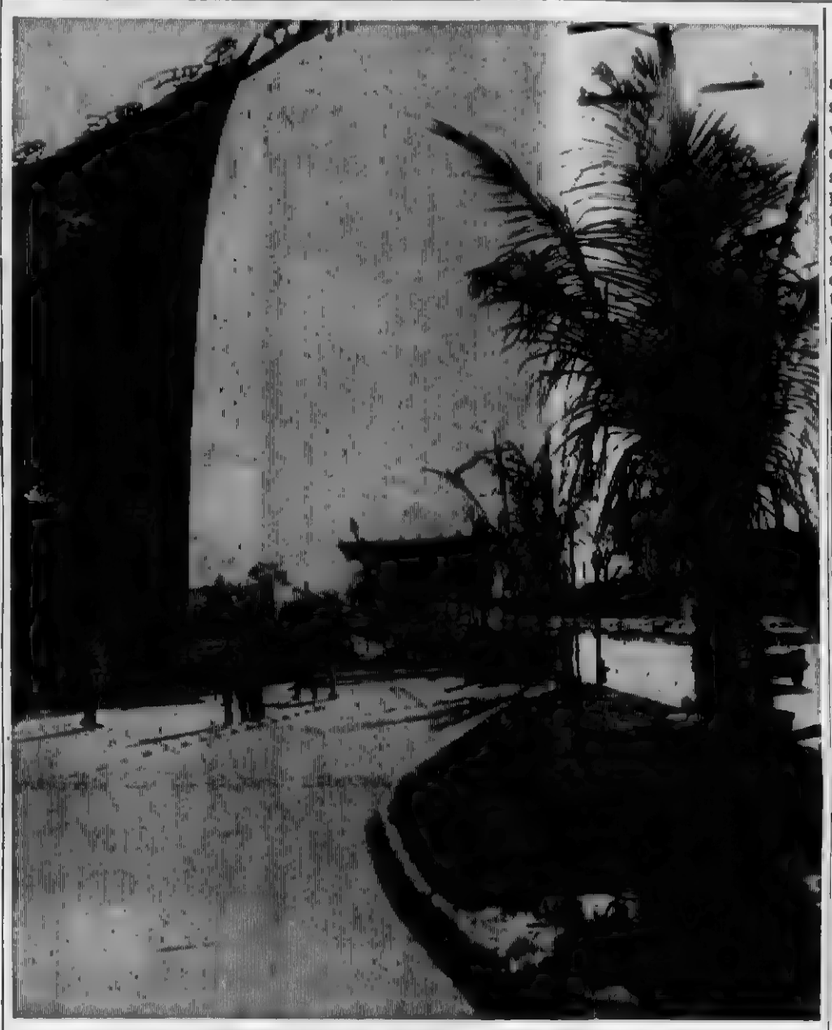
Like auctions?

Most people do and Earl Lambert, manager of the Midwest Auction Sales Management, is extending an invitation to the public to visit their horse auction in the Junior Fair Building at the Ohio Exposition Center Saturday, May 25.

The sale of tack and equipment will start at 3 p.m. and horses will go on sale at 5 p.m.

In the forthcoming sale some outstanding horses are being offered with some exceptionally good registered Arabian stock from the estate of the late Dr. John E. Talbott of Lima, Ohio.

Many horse breeders and farmers are turning their surplus horses into cash by consigning them to the Midwest Sales. Offices of the organization are at 544 Parsons-av.

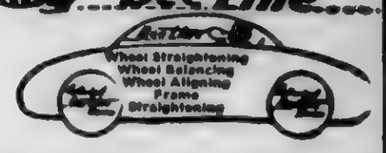


EARLY START

Travelers who complain about the crowds in Yellowstone National Park will enjoy its true wilderness beauty before the big summer season. For the early birds, Old Faithful Inn and Lake Lodge opened May 1, Canyon Village Motor Lodge will open May 24.

OFF ON A FAMILY CAMPING TRIP

READY FOR A WEEKEND at the camp grounds the Jay Erbe family, 168 Postle-bl, have everything in shape to join with thousands of other Ohioans at their favorite outdoor sport. The family uses a tent-trailer combination, which easily hitches to the rear of a car, that opens into a large tent complete with beds. Sides of the trailer are low to allow storage of camping equipment. Leading the procession with large jug in hand is Gary, 8, followed by his father Jay and little sister Debbie, 3. Fifteen-year-old Ricky followed by Darlene, 16, and Mrs. Erbe complete the family camping group.



A BIT OF FLORIDA IN OHIO

PALM TREES have displaced native Buckeye trees on Columbus' East Side. Sporting six eight-foot and two 25-foot and a dozen smaller tropical palms is the Kahiki Supper Club, 3583 E. Broad-st. Photo shows workmen after they completed transplanting two of the palms, which were trucked in from Florida. How long passersby will be able to view a bit of Florida on the East Side will depend upon when freezing weather arrives next fall.

FALSE SAVINGS

You can get more "mileage" on your vacation this summer if you drive a car with new, well-inflated tires, drive on a hot day at high speeds, and carry a minimum load. But, the American Automobile Association says, it will be a false mileage saving, since those factors affect the odometer reading rather than the actual mileage traveled.

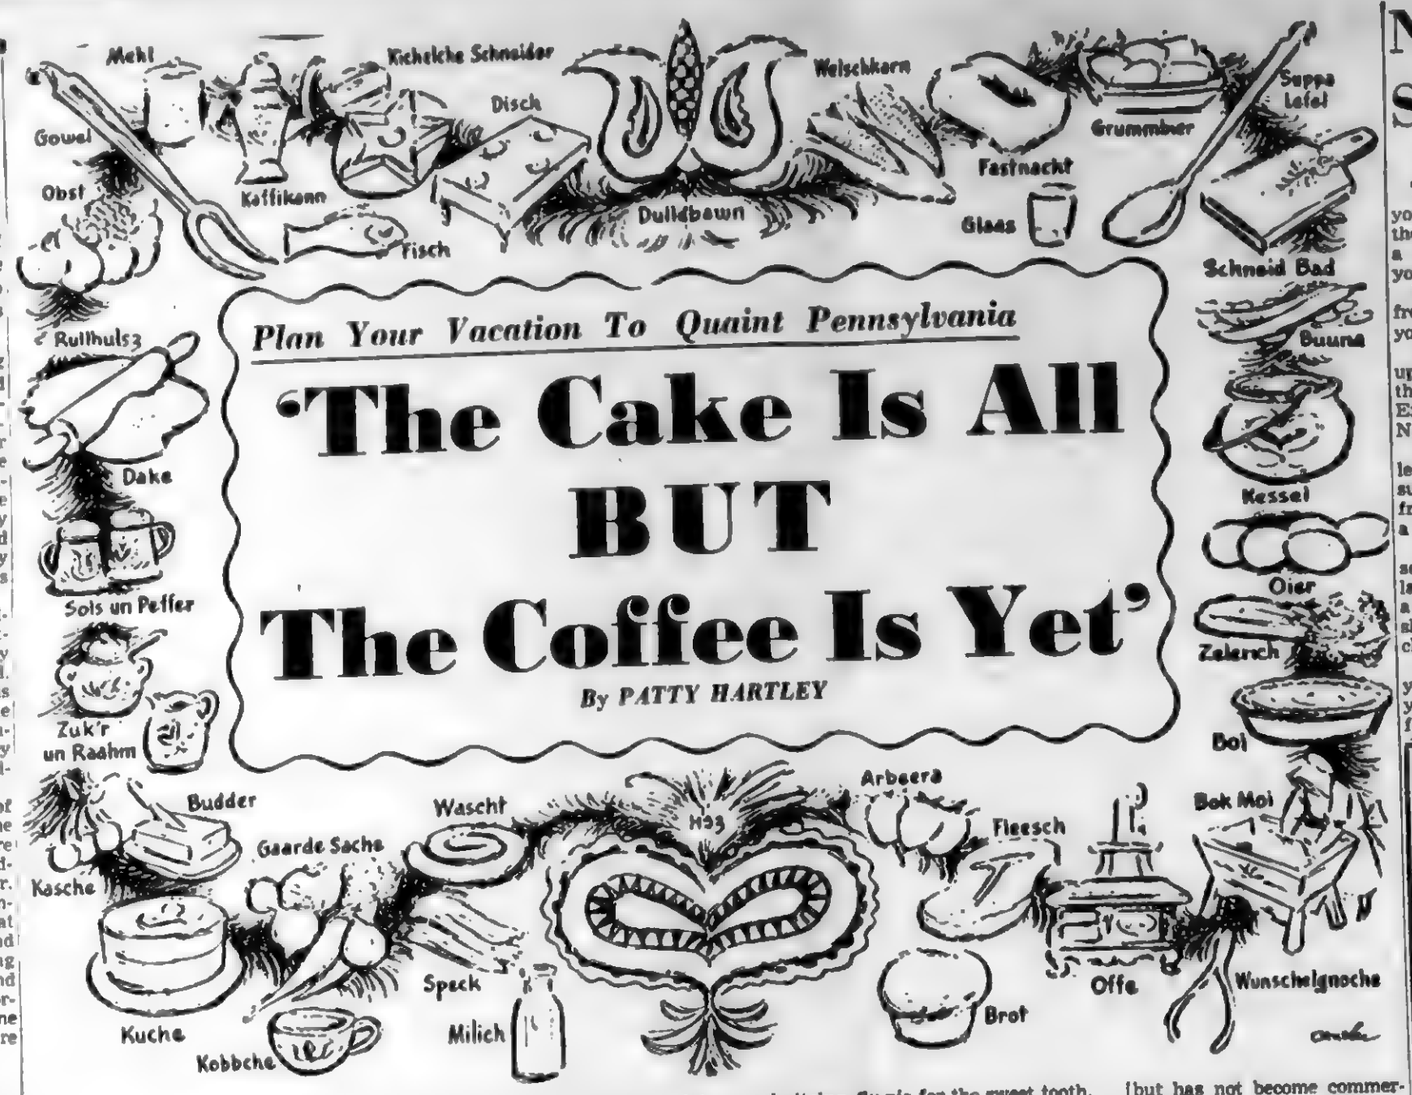
Wildlife Orphans Hard To Raise

This is the time of the year when wild animal orhpans are reported to the Division of Wildlife officials. Often, the person reporting wants to "adopt" the young creatures and attempt to raise them.



"Do not pick up the young of wildlife which you may find in the outdoors," the game officials say. "Usually the parents are nearby watching over their young and if you take them, you are actually kidnaping. What is more, you are violating the game laws by taking wildlife illegally and this offense is punishable by a maxmum fine of $200 plus costs.

"The wild young are usually hard to raise and frequently die. If they survive, they must eventually be released. After being reared by humans the are unfit to survive in the wild as the have no wild instinct. As the result, they often fall easy victims to predators.

Don't make orphans of young wildlife, either. Confine cats and dogs as they are bound to capture young wildlife at this time of the year. Drive carefully on the highways, too, for most adults at this season are parents, and if they are killed their young will starve. If you should find an actual case of a wild orphan, call your local game protector. He will take care of the young wildlife."

PROTECT CAMERA

Take your camera along on your motoring vacation this year, but don't keep it in the glove compartment, the American Automobile Association advises. The heat and dust there could be injurious to both camera and film.

Plan Your Vacation To Quaint Pennsylvania

'The Cake Is All BUT The Coffee Is Yet'

By PATTY HARTLEY

Sauerbraten, wiener schnitzel, German potato pancakes and applebutter, topped off with shoo-fly pie and the quaint, cozy atmosphere of a Pennsylvania Dutch kitchen.

There's something unique about the people, food and customs in southeastern Pennsylvania, designated as the heart of Pennsylvania Dutch territory.

Such towns as Lancaster, Bird-In-Hand, Lebanon, Manheim, York, Fertility and Strasburg are populated by Amish, Dunkards and Mennonites who have not changed with the times and who infect tourists with their simple, sincere way of life.

They shun publicity and so other folks in the area have formed the Pennsylvania Dutch Historical Society to preserve and share these homey traditions. Several times during the summer they sponsor folk festivals throughout the area.

Typical will be the Harvest Frolic near Lancaster to be held Aug. 28 through Sept. 2.

The festival has demonstrations on cigar making, fence whitewashing, quilting and bonnet making, schnitzing (applebutter making), soap making, glass blowing, bread baking in outdoor kilns, sauerkraut and relish (sweet and sour) making.

There are numerous neatly-painted sign boards with history on local customs and sayings. These farm folk have a language of their own:

"Throw papa down the steps his hat;" "His rheumatic ouches him so in the back;" "The button don't bell, bump the door;" "Don't talk so quick — it runs together when I think;" "I sit broad, ain't I;" "We grow too soon oldt and too late schmardt."

You'll loosen your belt several notches before you leave this rich farming area. The festival offers home-cured bologna, fresh comb honey and apple cider, sarsaparilla, deep-fried funnel cakes and waffles, long, salty pretzels and the ever delectable shoo-fly pie for the sweet tooth.

These folks are usually early-to-bed, but if you happen to stumble on to a barn dance, you're in for pleasure untold. The Mennonite boys are as cordial to New York tourists as to their own prayer-capped neighbor girls.

You'll want to drive through the countryside to see the clean, productive farms, the barns with brightly-painted hex signs, the Amish in their horse-drawn buggies.

Also in Lancaster is Wheatland, home of James Buchanan, and Rock Ford, home of Gen. Edward Hand, commander in the Revolutionary War and member of the Continental Congress.

Pennsylvania Dutch territory is a tourist attraction, but has not become commercialized. It is reached by going east on the Pennsylvania Turnpike. Such other historical spots as Valley Forge and Gettysburg are not far away.

New Vacation Idea: Swap Holiday Houses

By JANE ROBINSON

There is no guarantee that you'll like the wallpaper or the china pattern, but there's a vacation home waiting for you—and FOR FREE.

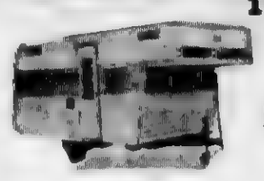
Well, at least practically free. You do pay $25 and toss your own home in the deal.

Mrs. Olive McMillan came up with something new under the sun—the Holiday Home Exchange Bureau of Grants, N. Mex.

Designed to make life simpler for those who don't like suitcase living while away from home, the plan involves a swap.

Assume you'd like to spend several weeks in New England this summer. You drop a line to Mrs. McMillan and she will send you without charge an application blank.

After having learned about your needs, your home and your life, she will turn to her files to find a New Englander of similar background with a whim to spend several weeks in Columbus.



After thoroughly investigating both parties, she will turn the results of her "match-making" over to you and accept your check for $25.

Though claiming that her idea is far from a gold mine, Mrs. McMillen finds the hundreds of letters she receives from all over the world fascinating.

Not only the man with a two-week vacation calls upon her, but internationally-known diplomats, businessmen and celebrities are ready to make a short-term loan of their homes in exchange for the luxury of a door bell rather than a bellhop.

Her experience has shown that people home-swapping are not "towel-knappers" and mutually respect each other's property.

New Studebaker Wagonaire Sports Sliding Roof; One Piece Tailgate

The new "Sliding-Roof" Wagonaire model in the 1963 Studebaker line of station wagons includes a unique roof panel, which can be readily operated to permit carrying of high-standing cargo, adding to the flexibility of the station wagon's many uses.

When parked at spectator events, the sliding roof permits a better viewpoint.

The four-door model "Wagonaire" has increased dimensions, a new side-glass design, and a one-piece tail-gate, with roll-up rear glass, manual-operated, standard; electrical-operated, optional. A "foldaway" tailgate ladder is also available as an option.

In addition to the sliding-roof model, the Studebaker line of Wagonaire station wagon models has been expanded to include a new "Standard Series," adding a lower-priced fixed-roof four-door "Wagonaire" line in Standard, Regal, and Daytona lines.

Choice of either six-cylinder or eight-cylinder engines is available. Features of all Wagonaire models include a padded dash, direct-reading instruments, positive crankcase ventilation, reinforced coil-spring seats, two-color vinyl upholstery.

The 113-inch wheelbase is used on all Wagonaire models; one model is priced $75 less than the former 1962 models.

There's A Thrill In A New Car

There was a time, not so very long ago, when buying a new car was considered a luxury. But this is not the case today when an automobile is almost as much of a necessity as a sink in the kitchen or a bed in the bedroom. In fact more and more families are finding it necessary to own two cars.

Even though the automobile has become a common and essential item, a thrill is still experienced when the new car pulls into the driveway on the first day.

New car dealers in Columbus and Franklin County hope the readers of Hartley Newspapers will experience this, too, by stopping into one of the dealerships advertised in this special Vacation - Travel edition.

Anyone considering the purchase of a new or used auto would do well to check the goods and special prices advertised in this newspaper. Enjoy spring and summer by spending your le'sure hours and vacation time in the safety and security of a new or late model used car . . . and don't forget to tell your favorite dealer you got the idea from your Hartley Newspaper.

The naval humiliation of France was completed when an English squadron defeated the French Nov. 20, 1759, at Quiberon Bay.

Put A Vacation On Your 'MUST' List

To Extend Your Life, Relax!

"Allah does not deduct from the alloted time of man those hours spent in fishing."

I don't know if the Arabs can take credit for this statement or not . . . In any event it is a good thing to believe.

And so, when I think of vacations I think in terms of fishing, because I somehow have to go along with this bit of wisdom and believe that I will not have these hours deducted from my time on earth.

And it does make sense 'cause it really should add to one's extended time. But for that matter any vacation that is properly planned and executed can do the same thing.

Now there are vacations and there are vacations. And a lot of them can be and are really rat races.

To take the busy highways and just drive and drive is for the birds . . . in my opinion! I want to get somewhere and then take time to relax.

That's why my first choice of a vacation is a fishing trip with congenial friends or family and far enough off the beaten track to get away from telephones, TV and a lot of people.

Now, I like people but I don't like crowds. I'm happy to know that my friends enjoy bucking the crowds as they go to the top of OSU stadium each Saturday afternoon in the fall, but for me one trip is enough for a season and I like those other Saturday afternoons alone in the outdoors rubbing shoulders with trees, leaves and all those good things in the country.

Mr. Thoreau advised that we spend some days as deliberately as Nature. "We have lived not in proportion to the number of years we have spent on earth, but in proportion as we have enjoyed."

Started Ahead of Crowds

A few years ago our family enjoyed a fine trip through the West and especially liked the national parks. We headed out through St. Louis, on to the dry lands and the Painted Desert, Grand Canyon, Yellowstone, the Sequoias, California, Oregon and Washington, the Canadian Rockies and the Bad Lands.

If billboards annoy you or even if you travel the super highways that don't have these annoyances some of your greatest enjoyment can and will come from the side trips off the beaten path.

Much of the real beauty of the Rockies and of the Canadian Northwest as well as in eastern Canada will show up only when you veer from the main highway.

And speaking of Canada, it isn't at all difficult to get into this country. Just be honest with them at customs. They have a strainge knack for picking out liars. If you declare something going into the country just be sure you have it when you return.

If you want to bring back some of those Canadian spirits or other merchandise be sure to check American customs on the way over to get the low down on how much you can bring back.

Conclusion: You go this way but once . . . enjoy it.

Make Hiking Enjoyable

Hiking is not necessarily toilsome—it is only difficult if one makes it so. Beginning hikers frequently make the mistake of biting off more than they can chew. The person who is out on the trail for the first time may not realize at the start, but before the day is over he may become quite tired. Beginners should plan short hikes of two or three miles before attempting longer ones of five to twenty miles. Don't hike until you're tired and then start back, especially if you're walking a straight trail; the distance back may double the length of your hike.

Regular hikes, even short ones, will help to keep you in good condition. Don't expect to hike only once or twice a year and not become worn out. Plan hikes the year 'round: winter walking, when you're properly dressed, can be as interesting and as much fun as spring, summer or fall trips.

The hiker needs very little equipment. If you're one of those persons who are not bothered by insects, snakes, sunburn, rain, etc., you're all set—just start walking.

Most people should make some preparations before starting out. Plan your hike. Will you be in rocky terrain, hill country or level; will there be swamps and streams to cross; will drinking water be available; what are the weather conditions? Since your feet are your most important asset in hiking, give them first priority. Wear good shoes, preferably high cut as against moccasins. In a rough, rocky area, heavy soles are a must. If you don't like getting wet, take along a plastic rain coat and some kind of a hat.

When travelling in mosquito infested country, you may profer a long sleeved shirt to a T-shirt, even in hot weather. Slacks are better than shorts in brush and briers. A good insect repellent will help considerably. A canteen will solve the water problem. A pocket knife and some stout twine will cope with many emergencies. A small snakebite kit will give you a feeling of security. Raisins will relieve hunger pangs: a big lunch may taste good, but hiking is usually more pleasant when the stomach is not full.

Too much to carry? This should be no problem. A lightweight shoulder bag will hold most items. If you plan to take cameras, spare shoes and socks, and other items, a knapsack will solve the problem. A well adjusted knapsack need not be a burden to carry but it may tire your shoulders until you become accustomed to it.

Winter hiking requires more planning. Deep snows, mud and water will soak through the best of leather. Plastic slip-over boots or rubber-bottomed hi-tops are water proof. Heavy coats are bulky and a burden to carry: try a sweat shirt, one or two flannel shirts and a light jacket. Or try a jacket of alpaca, goose down or similar material; these are light weight and there is nothing warmer. Mittens are warmer than gloves but not as versatile. Don't burden yourself down with so many gimmicks and supplies that you lose the joy of hiking. Experience is the best teacher; after a few trips in the field, you can determine what fits your needs. Travel slowly and save enough energy to look and observe and enjoy the world about you. Nothing can compare with being out on the trail.

Tent Living On The Increase For Weekend Camping Fans

By RON BARLOW

A tent is still a tent and serves much the same purpose today that it did some 2,000 years ago in areas all over the world. But today the camping enthusiast will find a much larger array of the "homes away from home" than do the wandering Arabs on the sands of the Sahara.

For instance, you might arrive at the happy camping ground in your umbrella tent, your wall tent, with a handy pop-up model or even pulling a rig that uses the trailer for the base of a folding tent.

Finishes come in nylon, [illegible], cotton or a dozen other materials but cotton has remained the most popular because of its ability to "breathe." Duck and drill are the most popular cotton fabrics for the portable abodes.

Experts say the umbrella tent is the most popular and probably best buy for its simplicity of construction, economical cost and ease in handling. The wall tent, according to those in the know, is on the way out except for Scouting groups which still prefer its roomy size.

In the land of two-car families it isn't uncommon to find the camping family sporting two, or sometimes more, tents. In many cases one tent is used for sleeping, the second for eating and living. Sometimes a separate tent for the children is also utilized as a welcome addition.

Evidence shows tents and camping are growing in popularity day by day and the movement from the cities and towns to the campsite for a weekend of fun is on the increase. Apparently, hundreds of thousands of otherwise comfortable citizens are willing to forsake their waterproof homes, hot running water, bath tubs and convenience-filled kitchens for the uncertainties of tent living in the great out-of-doors and are enjoying it.

Aquatic Hitchiking Becomes Increasingly Popular Sport

Riding behind a motor boat is becoming as popular as riding in it.

"More than thirty per cent of our customers, three times as many as seven years ago, now list water skiing as their main reason for buying an outboard motor, and more than half of our boat buyers plan to take part in the sport," Mr. Baxter, manager of the sporting goods department at Montgomery Ward's 261 Third Street Store in Columbus, said.

The size of outboard motors purchased is another indicator of water skiing's popularity because extra power is needed to start skiers on their way. Today the average size motor sold by Wards through its retail stores and catalogs is more than 30 horsepower, while ten years ago the average was nine horsepower.

Manufacturers have redesigned boat interiors with back-to-back seating, to allow free access to the stern where two ropes are attached, and to give passengers the best view of skiers.

This year Montgomery Ward has added five models with back-to-back seating to its boat line, more than doubling the number of its boats available with this interior arrangement.

Water skis themselves have changed from copies of traditional snow skies to a distinct styling of their own.

Improvements to water ski design can be seen on Ward's Sea King skis which are curved at both ends and tapered for stability and better maneuverability.

New non-jamming automatic foot binders, available on Ward's water skis, have push button fingertip control to enable a skier, while in the water, to easily slip back into his skis, which will remain properly adjusted.

Becoming more popular are "Combo" pairs of water skis, with one euipped for the single ski slalom maneuvers with rear toe binder and an extra - deep aluminum keel.

A wide range of water ski accessories, including ski belts also are available at Wards.

BACK-TO-BACK SEATING arrangements are becoming more popular for boating enthusiasts and are featured in Montgomery Ward's Sea King runabouts, equipped with a 60 HP Sea King outboard motor. The great increase in water skiing has helped raise the demand for back-to-back seating, which allows easy access to the boat's stern and enables passengers to observe the skiers most comfortably.

Visiting Colleges Offers Interesting Weekend Jaunt

One of the most enjoyable types of vacation travel, although somewhat limited to certain groups, is visiting college campuses in spring and early summer.

Families with offspring of college entrance age can find a week-end jaunt to any one of a number of Ohio colleges pleasurable and informative.

Most people in this area are somewhat familiar with the Ohio State University campus, but other state-supported universities, Bowling Green, Ohio, Miami and Kent, are also worth visiting.

These modern - well planned campuses and their locales are eye-pleasing and college candidates can wrap business and pleasure into one package with little trouble.

Of course the state schools aren't the only nice ones to be taken in.

From the University of Cincinnati to the University of Toledo, to Case Tech, one can find worthwhile, a short vacation trip.

Of course, there is the distinct advantage of enrolling in one of Ohio's many fine colleges and universities for a higher education and a better foothold on life.

Proper Equipment Important For Boating Fun And Safety

Proper furnishings to make a boat useful, safe and comfortable should be included as an essential part of any water-going craft. In fact the U.S. Coast Guard requires, under penalty of a stiff fine, that certain items be included on every boat. These vary for the boat's size and capacity.

For undocumented power boats used on Ohio waterways the Coast Guard requires a state license number and certificate, an approved life jacket or cushion for every person aboard, anchor and line, approved fire extinguishers mounted in accessible locations, and mufflers. Proper navigation lights must be carried when underway after sunset.

Inboard boats must have their engine compartments properly ventilated and carburetors equipped with flame arrestors. As the size of the boat increases, so does the list of required equipment. The requirements are set forth in publications issued by the Ohio Division of Watercraft and the Coast Guard and are available from all marine dealers.

Boats on Lake Erie and other waters under federal jurisdiction must comply with state and federal requirements. The jurisdiction is concurrent. Larger craft are required to carry a bell and horn. It is just as important to have these as shipmates on the smallest of boats.

The bell must be used in fog and fog has no respect for size. The right-of-way rules apply to every boat and the best way to let another skipper know what you are about to do is with the proper horn or whistles signals.

For safe boating there is gear that should be carried in addition to that which the law requires.

The list includes dock lines, fenders, lead line, compass, boat hook, bilge pump or bailing scoop, flashlights, first aid kit complete with sunburn ointment, insect repellant and seasick pills, spare parts for engines, tools, pocket knife, flares, paddle or oars, spare propeller, oil and grease, spare bolts, nuts, screws and other hardware, chart of the waters on which you are boating and a piece of heavy canvas for use as a collision mat should your boat's hull be stove in.

If there is still room on board, you can start with the batch of equipment that is convenient to have and adds to the fun of boating.

Combine College Study With Hawaiian Vacation

Sun, surf and study — what better way for a college student to spend the summer?

The University of Hawaii offers a versatile summer program that will suit the tastes of a bookworm or pseudo-student. And, needless to say, Hawaii offers everything to everyone.

The university is an accredited school and credits from courses will transfer to most colleges on the mainland. Courses range from hula dancing and basket weaving to studies in Asiatic anthropology and Far East religions.

The six-week session is informal — muu-muus and bermudas are as popular with professors as with students. The faculty for summer school features a distinguished list of educators from all over the world.

The University's summer session is unique in that it is the only U.S. college that draws more students for summer school than the other school terms.

Extracurricular activities at school in Hawaii include a tour to Buddhist and Shinto temples, a plane trip over the other islands in the Hawaiian chain, an evening's entertainment by Polynesian dancers, and all the thrills of surfboarding or hukilau fishing.

There are special tours available for students which include around - the - island tours to Pearl Harbor and other famous sites, parties, dances, and a luau, and "dormitory" accommodations in lush Waikiki hotels which include swimming pools and maid service. You may fly or take a luxurious cruise ship to the islands.

Call your travel agent for information on this unusual way to combine pleasure and education.

Rest Your Oars At Michigan's Lakes

By ED CHURCHILL

Within about four to five hours driving time from Columbus, there lies one of the most relaxing and fun-filled vacation grounds known to this writer.

The lakes of southern Michigan offer various and sundry pleasures, not the least of which is a chance to just relax (rest your oars) and breathe some good clean fresh air breezing across the lake to the front porch of a lakeside cottage.

Cottage rentals range from $40 to $140 per week, depending on how rough you like it, or can afford it.

Specifically, Devil's, Wampler's and Sand Lakes lie within 15 minutes of Adrian, Mich., and in this area one can pursue the delights of boating, fishing, swimming, camping, golfing, hiking, dancing, tennis, shooting, driving, touring, shopping, sun-bathing, picnicking, water-skiing, all types of outdoor participation sports, scenic photography in the surrounding hills and, of course loafing.

But, get your reservations in now, because these little havens of happiness don't wait around for customers.

WALK SAFELY

When it's raining, says the Columbus Auto Club, it's easier for a pedestrian to see an approaching car than it is for the driver of that car to see the pedestrian. During a rainstorm it's most important that pedestrians do not obscure their own vision or visibility with umbrellas.

A decision by the Supreme Court Nov. 20, 1863, held that the Great Lakes and their connecting waters constituted the high seas.

Camping Trip To West Is Suggested By Family

SIGHTS LIKE THESE are yours to enjoy on a family camping trip through the West. This is a mountain lake in the Medicine Bow Mountain range in Wyoming.

A two-weeks' vacation trip for four through 4600 miles of the west, including food, travel and car expenses, for $...98.

And there's even more for your money than a memorable vacation in some of the union's most scenic states when the trip is a family camping excursion.

Fourteen days and nights of informal fun, adventure and companionship, away from individual demands and responsibilities, can be a richly rewarding experience for and family.

The W. Harley Grooms of 3068 W. Mound-at seeking such a vacation, tried the camping plan last summer, and found its success [redacted] ed their highest hopes.

Armed with books, pamphlets and guides; steeped with advice from experienced friends, and pulling a rented, tent trailer packed with the recommended equipment, they headed for Rocky Mountain National Park, Colo.

Any faint misgivings they may have had about the trip were soon dispelled with the miles.

Arrangements for such a camping trip, growing more popular each year, are surprisingly simple and inexpensive.

The Grooms' tent trailer, rented for $70 for the two weeks, was packed with a foot locker containing cooking utensils, dishes, soap and towels, and food staples.

An ice chest was used for meat, milk and vegetables, purchased fresh each day; a gasoline stove was used for cooking, and gasoline lights.

Sleeping bags, cots, blankets, a hatchet, first aid kit and a plastic water jug were the other basics.

Camping sites were readily available, with State National Parks, roadside parks and privately-operated sites lining their route. All had water supplies, and many had showers and bathing facilities.

Definite, assigned responsibilities for each member of the family, gave even the youngest member a feeling of participation, and reduced the camp set-up time to 15 minutes.

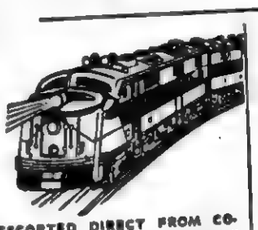
Friendships with neighboring campers were an added enjoyment bonus, as were the contented evenings around a campfire, popping corn and swapping tall tales, or playing cards.

And the magnificence of the west, its scenic lakes and parks, its snow-capped mountains, were seen as never possible on scheduled, planned tours. It was family's choice all the way, with each member's wishes contributing to their travel plan.

Everything from a view of Mount Rushmore by helicopter and horseback riding in the Western manner, to scenic wonders were captured in memories and on film.

In the "Next-time-department," the Grooms listed more warm clothing, for temperatures in the west are sometimes 25 degrees at night.

And among their recommendation are heavy, comfortable walking shoes, and plenty of socks.



Library Has Travel Hints

Vacation time is just around the corner for many Central Ohioans and the Columbus Public Library has dozens of books and magazines on travel, both in this country and abroad.

Particularly valuable for the vacationer are suggestions for luggage, clothing and other travel necessities. The out-of-country travelers will find useful information on passports, visas and ports of entry in books and magazines at the library.

Information about sections of the United States, maps and travel suggestions will also be found on the library shelves.

WONDERING WHERE TO GO?

'Take Me Out To The Ball Game' Sweet Relief From Highway Race

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Ever come back from your vacation more exhausted than when you departed?

If your answer to this question is "yes," you are probably echoing the consensus of the majority.

In our head-spinning, ulcerated present-day pace of living, the struggle of "go and return" cuts down on relaxation time almost to the point of swallowing a meal whole just to get back on the highway.

So what's your hurry? Ohio isn't exactly a barren wasteland which must be endured for 50 weeks each year.

For the sportsman the Buckeye State has abounding resources for the whole family to enjoy. With major league baseball teams stationed at Cleveland and Cincinnati and the Jets practically in your backyard, there's plenty of proximity to the national pastime.

Lakes (Erie and smaller) or streams provide the thrill of the "big catch" for the family anglers and this state's camping boom is evidence enough that time spent in the great outdoors can be both enjoyable and relaxing.

Boating and swimming facilities plus plenty of room for the water skiing enthusiast are provided throughout the state in many waterways.

What's that, Mom? How about those meals you'll have to cook? No problem. Nobody ever starved at the old ballyard and even the most isolated camper is but a short drive away from some kind of an eating facility.

Just for the record, Cleveland's Municipal Stadium is 141 miles distant while Cincy's Crosley Field is about 106 miles away.

The Grand Canyon is approximately 2000 miles, 16 migraines, two flat tires and roughly ten million "Daddy, are we almost there's" from the Capital City.

See you at the ball park!

Boat Can Add To Camp Fun

According to the most recent campfire counts, there are some 5,000,000 families who spend weekends or vacation time camping in these United and vast States. Unfortunately there is no count available on how many of these sociable stargazers make boating a part of their program, but it's a sure thing that those who do not are missing a good bet.

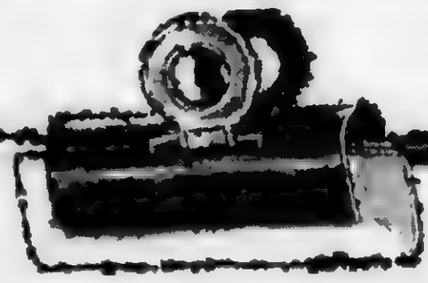
Experts suggest these advantages to trailing a boat along on a camp trip:

Mobility. A campsite gets to be a mighty small world after about a day and a half, but if it's near the water your boat can extend its horizons a thousand per cent, and help you get away from "getting away from it all."

Variety. Watching birds, gathering flowers, and tending the fire will pall in time. A boat adds fishing, skiing, exploring, just plain riding in the fresh and open air . . . pleasant changes.

Pack room. A boat riding behind your car on a trailer will hold a lot more than any station wagon. Your storage problems are solved.

More campsites. With good campsites accessible to automobiles at a premium these days, the family with a boat has an advantage: it can go where carbound folk cannot, and enjoy a wider choice of sites.



Solitude. By running to islands and other otherwise hard-to-reach areas, boaters often find the camper's pot of gold — complete privacy.

Yes, say the experts, there's much to be said for attaching a boat and trailer to every camper's car.

PROPER CARE and use of tires is so much more important now that the take - to - the - road season is here. Among special safety checks offered by your General Tire Sales Companies (like the one here at Fourth and Long-sts) are correct air pressure and tire rotation. There're other things you can do, too, like avoid riding the edge of the pavement, avoid fast stops and starts, drive at moderate speed and not overload.

Many Repair Services Are Offered By General Tire Co.

Members of the personnel and mechanical staff at General Tire Sales feel especially proud this time of year. They feel, and justly so, that they can be a part of your vacation fun.

Nothing's more frustrating on the highway than to have a flat tire or two and you can do a lot to prevent such an occurance while en route to your favorite fun spot by stopping at one of the General Tire headquarters stores.

The General Tire staff has been cited for being specialists in tire service and related automotive maintenance required for enjoyable, economical and safe motoring vacation fun.

General Tire Sales describes its wheel alignment equipment as being the most modern available. The modern General "Visualiner" shows the car owner on a picture screen whether front end alignment corrections or steering repairs are needed, and also enables General's technicians to do a faster and more accurate job of correcting any evident trouble.

Richard Hollingsead of the General Tire Sales Co. at Fourth and Long-sts pointed out that car owners can ruin a set of tires on just one vacation jaunt with car wheels that are out of line.

He added that it takes only a few minutes to check an automobile on the new "Visualiner." No charge is made for this check if no corrections are needed.

The company also lists its wheel balancing equipment as being the most accurate type balancing machine available. Tires and wheels may be run through the entire speed range of the automobile.

Brake service at General also is complete since the company is equipped to do everything from minor adjustments to rebuilding an entire brake system.

A complete muffler and tail pipe service, seat belt service and installation along with other features should make the nearest General Tire Sales office your first stop this summer.

Locations include:

Hilltop, at corner of W. Broad and Eureka-av; East Side in the Town and Country Shopping Center and downtown at Fourth and Long. Phone appointments also are accepted for all customer services.

Dick Klamfoth Concludes A Colorful Career Of Racing

A graduate of Groveport High School, Dick Klamfoth, owner of Klamfoth Cycle Sales, Groveport-rd, has been one of the most colorful and exciting motorcycle racers in the country since he won his first expert race, the Daytona 200 Mile Championship, in 1949.

He actually started his career on the motorcycle tracks in 1947 when, as an amateur, he entered races in the Columbus area with a Norton motorcycle furnished by a local dealer. Since those days Klamfoth has won the Daytona 200 three times and stacked up 16 national victories. His biggest years were in 1951 and 1952 when he won four national championship events each year.

There are some top riders coming up in the Buckeye State according to Klamfoth. He thinks Dave Estep of Columbus and Don Kiger both have bright futures in motorcycle racing.

Projected plans for his own shop, which features the Hondo Motorcycle, call for the expansion of present facilities and the relocation of the agency to 1962 E. Main-st. As far as racing goes, Klamfoth has expressed plans to leave the track for the comparative peace and quiet of his own motorcycle shop.

About three miles of filament yarn and two million stitches on a high-speed hosiery machine are needed to produce a pair of nylon stockings.

Auto Dealers Wary Of Pipe Smoking, Mustached Buyers

Looking for a new car to make that vacation trip in? Better shave off that old cookie duster first and, to be sure, leave your pipe at home.

These are the two "deadliest" traits of the car buyer —the ones which, according to a recent survey, cause the most trouble to the auto dealer.

To some of the biggest auto dealers in the world, a man with a mustache and a pipe is the toughest prospect an auto salesman has to face.

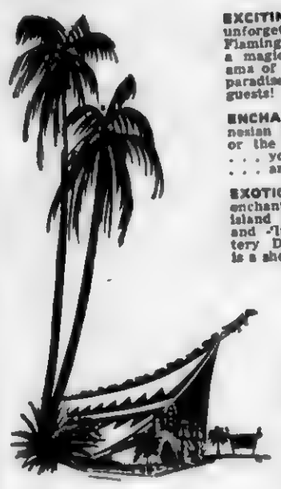
"The mustache means he's fastidious," they claim. "He always dots the 'i' and crosses the 't'. And that pipe helps him delay making a decision while he fills it aand lights it. He can think about what the salesman said."

Another dealer maintained that a drop-stem pipe in the hand of a mustachioed man is an even worse sign.

"We can generally peg this man as ultra conservative, and having easily enough money to pay cash for a new car," he said.

And, if you have a friend or relative in the auto business, you become even more fearsome as a potential customer since, the dealers say, "you've collected all sorts of little bits of misinformation."

After the pipe smoker, they list physicians and clergymen as the most difficult prospects. They are extremely particular about the product and very concerned with price.



A TOUGH CUSTOMER is the opinion of automobile salesmen about this type prospect. Experts say the mustache and pipe indicate a tendency to be very careful and thoughtful before reaching any decision to buy a new or used car.

Backing a trailer is confusing at first unless you remember this rule suggested by the experts: You turn the wheel of your car to the left to make the trailer move to the right, and vice versa.

Ohio Offers Variety, Beauty In State Parks

A large part of the wealth of Ohio cannot be measured with a dollar and cents value or placed in a deposit box to be hidden away in the deep vaults of a bank. It is a wealth that can be seen and enjoyed by everyone, and loved and appreciated as few personal belongings can.

Beyond the reach of human memory nature endowed the Buckeye State with a beauty that can be observed, lived in and enjoyed today by anyone who will invest in the time to travel to his favorite part of Ohio to visit a state park or lake area.

From the Great Lake in the north to the plains in the center to the rugged hills in the south, Ohio offers an amazing variety of scenery and nature lore.

Some of the more popular camping and vacation areas have been maintained by the Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Division of Parks, and are available for use throughout the summer.

Beaver Creek State Park (1) is a relatively underdeveloped park that offers fine scenery and rough hiking. Features include an old mill, canal and a fine place for the study of natural history.

Blue Rock State Park and State Forest (28) offers short trails that connect numerous picnic areas. A 15-acre lake provides swimming, fishing and tent camping for the outdoor fan.

Clear Fork State Park in Mohican State Forest (3) provides 10 to 14 miles of hiking trails through forests. Trails lead to rock shelters, a waterfall and a dam at Pleasant Hill Reservoir. Exceptional scenery and nature study are found in the 535-acre park.

Forked Run State Park and Shade River State Forest (7) features one developed trail about one mile long which ascends to a ridge and scenic lookout. A lake covering 102 acres offers swimming, picnicking and fishing. A tent-camping area is now under construction.

Hocking State Park and Hocking State Forest (8) is Ohio's most popular scenic area. Trails are numerous and lead to such famous scenic areas as Old Man's Cave, Rock House and Ash Cave. Many waterfalls and deep hemlock-lined gorges make the natural beauty as fine as anywhere in the Eastern United States. Tent camping only at Old Man's Cave.

Hueston Woods State Park (9) has many well-marked trails in the wooded area behind the main beach. Several small waterfalls are located in valleys on the cabin side of the lake. Excellent fossil hunting in the streambeds. Facilities include housekeeping cabins, tent camping area, picnicking, 625-acre Acton Lake, two beaches, boat docks and ramps, rental boats and good fishing.

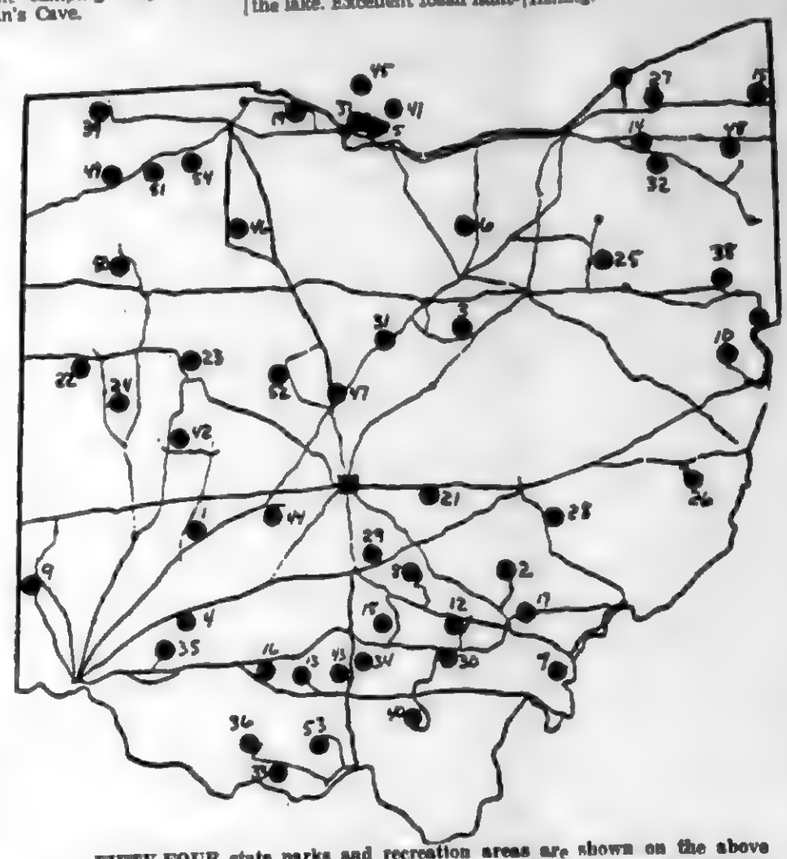
Jefferson State Park (10) features limited hiking on service roads and rough hiking in the woods. A 27-acre lake offers swimming, fishing and picnicking with a camping area located about two miles from the lake.

John Bryan State Park (11) is deep and rugged with a limestone gorge and sparkling stream. This is a fine area for observing trees and wild flowers. Facilities include a tent camping area and picnic grounds.

Lake Hope State Park and Zaleski State Forest (12) has an extensive trail system and improvements are being made on 10 miles of beautiful scenic trails. The area features fine lookout points, clay mine, coal mines, iron ore outcropping, iron furnace, prehistoric burial mounds, plant fossils, ghost towns. Facilities include housekeeping cabins, sleeping cabins, dining lodge, tent camping area, picnicking, swimming and fishing.

Nelson Ledges State Park (32) is a small park that offers large rock formations and steep narrow gorges. It is fine for short hiking trips. Picnicking and sanitary facilities are available.

Pike State Park and Pike State Forest (13) has a limited amount of developed trails which ascend to a series of ridges and center around a main park area. Abandoned roads, service roads and logging roads provide excellent hiking east of the park. Features include a fine wooded area, abudant wild flowers, many birds, reptiles and amphibians. Several historic sites are located within a short driving distance, including Fort Hill, Serpent Mound and Seip Mound. Auto tours and evening activities are offered during the summer. Facilities include housekeeping cabins, tent camping, picnicking, swimming, limited boating and some fishing. Lake covers 13 acres.



Pymatuning State Park (15) offers three hiking trails and features fine woods, excellent for nature study. Facilities include 35 housekeeping cabins, tent camping, picnicking, swimming, boating and fishing with rental boats available. The lake covers 17,000 acres, 3:500 of which are in Ohio.

Roosevelt State Park and Shawnee State Forest (33) is a small park in Ohio's largest forest. Rough hiking is available. Many forest roads, which are seldom used, can also be utilized for hiking. Facilities include tent camping, swimming and fishing. Lake area covers 17 acres. Solitude is available and wildlife is abundant.

Scioto Trail State Park and State Forest (34) has no developed trails but rough hiking is available on logging roads around the two small lakes. Fishing, tent camping and picnicking are available but no swimming is allowed. The two lakes total 30 acres.

Tar Hollow State Park and Forest (18) has several rough trails that have not been marked by signs. Scenic roads go through the forest area which is fine for the study of wild flowers. Tent camping, picnicking, fishing and group lodge are available for visitors.

Information on other state park areas is available by contacting the Department of Natural Resources, Division of Parks, 1500 Dublin-rd, Columbus 12, O.

FIFTY-FOUR state parks and recreation areas are shown on the above map which are operated for the enjoyment and recreation of Ohioans. Most of the areas are within easy driving distance of Central Ohio and offer many types of facilities for the person seeking outdoor activity.

NAVIGATION LIST

Planning a long run in your outboard boat? Here's a navigation tip. Using a large navigation chart can be awkward and keeps your eyes off the water too much. Before starting, go over your intended course on the chart and make a checklist of the buoys you will pass by type and number, hazards to be avoided and landmarks. A list of this kind is easier to manage and read than a big chart. By glancing at it the steersman can see quickly what he must look for as his boat speeds along. Of course, you should also have the chart aboard in case you need complete information . . . but you'll like the checklist method once you try it.

Use Of Safety Belts Can Aid In Preventing Serious Injury

With summer driving and vacations rapidly approaching, the American Medical Assn. has highly recommended the use of seat belts in automobies. The association states that the installaion and use of the belts can save lives and prevent or lessen injuries.

This is a well-established fact, and many autos today are equipped with seat belts. But many more are not. An immense amount of scientific research, including actual collisions under controlled conditions, proves that the seat belt is the single most effective item of protective equipment now available to reduce the toll of traffic injuries and deaths.

Thousands of lives are lost ach year because people are thrown against windshields or out of car doors in crashes. The seat belt will help keep you in your seat and in your car. Most accidents occur close to home and at moderate speeds. Thus seat belts are important even for short trips to school or the neighborhood grocery. Your seat belt can protect you in town as well as on the highway.

If you're worried about being held down by a seat belt in the event of fire, or if your auto should plunge into water, you should know that the buckle can be unfastened in you can get clear of a burning an instant with one hand, so or submerged car.

Many motorists who have installed seat belts in the past year or two have them only in the front seat. People in the back seat also are entitled to protection. The seat belts should be in both front and rear.

Others who have installed seat belts have become careless in their use. The belt won't protect you if it isn't buckled in place.

The driver has some protection in minor crashes by being able to hang onto the steering wheel. Seat belts for the driver, however, give added safety in that he will be better able to keep control of the car if held in a driving position by a belt.

Safe-driving habits by all can reduce accidents. Seat belts help provide greater safety for driver and passengers.

SAFETY TAPE

If you have to cross many busy highways after dark when returning from a day afloat, affix several strips of reflective tape to the sides of your boat trailer to warn cars coming from the left and right of the length of your rig.

Ohio Offers Variety, Beauty In State Parks

A large part of the wealth of Ohio cannot be measured with a dollar and cents value or placed in a deposit box to be hidden away in the deep vaults of a bank. It is a wealth that can be seen and enjoyed by everyone, and loved and appreciated as few personal belongings can.

Beyond the reach of human memory nature endowed the Buckeye State with a beauty that can be observed, lived in and enjoyed today by anyone who will invest in the time to travel to his favorite part of Ohio to visit a state park or lake area.

From the Great Lake in the north to the plains in the center to the rugged hills in the south, Ohio offers an amazing variety of scenery and nature lore.

Some of the more popular camping and vacation areas have been maintained by the Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Division of Parks, and are available for use throughout the summer.

Beaver Creek State Park (1) is a relatively underdeveloped park that offers fine scenery and rough hiking. Features include an old mill, canal and a fine place for the study of natural history.

Blue Rock State Park and State Forest (28) offers short trails that connect numerous picnic areas. A 15-acre lake provides swimming, fishing and tent camping for the outdoor fan.

Clear Fork State Park in Mohican State Forest (3) provides 10 to 14 miles of hiking trails through forests. Trails lead to rock shelters, a waterfall and a dam at Pleasant Hill Reservoir. Exceptional scenery and nature study are found in the 535-acre park.

Forked Run State Park and Shade River State Forest (7) features one developed trail about one mile long which ascends to a ridge and scenic lookout. A lake covering 102 acres offers swimming, picnicking and fishing. A tent-camping area is now under construction.

Hocking State Park and Hocking State Forest (8) is Ohio's most popular scenic area. Trails are numerous and lead to such famous scenic areas as Old Man's Cave, Rock House and Ash Cave. Many waterfalls and deep hemlock-lined gorges make the natural beauty as fine as anywhere in the Eastern United States. Tent camping only at Old Man's Cave.

Hueston Woods State Park (9) has many well-marked trails in the wooded area behind the main beach. Several small waterfalls are located in valleys on the cabin side of the lake. Excellent fossil hunting in the streambeds. Facilities include housekeeping cabins, tent camping area, picnicking, 625-acre Acton Lake, two beaches, boat docks and ramps, rental boats and good fishing.

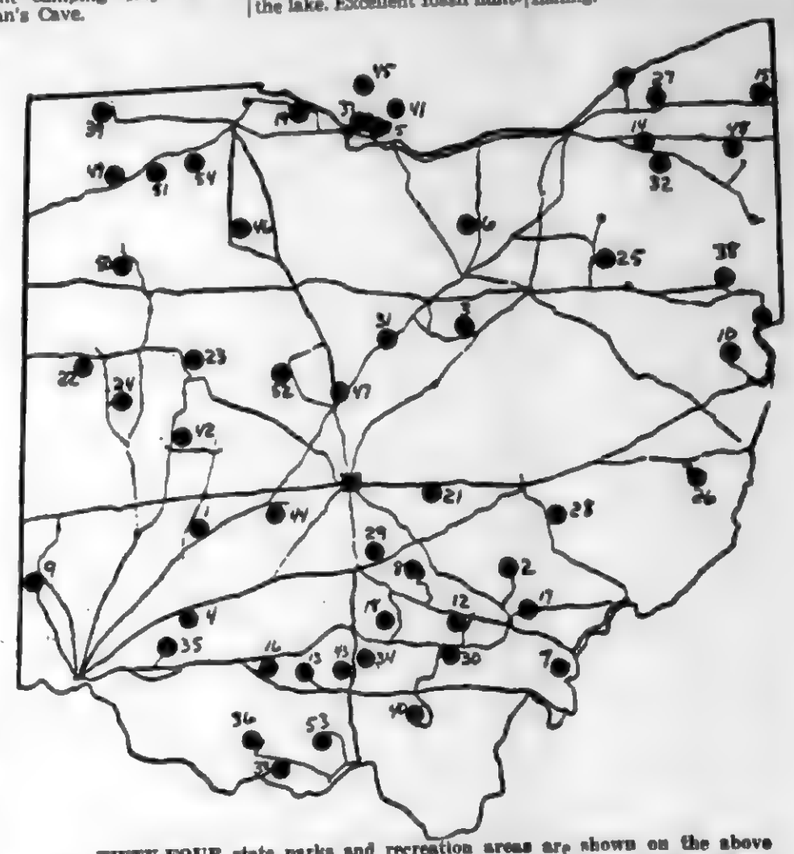
Jefferson State Park (10) features limited hiking on service roads and rough hiking in the woods. A 27-acre lake offers swimming, fishing and picnicking with a camping area located about two miles from the lake.

John Bryan State Park (11) is deep and rugged with a limestone gorge and sparkling stream. This is a fine area for observing trees and wild flowers. Facilities include a tent camping area and picnic grounds.

Lake Hope State Park and Zaleski State Forest (12) has an extensive trail system and improvements are being made on 10 miles of beautiful scenic trails. The area features fine lookout points, clay mine, coal mines, iron ore outcropping, iron furnace, prehistoric burial mounds, plant fossils, ghost towns. Facilities include housekeeping cabins, sleeping cabins, dining lodge, tent camping area, picnicking, swimming and fishing.

Nelson Ledges State Park (32) is a small park that offers large rock formations and steep narrow gorges. It is fine for short hiking trips. Picnicking and sanitary facilities are available.

Pike State Park and Pike State Forest (13) has a limited amount of developed trails which ascend to a series of ridges and center around a main park area. Abandoned roads, service roads and logging roads provide excellent hiking east of the park. Features include a fine wooded area, abudant wild flowers, many birds, reptiles and amphibians. Several historic sites are located within a short driving distance, including Fort Hill, Serpent Mound and Seip Mound. Auto tours and evening activities are offered during the summer. Facilities include housekeeping cabins, tent camping, picnicking, swimming, limited boating and some fishing. Lake covers 13 acres.



Pymatuning State Park (15) offers three hiking trails and features fine woods, excellent for nature study. Facilities include 35 housekeeping cabins, tent camping, picnicking, swimming, boating and fishing with rental boats available. The lake covers 17,000 acres, 3:500 of which are in Ohio.

Roosevelt State Park and Shawnee State Forest (33) is a small park in Ohio's largest forest. Rough hiking is available. Many forest roads, which are seldom used, can also be utilized for hiking. Facilities include tent camping, swimming and fishing. Lake area covers 17 acres. Solitude is available and wildlife is abundant.

Scioto Trail State Park and State Forest (34) has no developed trails but rough hiking is available on logging roads around the two small lakes. Fishing, tent camping and picnicking are available but no swimming is allowed. The two lakes total 30 acres.

Tar Hollow State Park and Forest (18) has several rough trails that have not been marked by signs. Scenic roads go through the forest area which is fine for the study of wild flowers. Tent camping, picnicking, fishing and group lodge are available for visitors.

Information on other state park areas is available by contacting the Department of Natural Resources, Division of Parks, 1500 Dublin-rd, Columbus 12, O.

FIFTY-FOUR state parks and recreation areas are shown on the above map which are operated for the enjoyment and recreation of Ohioans. Most of the areas are within easy driving distance of Central Ohio and offer many types of facilities for the person seeking outdoor activity.

KEEP KIDS CALM

The Columbus Auto Club cautions motorists that when traveling with children in the back seat of the car make sure all doors are closed securely. Above all, keep the children calm so they do not distract you from your important job behind the wheel.

Use Of Safety Belts Can Aid In Preventing Serious Injury

With summer driving and vacations rapidly approaching, the American Medical Assn. has highly recommended the use of seat belts in automobies. The association states that the installaion and use of the belts can save lives and prevent or lessen injuries

This is a well-established fact, and many autos today are equipped with seat belts. But many more are not. An immense amount of scientific research, including actual collisions under controlled conditions, proves that the seat belt is the single most effective item of protective equipment now available to reduce the toll of traffic injuries and deaths.

Thousands of lives are lost ach year because people are thrown against windshields or out of car doors in crashes. The seat belt will help keep you in your seat and in your car. Most accidents occur close to home and at moderate speeds. Thus seat belts are important even for short trips to school or the neighborhood grocery. Your seat belt can protect you in town as well as on the highway.

If you're worried about being held down by a seat belt in the event of fire, or if your auto should plunge into water, you should know that the buckle can be unfastened in you can get clear of a burning an instant with one hand, so or submerged car.

Many motorists who have installed seat belts in the past year or two have them only in the front seat. People in the back seat also are entitled to protection. The seat belts should be in both front and rear.

Others who have installed seat belts have become careless in their use. The belt won't protect you if it isn't buckled in place.

The driver has some protection in minor crashes by being able to hang onto the steering wheel. Seat belts for the driver, however, give added safety in that he will be better able to keep control of the car if held in a driving position by a belt.

SAFETY TAPE

If you have to cross many busy highways after dark when returning from a day afloat, affix several strips of reflective tape to the sides of your boat trailer to warn cars coming from the left and right of the length of your rig.

HONORING OUR WARRIORS

Solemn Memorial Day Rites Planned

"We cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it, far above our poor power to add or to detract."

The great words of President Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address may still be the best description of the sentiment that will prevail this Thursday—Memorial Day, 1963.

Solemn tributes to the defenders of our country are planned throughout the area, ranging from the singular effort of a man in Reynoldsburg, to the huge parade in downtown Columbus, to the Naval services on the Dublin bridge.

Harold A. Temple, superintendent of Glen Rest Cemetery in Reynoldsburg, will again this year place flags on the graves of all veterans in the cemetery.

Nearly all veterans' organizations in Franklin County will participate in the annual downtown parade, which begins at 9 a.m. at Washington-av and E. Broad-st and moves west to the W. Broad-st bridge.

The parade will pass the reviewing stand on south side of City Hall, and at the Broad-st bridge, a Naval Memorial ceremony will be conducted by the Navy-Marine Post, American Legion.

A floral anchor, in memory of deceased sailors and marines, will be placed on the Scioto River, just as another will be placed farther up-river, at Dublin, at noon.

The seventh Memorial Service of the American Legion will be held in the Memorial Room at Veterans' Memorial, immediately following the naval ceremony.

The program is expected to start about 10 a.m.

Speaker for the event will be Dr. Harold H. Eibling, superintendent of Columbus schools.

Also participating in the program will be the Walnut Ridge High School Choir and the 37th Division Band.

Master of ceremonies will be Judge William C. Bryant.

Just How Casual Can We Get?

If it's entertainment you are looking for, you no longer need to spend your money for the theater or go to the drive-in. Now you can be amused out in the good, fresh open air by merely standing beside one of the stores of a well-patronized shopping center and watching the "Passing Parade."

Especially at this time of year does one have the opportunity to get a real eyeful. Being human, I would have to admit that some of it is quite pleasing. But, a major portion of the sights are not only just uninteresting but even distasteful.

It isn't every female who has the good fortune to have all of the proportions that attract. But, certainly those who do not have some interesting equipment are well aware of same and would do well to properly cover it rather than show it off to a disadvantage.

As the gals go by it might be interesting to take a poll as to which wears the shortest shorts, which wears the loudest shorts, which wears the tightest shorts, and which could more properly be

And while you are at it, watch for the gals who have taken this modern day advice to be "casual" to the extreme that they still have the complex gadgets called curlers in their heads. I agree with my friend, Leo Paulin of Bethesda, Md., that these gals look more like something from Mars. Also, if they feel they must have that milking machine look, they should wear clothes in harmony with the curlers—overalls.

By now you probably have guessed that I am a little bit old-fashioned and kinda believe we have taken a few too many liberties in the matter of "casual" living.

South Side Graduates At End And Beginning

The three South Side High Schools are in the midst of graduation practices this week as students practice their final assignment— the long walk for the diploma.

Reminiscing has already begun among the graduates who reflect back to the "good ol' days" of tearing down goal posts and senior proms.

It's all at an end now but, on the other hand, it's but a beginning.

"In rivers, the water that you may touch is the last of what has passed and the first of that which comes: so with time present." That was said by Leonardo da Vinci.

Graduates are now at an end and at the beginning. They have an education to gain wisdom, strength and a successful life. They have the eagerness and enthusiasm necessary for making these goals come true.

St. Joseph Honors Set For Hero

The world's most decorated flying ace, the late Don Gentile, who called the Hilltop home, will be honored once again.

On Memorial Day, the Major's former wife, now Mrs. Jesse Beitman, will officially name "Don Gentile Post 532," American Legion, at services in St. Joseph Cemetery.

The Post Gentile dedication at 11:30 a.m. will be preceded by a 10 a.m. Cemetery Mass, and a 21-gun salute ceremony by Southway Post 144, American Legion, at 11 a.m.

Ralph Montenaro, 3324 Mary, will become commander of the new post, which will be located at 2322 Sullivant-av.

A chaplain from Lockbourne Air Force Base will deliver the memorial to Gentile, at graveside services.

Guests invited to attend the ceremony include Columbus Mayor W. Ralston Westlake, Gov. James A. Rhodes and Col. O. F. Lassiter, commander 801st Air Division, Lockbourne AFB, with the "Officers' Guard."

Gentile, who was killed on a routine flying mission near Washington, D. C., Jan. 28, 1961, was decorated for his flying prowess in World War II and Korea by the United States, Italy (twice), the King and Queen of England and the British government; Belgium, France and Canada.

His war record includes 32 enemy aircraft destroyed, nine probably destroyed and six damaged.

He won 17 medals, including the American Distinguished Service Cross, with one Oak Leaf Cluster; Distinguished Service Flying Cross with seven Oak Leaf Clusters, the Silver Star and the Air Medal, with thre Oak Leaf Clusters, as well as a special citation from former president Franklin D. Roosevelt.

He was born Dec. 6, 1920 in Piqua, O., joined the Royal Canadian Air Force in 1941 and transferred to the U. S. Army Air Force in Sept., 1942.

Gentile completed 189 combat missions.

Major Gentile was discharged in 1946 and went to work as sales and service director for an aircraft firm, where he worked until Dec. 6, 1947, when he accepted a commission in the Air Force.

He was the father of three children, Don S. Jr., Joseph and Pasquale.

Gentile's greatest tributes probably are those paid him by other great men of his time. Some of them are:

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower: "He was a one-man Air Force".

President Franklin D. Roosevelt: "I call him Captain Courageous."

Britain's Prime Minister Winston Churchill: "If we had 100 Gentiles and 100 Godfreys (Gentile's wing man), England could sleep easy tonight, for come the morning and the ground would be strewn with Luftwaffe."

Herman Goering, chief of the German Air Force in World War II: "I would give two of my best squadrons for the capture of the Italian-born Gentile and the English-born Godfrey."

An open house, starting at noon, will be held at the Don Gentile Post hall on Sullivant-av.

President Andrew Johnson, who was a tailor, never went to school until he met Eliza McCardle, a schoolteacher. She taught him and, after holding a number of political offices, he became president of the U.S. She met him when she was 16 and married him during the time she was his teacher.

THE HARTLEY NEWSPAPERS OFFICE WILL BE CLOSED MEMORIAL DAY.

FREE FOOD FOR NEEDY

Little Brothers Open Lunch Counter In Area

By JOHN AUBLE, JR.

In the midst of a food-shortage welfare crisis in the South Side, the Little Brothers of the Good Shepherd are standing out of the gloom like a bright, unfurling banner.

In conjunction with the Catholic Welfare Bureau and under the direction of Msgr. Lawrence Cocoran, the Little Brothers have opened a free lunch stand, smacking strongly of the depression day soup kitchen.

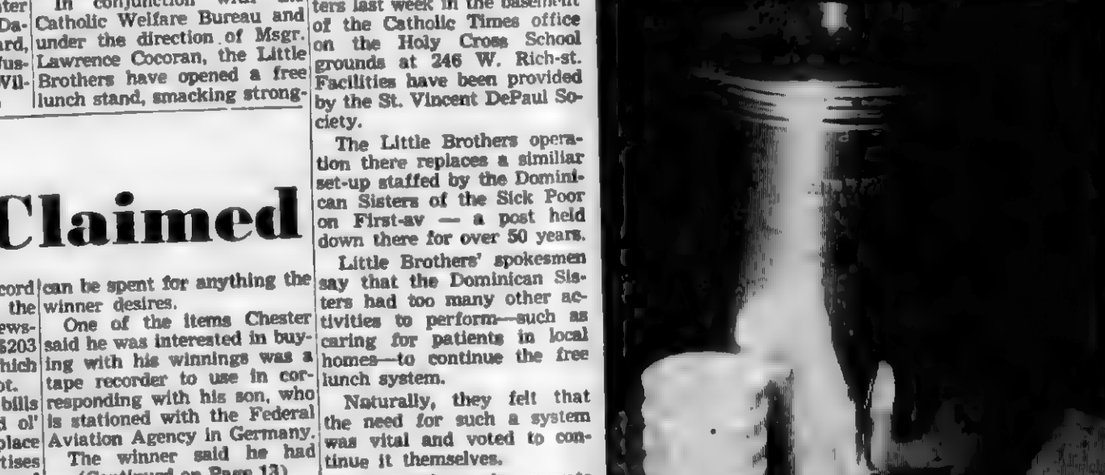
As far as Catholic officials here can determine, Columbus is the first city in Ohio to have such a Little Brothers project.

They established headquarters last week in the basement of the Catholic Times office on the Holy Cross School grounds at 246 W. Rich-st. Facilities have been provided by the St. Vincent DePaul Society.

The Little Brothers operation there replaces a similiar set-up staffed by the Dominican Sisters of the Sick Poor on First-av — a post held down there for over 50 years.

Little Brothers' spokesmen say that the Dominican Sisters had too many other activities to perform—such as caring for patients in local homes—to continue the free lunch system.

Naturally, they felt that the need for such a system was vital and voted to continue it themselves.



The Brothers also operate the Brother Martin Home and the Good Samaritan Inn.

The lunch counter is open weekdays from 3 to 4:30 p.m. Food is contributed by local merchants and the Dominican Sisters. They are currently feeding some 30 needy persons per day.

Besides the lunches of sandwiches, coffee and pastry, the Brothers have a follow-up service planned, also.

Each person coming in for a lunch is asked to fill out a card for such information as size of family, rent paid, occupation, income and the names of children with ages and shoe and clothes size.

Religious faith and race is not considered.

REMINISCENT OF THE depression day "soup kitchen" is this place on E. Rich-st where lunch is served to some 25 to 30 transients daily. The kitchen is staffed by members of the Little Brothers of the Good Shepherd. The stove was not connected last week (the first of operation on the Holy Cross School grounds) but it is expected that some hot food may be served later.

THIS IS A SAMPLE of the lunches served by the Little Brothers of the Good Shepherd weekdays (3 to 4:30 p.m.) in the basement of the Catholic Times news office on the Holy Cross school grounds. Those unable to afford lunch can get it here free, including a sandwich, coffee and pastry.

VALLEY VIEW MAN WINS

$203 Jackpot Claimed

The old jackpot has been claimed! and already a new jackpot is building up for the next lucky winner of the Hartley Newspapers' "Confederate Money" contest.

Murel Chester, 2370 Westwood-dr, Valleyview, a retired employe of the Pennsylvania Railroad, came up with the lucky "5" emblem in his copy of the Hilltop Record last week and brought the paper to the Hartley Newspaper Office to claim the $203 in "Confederate" cash which was waiting in the jackpot.

These "Confederate" bills are as spendable as good ol' U. S. currency at any place of business which advertises in a Hartley newspaper and can be spent for anything the winner desires.

One of the items Chester said he was interested in buying with his winnings was a tape recorder to use in corresponding with his son, who is stationed with the Federal Aviation Agency in Germany.

The winner said he had

University President Praises Work Of Big Brother Group

By JOHN AUBLE, JR.

Ohio University President Dr. Vernon R. Alden compared the work of the Big Brothers of America to the "one-to-one athlete-coach relationship" during the 15th annual national convention Thursday evening.

Speaking to some 300 delegates, representing over 25 states, in the Ohio Union ballroom, Dr. Alden said: "It seems to me that Big Brothers is a strong testimonial for an eagerness to help — free from sluggish self-interest."

The university official who, at 38, is the youngest college president in the state, revealed plans for employing Big Brother techniques on his Athens, O., campus.

"To help inspire and guide the young is one of life's greatest endeavors. For this reason, we're encouraging smaller units of student bodies at Ohio University since, like Big Brothers, we realize the joys of close, personal companionship," he said.

The principal speaker asked the delegation what motivated them, as hard-pressed businessmen, to go into Big Brother work. "I'm sure it's because our lives must have meaning or we perish," he answered.

"In this age of global upheaval and hazy values, Big Brothers recognizes and holds fast to the fundamental facts of life. I admire your insight and am filled with good will for you and your organization," he commented.

Among other talk highlights, the president pointed out the "tremendous effect" volunteer services have had on our lives.

"Without volunteers," he said, "little would get done. In this country the list of volunteers is endless. Much of the social legislation we enjoy today was brought about by this type of person.

"Why volunteers?" he asked. "Because to help our neighbor is inherent in our lives. We are our brother's keeper."

The Big Brothers will be convening until Saturday noon, according to W. E. Richardson, 1794 Bluff-av, who is program chairman and executive director of the Columbus Big Brother Ass'n.

"We are always interested in doing things to update our processes," he said. "I'm sure we're all learning how to better serve the youth of this country."

Big Brothers of America President Charles G. Berwind, a Philadelphia resident who has held that post since 1947, said, "We've tried for many years to find exactly what to do for the little brother.

"I don't think any one definition is satisfactory. Our greatest challenge, of course, is to give the boy a feeling of security in the society of which he is a part," Berwind added.

Other Big Brothers officials in Columbus this week include Regional Vice-President DeVere Bobier and Executive Director of Big Brothers of America Tom E. O'Brien.

Navy Offers Six Career Choices For June Grads

Six select fields of training are available to June graduates under the Navy's High School Graduate Training Program. The announcement was made by E. D. Bristle, machinist mate chief, Columbus recruiter.

Chief Bristle stated that the program guarantees the graduate enlistment in the field of his choice. The six fields are the Polaris missile, nuclear reactor technician, electronics, aviation, hospital and dental, and seaman. Enlistment in one of these fields would assure assignment to one of the more than 70 technical schools.

To qualify applicants must have a high school diploma and meet certain mental and physical requirements. More information is available from E. D. Bristle, Columbus Area Recruiter, at the Main Office in the new Post Office Building, Room 500, or at 80 E. Gay-st. Hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and the phone is 221-6411, ext. 555.

'15 YEARS BEHIND

Educator Chastises 'Duty Shirking' Ohio State Legislators

(EDITOR'S NOTE) The following article was published in a house organ for the South-Western City School District as a commentary on the status of school finances with the State Legislature. It was written by former teacher and present community relations director of the school district, Paul Nobblitt.

higher salaries) to attempt to attract more industry to education) so, that we now have in Ohio, a mixed-up mess.

The Legislature has killed a previous development commission (DIED), and set up a new commission (at higher salaries) to attempt to attract more industry to Ohio.

At the same time, the Legislature has chosen to ignore the words of wisdom from persons completely disassociated from education, that a high level of education together with a greatly expanded quality and quantity of research facilities must be in existence to attract modern industry.

Individual members of the Legislature have begun publicly criticizing guidance and counseling service as a "frill," while at the same time expressing great concern about the dropout problem and youth unemployment.

Some legislators have publicly condemned the OEA (Ohio Education Assn.) and Tom O'Keefe (its executive secretary) and have accused him of trying to "pressure" the Legislature on behalf of good education for all the boys and girls in Ohio!

Yet, we are told of one industrial-commercial organization which maintains more than a score of lobbying representatives wielding the power of hundreds of millions of dollars . . . to further the interests of just one company.

But perhaps the squeals of outraged legislators only indicate that O'Keefe's well-documented barbs are hitting where it hurts most.

An internationally-known businessman recently told a convention group assembled in an Ohio city, that Ohio schools generally were 15 years behind the schools of leading states of the Union.

If the present trend toward shirking responsibility, toward repudiation of promises, toward cutting education back to where it was 30 years ago, and toward piling more of the taxation load on the local real estate continues, we feel it safe to predict that education in Ohio is going to take another giant step backward.

And then how many years behind will it be?

WISHES for a wading pool to replace hose-sprinkling will come true this summer if the Eastern Sertoma Club's current money-making project is successful. The group will donate their proceeds from the sale of tickets to the Kenley Players production, the "Unsinkable Molly Brown," on July 9, to the building of a therapeutic wading pool.

THIS HISTORIC STRUCTURE, built in 1830, has been used as an inn and, during the Civil War, reportedly was part of the underground railroad that harbored runaway slaves. The building now houses the Columbus Children's Psychiatric Hospital.

A CERAMIC KILN, and a badly-needed bus, among gifts of the Ruth Lyons Christmas Program, are examples of what community interest can do to aid the hospital's program of treatment for young children.

'...Molly Brown' Ticket Sale To Aid Hospital

Eastern Sertoma Club of Columbus, in its continued interest to improve facilities at the Children's Psychiatric Hospital, are sponsoring the Tuesday, July 9, Kenley Players production of "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," starring Peter Palmer and Phyllis McGuire.

Proceeds of all tickets bought from the Sertoma Club will go for a therapeutic wading pool for the children, according to Bob Pope, Eastern Sertoma president.

Ticket reservations are available through Eastern Sertoma Club, BE. 7-2828.

Youngsters Helped To Mental Health

There is little about the quiet and unassuming old brick structure at 800 N. Nelson-rd to distinguish it as a house of hope for youngsters.

Only the playground and basketball court suggest the building set behind the trees is a place for children. The residence is, officially called the Columbus Children's Psychiatric Hospital. It is more familiarly known as "Happy Acres."

The 27-bed residential treatment center for boys and girls, ages six to 12, was founded ten years ago. Dr. W. Hugh Missildine, then director of the Children's Mental Health Center, had an idea.

It was Dr. Missildine's conviction that a place was needed for children who could benefit from intensive treatment. They could be helped in residence, with intensive therapy possible during 24 hours each day.

As an outgrowth of this idea, the lay board of directors of the Children's Mental Health Center, with the help of other community agencies, especially the United Community Council and the Department of Mental Hygiene and Correction, organized the treatment center.

The structure, built originally in 1830 and used as an inn, was donated by the Big Sisters of Columbus for $1 a year, and the support of the building and grounds was assumed by United Appeals.

The child residential care center was staffed by the State of Ohio, which paid for the services of the staff and the program.

This unique financial arrangement of state and community sharing is still in force.

In the first ten years of its operation, the care center has dealt with 220 children. Seventy-five per cent of these have been returned to their families significantly improved.

The hospital's 27-bed limit was filled almost as soon as the program was started, and the waiting list of patients has grown through the years, proportionately with Franklin County's population.

The only deficiency in the center is its size. The 27-bed hospital has become entirely inadequate to serve the needs of a community the size of Franklin County, with a population of 700,000.

Under the direction of Dr. Thomas King, child psychichologists, four social workers, three teachers, 12 child care workers, to psychiatric-residents, four social work students, one business manager, four secretaries, two maintenance men, four cooks and three housekeepers, carry out an intensive, 24-hour therapy. The staff of 35 dedicated, well-trained specialists, meets APA standards.

Each child has a personally prescribed schedule, established to cover his specific needs. These needs are carefully evaluated weekly and daily in staff conferences.

School, beginning at 9 a.m., day's schedule during the days' schedule during the school year. At 3 p.m., activities conducted by the staff cover model building, arts and crafts, ceramics, and recreational therapies, using a wide variety of specialties and games.

Patients are charged by the State Bureau of Support up to $5 a day, depending on their ability to pay. However, no child is excluded because of the parents' inability to pay for his treatment.

Dr. King gratefully credits community groups such as the Franklin County Mental Health Association Volunteers, Council of Jewish Women, Rinkey Dinks and Eastern Sertoma Club, for their interest in the hospital and their assistance in providing needed extras.

He cites Ruth Lyons Christmas Gift Program as an example, "We have a new piano, a kiln for ceramics, an educational television set-up and a new bus, replacing the one that was 20 years old and constantly broken down, all provided from the Ruth Lyons Program.

"These are things we just did without before," Dr. King explained. "We have had plans for building a wading pool for several years, and were it not for the Eastern Sertoma Club, now sponsoring a project to raise funds for this purpose, we would just have to do without it.

"All these newer and better tools," emphasizes Dr. King, "are not essential to the well-adjusted child, but they are important to the therapy of our kids, making our job faster, better, easier and more efficient."

Dr. King's reflections are those of many professionals, who strive to do their job well, while hoping for greater potential service to their patients with the most modern tools and concepts.

The skyline of New York, our largest city, is familiar to everyone. New York has buildings unmatched anywhere in the world, and also leads the nation in many industries. This great city typifies the success and abundance throughout our nation. God has blessed our nation.

"Blessed is every one that feareth the Lord; that walketh in his ways. For thou shalt eat the labour of thine hands: happy shalt thou be, and it shall be well with thee." Psalm 128:12

ATTEND CHURCH SUNDAY

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH ... THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Stadium Theatre Announces 1963 Summer Season

OSU's Stadium Theater 1963 season will open on June 18 and close on Aug. 11. The eight-week season will include two musicals and four plays.

Ringing up the season for five performances from June 18 to 22 will be Mary Chase's world famous comedy, "Harvey." It tells the story of a man in constant happiness and his friend Harvey, an invisible six feet, one and a half inch tall rabbit.

Following in the line-up will be the delightful and romantic musical comedy, "Little Mary Sunshine." This musical spoof of all the operettas of early this century will play for 10 performances June 26 to July 6, omitting the night of July 4. In an off-Broadway run in New York City "LMS" ran for almost three years, delighting audiences every night.

Third in the season from July 9 to 13 will be "Children of Darkness." This play has been called one of the best American comedies ever written. It takes place in the jailer's room of Newgate prison in 1725 and is an earthy comedy of corruption.

From July 16 to 20 Enid Bagnold's comedy "The Chalk Garden" is scheduled.

Lawrence and Lee's "Inherit The Wind" will be produced from July 23 to 27. The play is based on the famous 1920's trial in Dayton, Tenn., concerning the teaching of evolution. The play has many moments of both comedy and suspense.

Closing the season for 12 performances from July 31 to Aug. 11 will be the famous musical comedy "Where's Charley?" by Frank Loesser and George Abbott. Based on the world's most famous and popular comedy, "Charley's Aunt," this musical ran long in New York and on the road with Ray Bolger.

The Gate 10 Box Office for Stadium Theater will open on Monday, June 10. Season Thrift Strips are now available by mail. Orders should be sent to Stadium Theatre, Box Office, 154 N. Oval-dr, Columbus 10.

Thieves Crack McDonald Safe

After hauling the safe to the outside with a dolly, thieves used a sledge hammer to remove the combination and obtain $1,155 from McDonald's Drive-In Restaurant, 2815 Winchester-pk, early Sunday.

The safe, which the safecrackers had gained access to by prying open a back door of the drive-in, was valued at $710. It was ruined.

Trailer Owners Face Charges On Unpaid Tax

A $50 fine and costs were levied against Jessie S. Landes, operator of a trailer court at 2909 Lockbourne-rd, in Municipal Court last Wednesday.

The deputy auditor warned that suits will be filed against 60 other trailer owners who have failed to pay real estate taxes.

GREAT SOUTHERN W. T. GRANT CO. SHOP MEMORIAL DAY

Surplus Commodities Aid Those In Need

Many a homemaker with a hardworking husband has found herself at wit's end trying to stretch a dollar.

Her family grows and the cost of living spirals, but the pay check fails to keep pace.

There is, however, one help for her, of which she may be unaware.

Commodity surplus foods are available for the asking if her budget shows the need.

The Distribution Center the fairgrounds has many features of a supermarket—mountains of food, grocery carts and long lines at the check-out counter.

Only two things are missing—variety and a cash register.

Though one might regret the former, few can object to the lack of a sales tape-spewing register.

And taxpayers might rejoice knowing the government has found at least one way to cut the monumental storage bills the price support program has entailed.

On each of the four days a week the center is open, about 20 tons of food that the US government has purchased under the agricultural stabilization law is given to those in Franklin County who have a proven need for it.

As part of the county's welfare program, persons on relief and welfare are automatically mailed cards entitling them to draw on the supplies in ratio to the size of their families.

It is in the home where there is an income that just isn't big enough, that all this is news.

The questions most frequently asked by a new applicant are "Who's eligible?" and "What do you get?"

To establish eligibility one must certify to the Department of Public Welfare that his personal income is less than the standards established by the department for a family of its size, that savings are less than $300 and cooking facilities are available.

These standards are arrived at through the use of a rather complicated schedule, but larger families with less than $50 a month income per member would usually be eligible, and a retired couple with no income except social security would also qualify.

The food given out varies, but currently includes cheese, butter, powdered milk, chopped canned meat, lard, wheat cereal, flour, cornmeal, peanut butter, beans and rice.

The size of the family and the product determines the monthly allotment.

For example, a tin of meat weighing almost two pounds, is allowed for each individual with a maximum of 10 cans for one applicant. No one receives more than two pounds of peanut butter.

Though the person living by himself receives a 10-pound sack of flour only semi-monthly, the large family is eligible for 30 pounds.

According to Harry Stewart, interviewer, and Albert Reed, warehouse manager, a family of seven can receive about 109 pounds of food, valued at retail cost at about $30.

Answering past criticism that recipients have been observed using taxi cabs to pick up the supplies, Stewart stated that such action is neither "unusual or imprudent."

He pointed out that no one can carry more than a hundred pounds of food, and those who cannot find other transportation would be penny-wise and pound-foolish to refuse to invest cab fare in $30 worth of food.

One day recently the center passed out 1990 pounds of butter, 1685 pounds of lard, 1951 cans of meat, 2028 pounds of wheat, 3280 pounds of powdered milk, 7790 pounds of cornmeal, 1852 pounds of rice, 3108 pounds of soup beans, 477 pounds of peanut butter and 2027 pounds of cheese.

But no matter how much is given out, there is always a surplus for those in need.

WITH 13 MOUTHS to feed it is no wonder that Edward Walker, 1425 Gerald-av, claimed, "I just couldn't get along without this food." Formerly a construction worker, Walker's activitiy is now limited by a slipped disc in his spine. Charlie Gwenn, full-time employe of the Welfare Department, here puts eight pounds of butter in his cart, completing Walker's monthly allotment.

LONG-TIME MOVING VAN driver, Grove Tippet, 1045 E. Rich-st, draws surplus food for his family to stretch the budget until he can get back to work after a stroke last year. Though his doctor says he can never again pass a physical for truck-driving, Tippet hopes soon to find employment packing dishes and such for a transit company for which he worked so many years.

Local TV Station Presenting Reading, Writing Program

If you were asked to guess how many adults in Franklin County cannot read or write, how many would you guess were in this category?

The 1960 census showed 15,000 people in this county had not completed the fourth grade in school, and could not read well enough to read road signs or this newspaper.

In an attempt to help these men and women learn the fundamentals of reading and writing, the Adult Education Council of Greater Columbus in cooperation with WLW-C, Channel 4, is sponsoring a TV program geared to adult learning.

Every weekday morning at 6 a.m. to 6:30 a.m. for twenty weeks, WLW-C will present the television series "Operation Alphabet." This series has been developed exclusively for adults by the Philadelphia Schools and is being shown at present to over 200,000 viewers in Cleveland and Cincinnati.

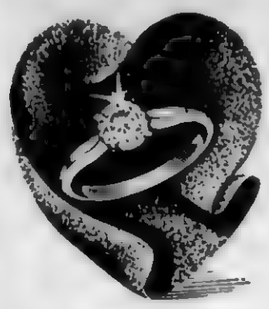
If you have a friend or relative who cannot read or write, or who reads or writes so poorly that he can not fill out an application for employment or cannot read "the funnies" in the newspaper, you are urged to tell them about this new program.

"Operation alphabet" started May 27 at 6 a.m. and will continue daily throughout the summer.

Chest X-Rays Reveal 27 TB Possibilities

Twenty-seven cases of suspected tuberculosis were reported from Christmas Seal chest x-rays offered in 22 local industries during April, the Tuberculosis Society reported today. A total of 103 cases of suspected TB has been reported from industrial x-rays since January.

The x-ray survey is part of the overall industrial and special location program offered by the society each year from January to May. Free x-rays are available for any firm employing more than 40 persons.



April x-rays showed the following other suggested findings as well: eight tumors, 33 cardiac conditions, 16 emphysema cases and 81 other pathologies.

Sponsor Contest

Hartley Newspapers area artists—professional, amatuer or just hobbyists — can compete for prizes to be awarded by the National Tuberculosis Ass'n. for designing the 1965 Christmas Seal.

Deadline for the contest is Sept. 4. Information and details are available from the TB Society.

FOR CSSO'S FOURTH CELEBRATION

Like To Be 'Miss South Side?' It's As Easy As Signing Name

John Marshall, chairman of the Council of South Side Organizations' upcoming Fourth of July activity, has put out the word that girls 15 to 21 are being sought for the Miss South Side title.

This is the second year for the contest, Marshall said, with South High senior Miss Linda Tapia crowned winner last year.

As beauty contests go, this is perhaps the easiest of all to enter. First step would be to fill out accompanying coupon and drop it off at the South Side YMCA office, 190 Southwood-av.

Unlike last year's contest, the council has done away with the usual entry fee and also with the necessity of obtaining a sponsor.

Girls interested must live within the limits of Livingston-av south to the city limits and between the Scioto River and Alum Creek.

The judging will take place July 4 at Southview Park as a highlight to the Fourth celebration. Several notables from the Columbus area will pick the winner.

Deadline for entering is midnight, July 1.

TB REPORT

More Than 900 Have Had Tests

More than 900 people living between Morrill-av and the New York Central Railroad have had free Christmas Seal TB tests and chest X-rays at the Tuberculosis Society's "Operation Checkmates" cruisers as of May 15.

The Society's two cruisers offering these two life-saving tests to South Siders have been making neighborhood stops since May 6. Free TB tests have been given to 885 people in the area and free chest X-rays to 536 people.

Of the 885 people who received free TB skin tests, 193 had positive reactions. A positive reaction to the test does not necessarily mean the person has active tuberculosis, but it does show he has been in close contact with someone who does have active TB and that TB germs have entered his body.

There were 532 adults TB skin tested and 353 children. Four children and 189 adults had positive reactions to the skin test.

"The percentage of positive reactors among adults has risen since the first week of the program," said E. Clifford Roberts, "Checkmates" director. "It would now appear that more than 38 per cent of all adults tested have TB germs in their bodies."

Next week the cruisers will visit the following locations:

Sunday, June 2, "Checkmates Sunday" — Innis-av and Eighth-st, 8 a.m. - 2 p.m. Monday, June 3—Morrill-av and Fourth-st, 1-7 p.m. Tuesday, June 4—Morrill-av and Bruck, 1-7 p.m. Wednesday, June 5 — Woodrow-av and Sixth-st, 10 a.m.-noon and 1-7 p.m. Thursday, June 6—Innis-av and Fourth-st, 2-8 p.m.

Making personal appearances during the coming week for the "Checkmates" program will be television celebrities Bill Pepper, Monday; Luci of "Luci's Toyshop," Tuesday; and Chet Long, Wednesday.

South Side Men Save Fisherman

A 29-year-old Tiffin, O., man can be thankful today that three Columbus men were nearby Sunday when his 14-foot boat overturned on Lake Erie off Catawba Point and threw him into the chilly water.

Gerald Crabtree, 41, of 209 Delray-rd, his son, Cary, 17, and his brother-in-law, Lloyd Green, 26, 2501 S. High-st, were fishing nearby when they heard Theodore Rodgers yell for help.

The three men pulled up anchor and rowed to where Rodgers was floundering and towed him to the shore. The boat captized and sank when Rodgers was reaching for some fishing tackle. He was unable to swim.

Our Wish: A Safe Round-trip

The irony of Memorial Day makes for a sad reflection. We honor the dead with a bloodbath of highway slaughter that is little short of barbaric.

Motoring safety can be the difference between a round trip and a funeral. But all too often safety loses out to the personal belief that sudden death always comes to the "other fellow."

It might be interesting, Mr. Motorist, to know that your odds of becoming the "other fellow" are growing shorter. The "other fellows" established a new record for membership during 1962; 40,500 of them achieved the "once only" experience of death.

There is the secondary group of motoring casualties, 3,345,000 persons who were injured; some of them crippled for life. Each of them was pretty much like you, Mr. Motorist, until he suddenly became the "other fellow."

Consider if you will that truck drivers, as a group, constitute a relatively safe segment of the driving public. They are bombarded by company safety personnel with the idea of "defensive" driving. They drive for a living —and they drive in a manner best calculated to keep them living.

Consider also, Mr. Motorist, that almost nine of every 10 traffic accidents are caused by driver error and lack of judgment, and that about 80 per cent of all accidents occur in clear weather and on dry roads.

Our holiday wish for you is one that which only you can make come true. It is a wish for a safe round-trip.

Grads, From Now On You Help Yourself

To all area high school graduates and graduates-elect we offer congratulations and our best wishes for a secure and productive future.

For many of you graduation represents the reaching of a plateau in the climb toward the higher challenges of a college degree.

It is the time in life that marks the end of physical stature and the beginning of mature, intellectual growth.

To a great extent, you are now masters of your own destiny. There is no law that says you must remain in school. You will find willing help and counsel if you are eager to learn—and others waiting to take your place in college if "space" is all you choose to occupy.

Whereas high school is "fed" to you with or without your consent, college is education "cafeteria style." You help yourself, or you go intellectually hungry. We admonish you to help yourself freely; to learn well that you may live better.

An Editor's Outlook . . . by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

What Ever Happened To Keynes?

In 1935, when John Maynard Keynes was preparing to write his book, "The General Theory of Employment, Interest and Money," he said in a note to George Bernard Shaw, "I believe myself to be writing a book on economic theory which will largely revolutionize—not, I suppose at once, but in the course of the next 10 years—the way the world thinks about economic problems."

Jones

He revolutionized economic theory, all right. Or at least those who claim to be following his theories have. He is held up as an advocate of and an apologist for the wildest government extravagance, and politicians who love to curry votes by spending public money revere his memory. Only he wasn't in favor of that at all. He must be twirling in his grave.

Keynes was neither evil nor stupid. He was a brilliant Cambridge don who judged men and balance sheets so well that he made a couple of million dollars while lying in bed. That is, he used to examine the morning financial reports, phone a few orders to his broker, and rise to spend the rest of the day in more intellectual pursuits.

Keynes was already famed as the greatest economist in Britain when the Great Depression fastened itself upon the world. While financiers and statesmen kept assuring citizens that recovery was "just around the corner" Keynes pondered the fact that it stayed there.

According to traditional boom-bust theory a boom occurred when general confidence in future profits raised the investment level. This expanded production and employment and everything roared. But if confidence were shaken by failures due to overborrowing, or if the market's needs appeared overfilled then investment contracted, investors hoarded money, and activity fell off. When the "glut of savings" reached a certain point, according to the traditional economists, the interest rate would fall, industry would find borrowed money a bargain again, and expansion would start at once.

But in the Great Depression Keynes found that savings evaporated, too. In 1929 Americans were saving at the rate of $3.7 billion a year. Three years later Americans as a whole were not only saving nothing but were drawing down on their personal reserves. Corporations which had saved $2.6 billion over taxes and dividends in 929 were, by 1932, losing a total of $6 billion. In the same period corporate investments plummeted from $15 billion to $886 million.

Now the truism was plain. Prosperity is not tied to wants. It is tied to buying power. Heaven knows, at the bottom of the Depression everyone had plenty of wants. Consumers wanted goods; labor wanted jobs; industry wanted orders and stockholders wanted dividends. But there was a paralysis in the money-flow. The economy was in balance, but at a stagnation level.

So Keynes reasoned that government spending might trigger the recovery. He wrote:

"If the treasury were to fill old bottles with bank notes, bury them at a suitable depth in disused coal mines which are then filled up to the surface with town rubbish, and leave it to private enterprise to dig the notes up again, there need to be no more unemployment . . . It would be more sensible to build houses and the like; but the above would be better than nothing."

When Keynes visited the United States in 1934 he was received with open arms. Franklin Roosevelt wrote to Felix Frankfurter: "I had a grand talk with K and liked him immensely." For here was a man who not only approved but made both a patriotic and an economic virtue of government spending. Since the beginning of time politicians had been dreaming of a sound excuse for spending more than their government took in.

But this was only part of the Keynes theory. Government spending was useful only in getting enterprise going again.

"How soon will normal business enterprise come to the rescue," he wrote in a letter to the New York Times. "On what scale and for how long is abnormal government expenditure advisable in the meantime?"

Get the word "abnormal." For Keynes was a sound money man. "By a continuous process of inflation," Keynes stated, "governments can confiscate, secretly and unobserved, an important part of the wealth of their citizens . . . There is no surer, no subtler means of overturning the existing basis of society than to debauch the currency."

Nor was he as has been charged, a devious promoter of collectivism. "How can I accept," he asked, "the (communist) doctrine which sets up as its bible, above and beyond criticism, an obsolete textbook which I know not only to be scientifically erroneous but without interest or application to the modern world?"

Keynes' thesis was simple. In paralysis, government primes the pump with expenditures that exceed income. In recovery government restores its credit by reducing public debt.

Alas for Keynes! He underestimated the moral weakness both of governments and citizens. Once given the rationale for public debt everybody loved the spending. Wants became "needs." In good times as well as bad the debt rose. No political party dared make a serious effort to reduce it. Congress simply kept raising the debt limit. And now, with business faltering under heavy corporate and private taxes, the proposal is made to cut the taxes but to keep the spending at $100 billion.

Poor Keynes. He recommended that we have a before-dinner highball to reduce that tired feeling. And now we lie sprawled, surrounded by empty bottles.

Frosting On The Cake

By "UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

Every day we read in every paper sad-sack news stories about "what ails our kids today?" It seems high time for more attention to be given to the many marvelous things youngsters are accomplishing in this generation in so many sane and sound areas of achievement.

Music, scientific research, recreational leadership, safety education, public service; the list is endless of fine and socially sound things these inspired and inspiring teeners are doing.

Careful objectve investigation shows that where Mom and Pop are on the job as real parents who have proper balance between love and rigid discipline, the quotient of high grade elementary and secondary educational programs is higher from year to year.

"The growing pains are, of course, just as severe and tedious as ever, but the ratio is growing as each year's high school seniors graduate and go into life or higher education.

Faith in Almighty God, belief in old fashioned honesty, and willingness to work, control the lives of millions of our present generation from age 10 to 20. Total lack of faith in anything and utter disregard for the eternal verities are also manifested in each generation to be sure, but where home and church and school work together in sound character training, most of these youngsters are going to make the grade in life by the time they are 30.

It had better be so, because they, not us, are going to "call the shots" sooner than any of us realize.

REMEMBER THE LIVING, TOO

Very properly we set aside one day a year as a memorial to the gallant dead of all our wars. Compared to their sacrifice in giving the "last full measure of devotion," there is little we can say except that we do remember.

But there is much we can do, not the least of which is to see to it that "they shall not have died in vain" by preserving and guarding the precious heritage of freedom that they were willing to defend, even unto death. This is the true meaning of Memorial Day—not the speeches, not the parades, not the show of the colors, appropriate as they are, for they are but the symbols of the reality of devotion.

Beyond all this we can honor the dead by remembering the living. All about us, in and out of hospitals, totally or partially disabled, are thousands of men, quietly going about, if they can, doing the things that must be done. They say little about their troubles. They take time out when they must, then turn back to their work when they can. Small blame can be laid, and surely not by the rest of us, if, at times, a few become discouraged.

These are the forgotten. These are they who risked life and almost gave it in defense of this land while the rest of us were doing something else or nothing. They don't want pity. They don't want to be called heroes. All they want is the assurance that we know and remember that they did what they could when it had to be done. Surely a race that can split atoms and probe into space should have gumption enough to recognize the dignity and humanity of their fellowmen who have gone beyond the call of duty and still carry their wounds to prove it.

It says here . . . .

The best way to honor the dead is to remember the living.

MEMORIAL DAY

Today flags are flying at half-mast—
In honor of all those who gave
Their lives in their country's service
And now rest peacefully in the grave.

They remain in our memory
Not just for one day each year—
They fought for freedom and democracy
And the land we all hold dear.

Let's try to keep the ideals
They fought for in foreign lands—
They gallantly did their best,
Now the future is in our hands.

But it takes more than a flower and a song
To assure that they died not in vain
We should make use of our nation's power
Good will and friendship to gain.

Most Commuter Sentences Are Better Left Unsaid

Years ago humorist Robert Benchley wrote an article on how to avoid shipboard bores when traveling abroad. The most effective guise to discourage such earbenders, he found, was to assume the pose of a deaf mute.

McPeek

The only drawback to this imposture was that often it would hamper Mr. B's style if perchance he were to find on board a cutie traveling unattached. Naturally, to effect a shipboard romance, a mute tongue presented quite a handicap . . . even for such an urban cherub as Mr. B.

But that is neither here nor there, for Mr. B., having departed this planet in 1945, probably is no longer concerned with such earthly problems—if any. The only point is to express regret that the humorist did not devote equal attenion o the problem of persons who converse raucously on public conveyances, particularly city buses and commuter trains.

Certainly, not even the most ascetic of us would find objection to persons talking on such vehicles if they would do so in modulated tones directed only to the ears of willing participants. Unfortunately, this seldom is the case. On the contrary, most of these people seem to possess abnormally robust lungs and apparently believe what they have to say is, or should be, of profound interest to every captive passenger. If it is summer and the windows are open they yell even to nearby pedestrians.

Inasmuch as most commuters are content to bury their noses in newspapers, magazines or books, or gaze out the windows in quiet contemplation, it doesn't seem unreasonable that other riders should conduct themselves with the same deportment that a less mobile library would demand.

The talk usually dwells on such mundane topics as junior's sinus condition, the price of artichokes, the forthcoming P-TA musicale, hubby's expanding girth, Fido's mange affliction, or last summer's exciting vacation to a relative's hog farm in Nebraska.

As a Chicago commuter who spends 90 minutes a day on a train, the first thing I do upon entering the coach is to seek out an unoccupied seat as far removed from any pair seated together. If there is a pair of women seated together, I give up and fly to the next coach.

But it seems I travel under a dark cloud. Invariably, within a few stops, my ears are buffeted by the vacuous shrillings of late comers. And not even clouds of heavy cigar smoke will quiet them or chase them away.

So Mr. B, if you could lay aside your harp long enough to send us poor battered commuters a heavenly tip on how to cure this problem, pray do so.

We Are Responsible For Our Freedom

In your Bible, Acts 22:28 reads: "And the chief captain answered, with a great sum obtained I this freedom." And Paul said, "But I was free born."

We have a kinship with both these men. Every American can say with the Apostle Paul, "I am free born." (Or every American ought to be able to say that.) The racial tensions in Birmingham and elsewhere point up the tragic fact that there are some millions of Americans who have not been born free. The Civil War and the Emancipation Act were supposed to set them free. We ought to do all we can as patriotic Americans to see to it that every man and woman in America is given real freedom. We ought not falsely claim that all Americans are free simply because their freedom is provided in the Constitution.

Rev. Wines

The chief captain in our Scripture text paid a great price to obtain the freedom which came as a Roman citizen. Freedom is always costly. It is easy for people to receive the gift of freedom; a freedom others paid for with their lives, but when they do not pay the price to preserve it they lose it. After the Federal Convention, Benjamin Franklin was walking down the street in Philadelphia when a woman accosted him and asked, "Well, doctor, what have we got — a republic or a monarchy?" "A republic, madam," he replied, "if you can keep it." History is made up of the struggles of men grappling with evil forces in order to save what gains they have made.

Many may not realize it but the seeds of freedom are sown in the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ. Our Lord offers a freedom to all men which is basic to other freedoms. (John 8:36) "Whom the Son maketh free is free indeed."

It cost God much to purchase freedom for man. The price was far more than any man or all men collectively could pay. It was God's love for man which prompted His willingness. "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son. . ."

Salvation, which is freedom from sin and its condemnation, is every man's most desperate need and every man's birthright. Christ died for all that "whosoever will" can be freed from sin's bondage and woe.

On Aug. 1, 1836, the British Parliament abolished slavery in the West Indies. When the decree went into effect a year later, 20,000 slaves came together in Jamaica. It is said they put on white robes. At 11 p.m. July 31, 1837, they knelt and, with faces turned upward, waited an hour. As the clock struck the hour of midnight, they arose and shouted joyously, "We are free! We are free!"

Every Christian of every generation has been able to shout with the joy of a freedom no less real when Christ has struck the shackles of sin from them. But it is only as His saved people enlist their redeemed lives in sincere devotion and faithful service that they remain free.

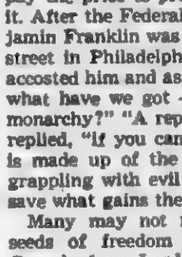
FOOD MARKETS THIS WEEK

Local Produce Plentiful For Holiday Menus

By ESTELLE B. FRANKS

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:



Fruits — Bananas, pineapple, strawberries, home grown rhubarb

Vegetables—Greenhouse tomatoes, asparagus, new potatoes, home grown salad vegetables, peppers, sweet corn

Meats and Poultry—Steak "specials," fryers, hams, sausage meats, ground beef, large eggs

Other—Ice cream, cheese, frozen: corn, peas, limas, lemonade.

Many vegetables are now coming from local farms that can add interest to your menus for Memorial Day weekend—and, at reasonable prices. For picnic baskets or patio meals you'll find good field grown leaf and bibb lettuce, dark green romaine, crisp radishes and green onions.

Mrs. Franks

For indoor meals, enjoy the freshness of the local spinach and other cooking greens before hot weather comes to stay. New beets with their fresh tops are a welcome addition to many produce counters, and offer the variety of an old-fashioned dish of boiled beets-and-greens. Don't overlook asparagus while it's coming from nearby farms; the quality stays good.

Greenhouse tomatoes always add an extra touch to salads or picnic baskets. You'll like their featured prices in many markets this weekend. Shipped-in produce is also increasing—more snap beans, cucumbers and vine-ripes at slightly lower prices. Expect sweet corn to be featured often, if present prospects in Florida materialize.

As for fruits, this is still between seasons for heavy supplies, although things are looking up. If you're wanting top quality strawberries expect the price to be high, as supplies are below normal for this time of year. At this writing, the California berries are beauties and there are some good ones from Kentucky, Illinois and eastern states.

You'll find watermelons with special price tags for the holiday weekend and some good values can be found on Valencia oranges and lemons. Mexican pineapples—those big ones that look green when they are ripe—are in peak of season. Tartarian sweet cherries, early peaches and a few blueberries are in markets at luxury prices.

This is the weekend to watch for meats suitable for grilling or for picnics. Besides the items listed above, spareribs, wieners and bacon are good values in many stores.

Eggs—any way you use them—give a lot of high-quality protein for your money. Production remains seasonally heavy and prices are expected to stay on the low side through spring, with some increase likely by early summer when supplies become moderately smaller.

Be sure to shop the dairy counter carefully. The whole roster of dairy products is there ready for the dairy industry celebrations that start next week. Some items are sure to be featured each week.

Race Companion Pens '500' Memo To Driver

City Hospital
Indianapolis, Indiana

Dear Jack Turner,

I offer this note as an apology for my inability to pull you through the trials last week. I understand now that you have decided to retire since your time-trial accident so you won't be in need of my services any longer.

As you lie there in your bed, I suppose it sounds shallow of me to say that you are one of the fortunate ones with only a crushed vertebrae and multiple burns.

WE HAVE driven many races together, you and I. I hope you can appreciate my situation. Each year my task seems to become more difficult, particularly in this one tomorrow.

Actually, our relationship has been longer than many I have accompanied on the straightaway and sharp turns. I was riding with Bill Vukovich when he won in '53 and '54. And I was with him when he died in flames in '55.

Pat O'Conner was a likeable fellow. We got along fine until '57 race when his career was ended abruptly at the brickyard.

BUT YOU MUST understand, I can't drive with them all. Even I have limitations. Too many of you ask for too much at the 500.

It isn't my nature to question, but sometimes I wonder why they let it go on each year. They can't use that tired old excuse about "a proving ground for motor performance, brakes and tires."

After all, the big auto manufacturers have training tracks of their own now, safer and better engineered for the development of their products.

AND THE drivers themselves. You fellows aren't the Sunday amateurs behind the wheel. You are pros with technical know-how and the best possible command of your machiney. And yet—

Let's be honest. What can I possibly do when a tire blows or you experience mechanical failure or there's a pile-up up ahead? At this point, you're on your own.

Maybe it's kind of ironic that this race will come on a day when I will be even more helpless out there on the highways. After all, through 1959, there was only one death per race at the 500. I cannot boast of such success outside the oval.

EXCUSE MY smile, but I remember a warning when Motor Age proclaimed in 1919, "The cars are getting too fast (88 miles an hour)." Your friend, Parnelli Jones, flashed by the pole at better than 151 MPH in his qualifying run last week.

Should be a good crowd tomorrow, Jack. Track officials figure upwards of 150,000 will jam the stands and infield to see a new track record or maybe something else they have become accustomed to seeing down through the years.

Me? Yes, I'll be there tomorrow as I have been every Memorial Day for the past 47 years, riding beside every participant.

But as for you, Jack. Now you may rest and reconsider your narrow brush with fate. Others won't be so fortunate.

Your faithful friend and companion,
Lady Luck

Double Your Pleasure — Go Camping, and Boating

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROB COCHRAN

WITH SCHOOLS dismissing the camping season goes into high gear. For something different this year you might combine camping and boating—the two sports go together. Areas where boat moorage is available next to campgrounds include these state parks: Rocky Fork, Indian Lake, East Harbor and South Bass Island.

Another possibility closer to home would be a weekend canoe trip on a local stream, and camping out one or two nights. This would be on private land, and permission from the farmer must be obtained. The Olentangy, Big Walnut and Big Darby are ideal for an outing of this kind.

Most of the innovations in outdoor gear lend themselves to a boating-camping-fishing vacation. Tents that go up and down in seconds, cooking equipment that does the job in a hurry and improvements in lighting, sleeping and heating equipment help make a combination trip more enticing.

PERHAPS THE MAIN attraction of such a trip is that the whole family can pursue different sports. Dad can go fishing in the morning, while the rest of the family swims or hikes. Afternoons may be reserved for water skiing, or just a leisurely trip in the boat. After that can come games or other activities at the campground.

You see many campers today pulling a tent trailer or travel trailer with a sturdy but lightweight boat loaded on top of the car. This is an ideal combination for smaller waters, or if water skiing is not on the list of fun. Other campers concentrate on a larger boat, and much of their camping gear is stored in the hull for transporting. When you arrive at your destination, you set up camp and then launch your boat.

IT IS NOT HARD to find locations for this sort of weekend or vacation. The ones mentioned above are not far from this area, but there are a number of suitable spots in other state and national parks. Reciprocal boat licensing has opened up throughout the country this ideal of a combination trip.

Traveling to new places is a lot of fun, but there is also the danger of unfamiliar waters and different weather conditions. You should study the boating regulations of each state that you go into, and knowing the standard navigational markers is a must. Caution should be the by-word during a camping and boating trip.

Another tip is to query the gasoline companies before you plan a combination jaunt. Most of them publish folders that show where fuel and other supplies are available along waterways. These are most helpful.

Good sailing, and good camping. Maybe the fish will bite too.

25 YEARS SERVICE

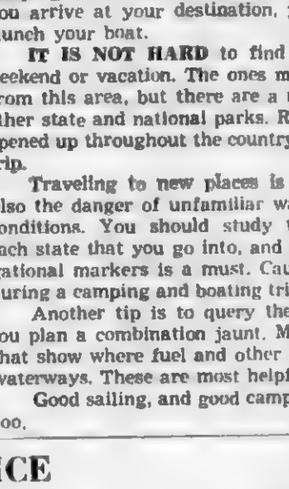
Carolians' Jack Ryan Honored At Anniversary Banquet June 19

Silver-haired Jack Ryan, one of Central Ohio's best known high school coaches, will be toasted at a special silver anniversary banquet to be held in his honor June 19 at the Youth Center on the Ohio State Fairgrounds.

Billed as the "Jack Ryan Appreciation Banquet," the event will mark Ryan's 25 years of coaching at St. Charles Prep. He coaches all three major sports at the E. Broad-st school.

THE BANQUET, scheduled to get under way at 6:30 p.m., is being sponsored by the St. Charles Alumni Assn., the St. Charles Carolian Club and the St. Charles Stagecrafter Mothers Club.

Except for time out for duty in the U.S. Coast Guard during World War II, Ryan has spent his entire career at St. Charles.



Under Ryan's guidance (wartime years are included), St. Charles football, basketball and baseball teams won 888 games while losing 371. This is an impressive .705 won-lost percentage.

WHILE RYAN has enjoyed success in all three major sports, his record in baseball is particularly impressive. Sparked by his personal enjoyment of the game, he established St. Charles as a perennial baseball power.

Excluding the current season, Cardinal teams have won 382 games and lost 143 since Ryan took over the coaching reins in 1938. Record books show St. Charles has enjoyed 22 consecutive winning seasons on the diamond.

Cardinal baseball teams reached the district tournament finals 12 times in the past 22 seasons. They came through with a district championship eight times and also won one regional baseball crown.

ST. CHARLES also won the Metro League baseball championship every year the league existed. In fact, the Cards were unbeaten in the loop. They continued their winning habits in the Central Catholic League, taking the title in 1959-60-62.

Jack Ryan

Also under Ryan, St. Charles teams have won summer league baseball championships too numerous to mention.

Cardinal basketball teams also have fared very well under Ryan's tutelage. Their record during the past 25 years shows 373 victories and 150 defeats. At one stretch before the war, St. Charles boasted a 76-5 cage mark.

IN FOOTBALL, St. Charles won 133 games and lost 78 during the 25-year span. Although Ryan has never had an unbeaten grid season, he came close seven times. St. Charles teams in 1940-44, 1952-53, 1956-57 and 1959 suffered only one setback each.

Last fall, when the Central Catholic League played its first grid schedule, St. Charles emerged with the crown.

Many Ryan-coached players went on to star in college. Some won All-American fame. Bob Duffy moved on to Tulane University when he won All-American basketball honors in the early 1940's. Jack Dowd earned a spot on the 1953 Little All-American team for his grid play at Xavier University of Cincinnati.

ANOTHER ST. Charles grad, Jim O'Neill, won All-American baseball honors in 1952 when he pitched Holy Cross College to the NCAA diamond championship. O'Neill won three games in the best-of-seven series.

Besides his coaching and teaching duties at St. Charles, Ryan also is active in other youth work — particularly in the Catholic Youth Council which offers a full program of athletic competition on the parish level.

Now 47, Ryan is a 1934 graduate of Rosary High School and earned his degree at OSU in 1940. He and his wife, Elaine, have five children, Kathleen, Patty, Jackie, Jimmy and Joseph.

THE RYAN FAMILY lives at 2299 McCutcheon-rd.

Dave Savely of 2883 Wicklow-rd, is general chairman of the banquet.

Committee members include George Vargo of 303 Hinman, secretary of the St. Charles Alumni Assn.; Dave Nardone of 7481 Stahl-rd, Orient, and Mrs. Howard Lloyd of 4169 Wright-av, Whitehall.

The banquet is open to the general public. Tickets may be secured from Savely or from Ed Murphy of 2694 Westmont-blvd.

PIT STOPS

By BILL GRAY

The 1963 racing season got off to a chilly start Friday night at Columbus Motor Speedway. There was also sadness in the air, at the loss of one of auto racing's greatest boosters.

Bob Rader, for many years photographer at the track and other tracks in Central Ohio, passed away Friday afternoon at the age of 39.

Bob was always on hand with his camera to get the action as well as the winners and the trophies. Bob, I know, will be missed by us all. To his parents, Floyd and Grace Rader of Grove City, we extend our deepest sympathy.

DON GREGORY made it two wins Friday night as he took a heat race as well as the 25-lap feature event at the South Side oval.

He was trailed in the feature by Joe King and Marvin Willet. King and Willet also took the two semi's. Gary Weist was winner of the consi.

Sunday night brought out the super modifieds and the late models. Kurt Kraft took first place honors in the super modified 25-lap feature with Keith Weaver and Larry Bruce following. Larry Penelton won the semi.

IN THE LATE models, Paul Parks took most of the honors, winning the heat race, as well as the 20-lap feature. Keith and Chad Weaver followed him in that event. Keith Weaver was winner of the consi race.

SPORTS

Rebs Downed Twice; M-F, Rosary Lose

With the exception of makeup games, area baseballers closed out their '63 diamond seasons last week with South, Marion-Franklin and Rosary all suffering losses.

The Bulldogs aided Eastmoor's vain hopes of gaining a share of the City League title, dropping a 3-1 verdict to the Warriors.

JERRY AGGAS and Jerry Myers combined to limit the Reb hitters to five hits as Eastmoor broke a 1-1 deadlock with two fifth-inning tallies. Terry Emrich took the loss for South on a seven-hitter.

North banged out 14 hits Friday off two Bulldog pitchers as the Polar Bears came up with a 9-5 victory. The Rebs rallied for four runs in the final inning but fell short as reliefer Ray Simendinger put out the fire.

In other area action, West slipped by Marion-Franklin, 5-4, as Darrell Rohrer bested M-F's John Hobgood in a low-hit pitching duel.

HOBGOOD, WHO allowed five hits, blanked the Cowboys after the third frame but the Red Devils could collect only three bingles off Rohrer.

New Albany added to Rosary's diamond woes as the Eagles utilized three big innings for a 14-1 win over the winless Crusaders.

Unbearables, Astronuts Win City Pin Titles

Two groups of Junior League bowlers representing German Village emerged as city champions in a recent tournament at Olentangy Lanes.

The Unbearables, paced by Bob and Bill Werner, won the City Senior Championship by a wide margin over their nearest competitors. Also on the team were Keith Bugos, Ed Speakman and Bob Yantis, the latter a recent two-time winner on Pinbusters, a TV bowling show.

THE UNBEARABLES, as well as winning the city title, also won their league championship at Bob McCloud's German Village Lanes.

The Astronauts, a junior girls team who played in the same league with the senior boys champs, improved on their fifth place city finish of last year to cop the championship by a narrow margin of two pins in the city tourney.

The junior champions are Linda Hiltbrunner, Diane Goff, Sharon Shumacher, Patty Hall and Barbara Bethards, all 15 years of age.

Three teams of bantam boys finished fourth, fifth and sixth in a field of 24 teams and two other teams of senior boys finished fifth and eighth in a field of 22 teams.

Central Wins Thin Title

Central's pace-setting cindermen took firsts in five events and runner-up honors in four others to outdistance second-place East, 66-42, and win their second straight City League thin title last week on the Pirate track.

The Pirates took firsts in the broad jump (Tom Fullove), high jump (Ron Bell), mile run (Jim Maddox), 440 (George Trammell) and mile relay (Al Carmon, Ron Lyons, Stan Horner and Charlie Smith).

THE RUNNER-UP Tigers' Fred Lundy took individual honors with 13½ points (100, 220, member of 880 relay team). Trammell and South's Willie Thompson, a double winner in the hurdle events, tied behind Lundy with 12 points each.

Top Putters Accept Bids For Tourney

Ten touring tournament regulars on the summer schedule of the Professional Putters Association have accepted special invitations to compete in the $50,000 National Putting Open in Cleveland, Ohio, July 5-7.

Tournament Director Dale C. Brady of Fayetteville, N.C., headquarters of the PPA, announced the acceptances and said "these top regulars along with about 15 others will go directly to Cleveland without having to take part in qualifying competition."

THE REMAINDER of the 325-man Cleveland field will come from 100 qualifying sites scheduled from coast-to-coast June 2, 9, 16, 23. Each of these 100 sites will qualify two pros and one amateur.

The local site for the qualifying round is the Putt-Putt Miniature Golf site on S. Hamilton - rd. Competition for a berth in the Cleveland tourney will be staged on Sunday, June 23.

The first ten exempted touring regulars include last year's surprise National Open Champion, Paul Garrison of Indianapolis, Ind., who won a three-man play-off at Cincinnati, Ohio.

At the hospital were Margaret Lerger, 69, and Bessie Shreve, 72, both of 549 Elsmere-st.

Police said an auto driven by Ethel Fromm, 32, of 431 E. Columbus-st, ran a red light and struck the women as they crossed Parsons-av. The driver was cited.

He is a graduate of South High School and is a freshman at OSU, enrolled in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Several of the student's main high school activities included class president, Student Council vice-president, and the National Honor Society.

WILL BUILD GARAGE

Phillip Thompson, 770 Amsterdam-av, has received a permit to build a two-car concrete block garage. Construction is valued at $1,700.

THE NEXT CALL might be for a long haul and Harry Carney, Rt. 3, Circleville, wants all vehicles at Hertz Rent A Truck, 73 W. Main-st, to be in excellent condition. Carney has been a mechanic with the Hertz organization for the past 13 years.

A Truck For Every Occasion Is Offered By Hertz Rent A Truck

"We furnish everything but the driver." That statement by Albert VanGundy, manager of Hertz Rent A Truck Service, 73 W. Main-st, might be used as the motto of the local truck rental firm. "Everything" in this case would refer to equipment, truck of any size except semi-trailer, insurance and the convenience of having the use of a truck for almost any purpose without making the large investment required to own such a vehicle.

A mechanic, who has been employed by the local Hertz firm for more than 13 years, keeps all trucks in tip-top running condition so the renter is assured of safe, dependable truck transportation. Manager VanGundy adds to this his years of experience in helping the renter select the right truck for the right job.

"Helping choose the right size truck in good condition for those long trips can make a lot of difference to the person not used to driving a large van. The only thing we require is that the driver have a valid driver's license and has some experience at handling the type of truck he wants to rent," added the manager.

VanGundy suggested that anyone interested in using a Hertz truck call in advance to make prior arrangements. In many cases all the vehicles are requested for certain days and there are none left at the terminal for use by the person who has not called in advance.

All rates quoted by the management of the firm include gasoline and oil. Low cost insurance is added to the quoted rate and the deposit left with the firm is added toward paying the cost of renting a truck after the customer has finished using it.

Hertz Truck Rental is part of the Hertz Rent A Car system in Columbus and offers the same well-known service offered by this firm all over the United States.

Current equipment includes late model Chevrolet, GMC or other sturdy trucks, pick-ups, panel, stake and van bodies in one-half, one, one and a half, two and one-half-ton and larger sizes. All trucks are serviced regularly and maintained in excellent, clean condition.

For any type of trucking job the customer will find that within a few moments a trained truck expert will help make arrangements to speed him on his way with a truck that is right for his needs. Trucks can be rented or leased for an hour, a day or a week with no worry about mechanical condition, service or insurance from Hertz Rent A Truck.

Many Facilities Made Available To Patrons Of Dar-Lee Range

Covering a combined area of more than 60 acres the Dar-Lee Shooting Range, located a half-mile north of the 8800 block of E. Broad-st on Taylor-rd, provides the shooting fan with some of the finest shooting facilities to be found in Central Ohio.

The range includes 42 acres and contains a 100-yard rifle range, pistol ranges, two skeet ranges and three trap fields. Any caliber weapon can be used on any of the ranges and clay birds or targets are availabe at the Sports Shop. Refreshments are available at the Club House, also located in the range area.

Shooting privileges are open to the public, according to Wiley Reed, one of the three owners, but the avid fan will find many advantages to buying a membership in the club. Regular shooting costs $1 an hour according to Reed, but the member can shoot all he likes during open hours for $15 per year. Membership also allows the shooter to buy targets at a better price, he added.

At present there are 175 members who belong to the range and an industrial skeet shooting league shoots once a month. At present teams in the league are sponsored by Dar-Lee, North American Aviation, the Whitehall Discount Center, Lockbourne AFB, a Columbus auto dealer and a group of merchants in Mt. Vernon. The next meeting of the league will be June 2, and the public is invited to watch the match.

Shooting lessons are available at Dar-Lee by a professional instructor and can be arranged by contacting the Club House at UN 6-6225. The range is open from noon until 9 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, 9 a.m. until 7 p.m. Saturday, 11 a.m. until 6 p.m. Sunday, and closed on Monday.

Another feature of Dar-Lee is the 25-acre picnic grounds, available on a rental basis for private picnics to organized groups and businesses. Facilities include a shelter house, two fire places, a baseball diamond, horseshoe pitching games and a loud speaker system. Reservations to use this area can be arranged by calling Dar-Lee.

The sports shop, besides offering a complete selection of guns, ammunition and targets, also has a selection of camping equipment, including Right Trailers, for sale and rent. A display of equipment being offered at Dar-Lee will be presented at the Outdoor Camping Show, June 1 and 2, at the Franklin County Fair Grounds, Hilliard.

Dar-Lee Shooting Range was opened in 1959 and purchased in 1961 by Wiley Reed, Alice Nicoletti and William Holzhouse. Since '61 the new owners have added the club house, sports shop and other conveniences. Future plans call for the addition of lights to the pistol range and further expansion of facilities. Visitors are welcome and membership or use of the range is open to the public.

Money—

watched the paper every week for the winning emblem and could hardly believe his eyes when he opened his newspaper to page eight and found the number "5" printed in bright green ink inside the Great Western Shopping Center Paint Town advertisement.

When told his money was waiting at the Hartley Newspaper Office, the happy winner quietly sat down and with a smile, said, "We can find a good use for it."

Other winners last week reduced this week's "Confederate" jackpot by $3. Those receiving $1 "Confederate" bills were Helen Bugh, 2665 Valleyview-dr; Mrs. John Simmons, 1871 S. Sixth-st, and Ruth Kuder, 14 S. Wayne-av.

This means the new jackpot, starting this week, is now worth $22 in "Confederate" cash.

This is the insignia you must find in order to claim the full jackpot. It appears in only one of the 72,000 newspapers printed each week by Hartley Newspapers. It always appears in a bright colored ink in the white space of one of the advertisements inside the paper.

This insignia is worth the entire amount of the jackpot only if the finder is a paid subscriber to a Hartley Newspaper; otherwise, it is worth $5 in "Confederate" money. The entire page containing the winning "5" insignia must be brought to the Hartley Newspaper Office, 2465 W. Broad-st, by the finder to collect the prize.

Twenty insignias like this are placed inside twenty Hartley Newspapers each week. These insignias are always stamped in a bright colored ink and are worth $1 in "Confederate" cash to the finder. The page containing the "1" insignia can be mailed by the finder to the Hartley Newspaper Office and "Confederate" money will be sent by return mail. This money can be spent just like cash with any advertiser in any Hartley Newspaper during the week the finder wishes to spend it.

Each week the contest closes at noon on the Monday following publication of the paper. All money not claimed is added to the following week's jackpot. This contest is not open to employes, including carriers, of Hartley Newspapers or their families.

Extended School Year Plan Working Well In Columbus

(Last of a two-part series)

The advantages and disadvantages of a "four-quarter" system of school operation seem to neutralize each other. There is evidence of progress, however, in the Columbus version of the "extended school year" program.

Joseph L. Davis, executive assistant to Dr. Harold H. Eibling, superintendent of Columbus public schools, cites "two distinctly different definitions" of the extended school year.

One, he says, means "compulsory attendance of all pupils for an additional period of time beyond the present 39-week scheduled." The ther, he continued, "encompasses activities sponsored by a board of education that involves either pupils or professional personnel on a voluntary basis for any portion of the summer intermission."

Based on the second definition, Davis reported, Columbus already has developed a fairly comprehensive extended school year program.

"During the summer of 1963," Davis said, "we shall operate secondary instruction programs at 12 centers, elementary school art programs at approximately six centers, and an instructional music program for children in grades five through 12.

"Furthermore," Davis continued, "we shall retain a number of professional personnel in service for at least a portion of the summer working on instructional materials, television lessons, etc."

Under existing programs, Davis reported, Columbus children can:

Make-up for failures, accelerate progress towards graduation, develop greater facility in the basic skills, and pursue special interests or refine special talents. Students may also "open up" their high school program by taking required courses during the summer and fill in their schedule during the regular school year with a wider variety of offerings.

"In effect," Davis says, "they can enrich and extend the regular program."

The extended school year concept as practiced within the Columbus public school system has resulted in better use of buildings, greater use of teacher talent and improved learning opportunities, Davis said. He also pointed out that the plan does not require a drastic departure from present practices.

Other program benefits listed by Davis included the opportunity for teachers to supplement their incomes and, to a limited extent, explore and test new ideas relating to content and methods of curriculum.

Davis reported that the alternate plan—compulsory attendance for all children — would cost an approximate $900,000 in operating expenses for each additional week of school. (The present program is partially self-supporting through tuition charges.)

In his analysis of the extended school year program, Davis listed seven areas of potential growth for the program. They are:

1. Establishment of additional summer instructional and training centers.

2. Consideration of a tuition-free arrangement to encourage wider participation in the program.

3. Transfer to summer of some of the extracurricular activities currently conducted during the regular school year, particularly large-scale activities (such as baseball) involving many pupils.

4. Special seminar-type offerings at all grade levels.

5. Scheduling of study trips about the city, county and possibly to more distant destinations.

6. Sponsoring of occupational and/or vocational experiences.

7. Offering of foreign language courses.

Davis also reported several possible innovations which should be of benefit to teachers. One would involve the setting up of paid teacher taskforces to develop:

Teaching materials, special programs and materials (for modified classes, disadvantaged pupils, etc.), curriculum-materials centers on a school-by-school or regional basis, and identification of appropriate teaching materials (such as textbooks, films, filmstrips).

Such a taskforce could also conduct individual group research projects, and study various policies and practices (such as the promotion policy, grading practices, testing program, etc.).

"The chief advantage of these activities," Davis said, "would be to free teachers of important responsibilities that they now must discharge during the school year, which could have a tendency to avert their attention from the instructional obligation which they have to their pupils."

In summery, it can be said that the (voluntary) extended school year plan seems to offer a maximum number of benefits gained by a "four-quarter" plan, while holding disadvantages to the minimum.

Christopher Inn Liquor License Permits Rejected

The Ohio Department of Liquor Control recently rejected request for permits filed by the Christopher Inn Co., 334-46 S. Fourth-st.

Liquor permit renewal applications were requested for the sale of 3.2 and high-powered beer and wine consumption on premises and carry out and for a restaurant license (wine or liquor by the glass until 1 a.m.) and another permit to remain open until 2:30 a.m.

A department spokesman said the board finds that the applicant "is not the owner or operator of a hotel or restaurant within the contemplation of law."

"Departmental investigation discloses that the applicant is not conducting a restaurant-type business at the proposed permit premises, nor are there any fixtures or equipment incidental to a restaurant business at this location," the board added.

Boy Scout News

The Mohawk District held its annual district dinner on Tuesday, May 21, at the Oakwood Methodist Church. Reverend Dean Williams, chaplin for the Columbus State Hospital, spoke on how Boy Scouting helps to prevent juvenile delinquency.

After Williams' address, awards were presented to various Scouters in the district. Paul Handel, Scout executive for the Central Ohio Council, presented a ten-year veteran award to Al Warner.

Reciving Scouters Keys and like awards were Mrs. Marilyn Owens, who earned a den mother award; Bob Moeller, a Scouter key; Tom Schumm, Scouter award; Roy Davidson, Scouter award; and Tom Schumm and Carl Fisher, commissioner arrowhead award.

Also presented were Kiwanis awards for the outstanding Scouters of the year. These awards were presented to Mrs. Owens, the outstanding den mother; Roy Owens the outstanding leader of the year, and Carl Fisher, the outstanding Scouter of the year.

The ceremony was concluded with the installation of the district officers for the coming Scouting year, which were made by Ernie Hawbecker, council committeeman. The new officers are Carl Fisher, district chairman; Gene Marshall, assistant chairman, and Herman Schumm, district commissioner.

This is Schumm's fourth straight year as commissioner. Replacing Fisher as assistant commissioner is Tom Schumm.

The program was conducted by the master of ceremonies, Don Mack, Scoutmaster of Troop 530. Reverend Bitters of Oakwood Methodist Church gave the invocation and the benediction and Pack 135, sponsored by Oakwood, presented the opening ceremony.

Brotherhood Induction

The Katinonkwat Lodge, the Central Ohio Council's chapter of the Order of the Arrow, held a Brotherhood induction for its members at Camp Ki-Y-Ro on May 25 to 26.

Forty three members of the OA were presented with Brotherhood status in the lodge, which sets them above regular members. The OA itself is an honorary organization for select Scouts, and its purpose is service to fellow Scouts.

Canada Goes After Vacation Business

For the past ten years I have made from two to three sojourns into Canada each summer and each time I have been impressed with the remarkable development that is taking place.

On crossing the border into our neighbor country to the north, at either Windsor or Buffalo, one is impressed by the new and modern buildings and the vast number of American industries that have established plants there. Actually, the countryside as well as the city is almost identical to ours until one heads directly north.

Soon after leaving the outskirts of Toronto, heading toward North Bay, the wide open vastness of one of the world's finest vacationlands begins to open up and the country gets more interesting as you proceed north

Well do I remember how, on my first trip up that way many years ago, it was quite difficult to find good motel accommodations or good restaurants. Today, however, this has changed and overnight accommodations are plentiful and good restaurants are not so far between.

The old established rule still applies in Canada — if you want the best meal you are safest in visiting the hotels. On the way up this time we dropped in at the Empire Hotel in Huntsville where the food was quite tasty and a smorgasbord salad table left such an impression that I am sure we will be future customers of this fine eating establishment.

Some of the finest highways in the world, running through some of the most beautiful country in the world, are attracting thousands of Americans across the border and Canadians are more and more alert to the value of this vacation trade. The welcome hand is out at every corner but the moderate prices you pay will bring a welcome bargain. (Incidentally, currently the American dollar is worth about 7 cents more than the Canadian dollar, which means that every time you cash a $20 bill you get $1.40 extra in Canadian money in return.)

E. CLIFFORD Roberts (left) of the Tuberculosis Society and Mrs. Elizabeth Ohlinger of the Lincoln Park Community Council, make the final plans for the three-day "Lincoln Park Checkmates" program centering in Lincoln Park Homes June 11, 12 and 14.

JUNE 11, 12 AND 14

Lincoln Park Gets Own 'Checkmates'

The Tuberculosis Society's "Lincoln Park Checkmates" program will be held June 11, 12 and 14, offering free TB tests and chest X-rays to the 2000 residents of Lincoln Park Homes.

The program, which is designed to wipe out contagious tuberculosis in high incidence areas, is a twin to the "Operation Checkmates" program now starting its last week of combined TB testing and X-rays in the area between Morrill-av and the New York Central Railroad.

"Lincoln Park Checkmates" will offer free TB tests to everyone over 1 month old and free chest X-rays to everyone 15 years or older. The Christmas Seal X-ray Cruiser and the new TB testing unit will be open from 4-8 p.m. daily.

The TB "double-check" program was arranged through the co-operation of the Lincoln Park Community Council which has been working closely with the Tuberculosis Society and E. Clifford Roberts, director of "Lincoln Park Checkmates."

Mrs. Elizabeth Ohlinger, member of the Lincoln Park Community Council, is general chairman of the program.

The area was selected for this life-saving program because of the large number of TB cases reported there annually. The council and the Society both hope that every family in Lincoln Park Homes will participate in this ambitious anti-TB program.

HERE'S 'CHECKMATES' SLATE

The final week of "Operation Checkmates," the TB Society's combined TB testing and chest X-ray program for South Siders, will be packed with local television personalities.

People living between Morrill-av and the New York Central Railroad who visit the "Checkmates" twin cruisers during the final week will get a chance to meet and talk with WBNS-TV stars.

The schedule and personality appearances are as follow:

Wednesday, June 5—Woodrow and Sixth, 10 a.m.-12 noon and 1-7 p.m. Chet Long will visit at 10 a.m.

Thursday, June 6—Innis and Fourth, 2-8 p.m.

Friday, June 7—Hinman and Sixth, 11 a.m.-5 p.m. Marty DeVictor will visit at 12:30 p.m.

COLUMBUS' FIRST LADY

JOANNE PICKING, 3500 Scottwood-rd, was named the first-ever Miss Columbus Friday night in the Town and Country Shopping Center. The 21-year-old lass is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Picking of Wooster. She is currently in Cleveland participating in the three-day Miss Ohio pageant and, as of Tuesday, was still high in the competition. From there it's the Miss Universe contest in Miami Beach. Miss Columbus runner-up was Gloria McBride.

Order Your New Flag Now, Supply Is Limited

"We'll do our best to see that you have a brand new, 50-star American flag to fly in front of your home on coming patriotic holidays." That's the promise made to readers of this newspaper by its staff and management.

A new supply has arrived, back orders are being filled and once again your favorite Hartley Newspaper has plenty of brand new flags available for its readers. The new supply was delivered just in time to complete the Memorial Day weekend and many of the back orders were filled before the holiday was over.

This means there is no shortage at this time of new flags to fill the demands of Hartley Newspaper readers for the special offer being extended by this paper.

For a limited time the offer includes a flag kit, valued at $5.98, and a one-year subscription to your favorite Hartley Newspaper, valued at $3, for a total of only $5, a savings of $3.95. The flag kit will be delivered to your home within a short time after your order is received and the subscription will be started immediately. If already a subscriber, one year will be added to your present subscription.

Your flag kit will include a large 3x5 colorfast, cotton, 50-star American flag, complete with wooden staff, top decoration, halyard, window-socket and book on flag etiquette.

Experience has shown that this flag supply will only last a few weeks. The earlier the order is received the better the chance of receiving your flag kit.

Firefighters' Memorial Day Set At Emmanuel

Firefighters from throughout Columbus will meet in Emmanuel Lutheran Church in the South Side (E. Markison and S. Third-st) for observance of the annual Memorial Sunday services Sunday, June 9, at 10:30 a.m.

Catholic services will be held in St. Joseph's Cathedral, E. Broad and Fifth-sts, beginning at 9 a.m. Columbus Bishop Clarence G. Issenmann will preside over the Communion Mass.

In the South Side, firefighters will assemble in the Third-st basement of the educational building at 10:15 a.m. and will march en masse to the church. The entire family is welcome.

After the services, they will convene at noon in the Civic Center for the annual tribute.

Frank Fetch Tops List Of Village Trustees

The grand old man of the German Village, Frank Fetch, headed the list of five recently elected society trustees installed during the annual business meeting Sunday.

Besides Fetch, those selected to served for a three-year period included "incumbents" Col. James R. Allen and Marie Warren. Newly-elected were Mrs. Elizabeth Asbury and Frank Heinlein.

Allen was in charge of this year's membership drive. He reported that rather than having an annual drive for members, the society would welcome new members at any time by applying at 624 S. Third-st.

Fetch, who is also the society's president, briefly outlined two new ordinances recently passed by City Council.

The first served to set up definite boundaries for the Village and the second created the "necessary controls" to be exercised by the German Village Commission.

"In order to have the program continue in an orderly manner," Fetch said, "it is necessary to have controls setting up certain architectural characteristics so that the neighborhood can be developed with some uniformity."

Fetch added:

"Healthy growth cannot be accomplished with a hodgepodge of ideas. The new ordinance giving the commission this control has been based on the very successful program in force in the Beacon Hill section of Boston."

This is another historical area now undergoing restoration.

In other action, Mrs. William A. Scheurer (wife of the village tour's chairman and chairman of the hostess committee) reported that she needs additional hostesses this year

The tour is scheduled for Sunday, June 23, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Playground Time Opens On June 12

It's that time of year when the conversation "Where Did You Go?" "Out." "What Did You Do?" "Nothing," just doesn't apply.

South Side youngsters will be up to their play togs in fun and activity with the opening of playgrounds in Columbus

The Columbus Recreation Department announced plans this week to open 13 playgrounds in the South Side June 12 — all supervised and well-planned.

They will remain open through Aug. 23 on a Monday through Friday schedule of organized fun. Hours will be 12:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Playground highlights during the rest of June will include:

June 12-13 — Junior Jet baseball leagues meetings. June 14 — Flag Day. June 17 — Physical fitness tests begin. June 20 — Playground pet shows. June 21 — Sectional pet shows (6:30 p.m.) at Beatty, Glenwood, Linden, Schiller and Whetstone.

June 24 — Playground tournaments (four squares, horseshoes and tetherball). June 26 — Playground clown contests and June 28 — City-Wide clown contest at City Hall.

Indian Village Day Camp trips for boys and girls eight through 12 will be offered at each playground. South Side children will board buses at Schiller and Scioto Trail July 1.

Following is a list of local playgrounds and addresses where South Side youngsters may participate in programs:

Schiller Park, Deshler-av and Jaeger-st; Deshler School, 1234 E. Deshler-av; Fairwood School, 726 Fairwood-av; Heimandale School, 695 Koebel-rd.

Karns, Thurman and Champion-avs; Lincoln, Markison-av and Ann-st; Livingston, 18th-st and Livingston-av; Mohawk School, 471 S. Sixth-st.

Hubby's Good Turn Backfires As Wife Grieves Cat Loss

By JOHN AUBLE, JR.

Barring Halloween, it isn't very often that a cat makes the news.

But when a little long-haired calico named "Puff" becomes indirectly responsible for a standoff between a South Side couple and the Humane Society and when the same feline falls victim to an old wives' tale, that's another story.

Let's start at the beginning.

Last May 24, Mrs. Judy England and her husband, Leland, obtained "Puff" from the Humane Society Shelter on Groveport-pk. The receipt reads $2.59 for the purchase of the pet.

Since then, Mrs. England gave birth to a baby boy.

While she was at the hospital, her husband evidently got swept up in his worrisome role as an expectant father, remembered the superstition about cats being dangerous around babies and whisked the furry feline back to its shelter home.

Events took a turn to the serious.

Mrs. England has taken "Puff's" plight to heart and the new mother's physician, Dr. Donald McBride, is quite concerned about the effect that the loss of the cat has had on Judy.

"She's stewed herself into a pretty good upset over this thing. It would be well if she could get the cat back — for her own health's sake," Dr. McBride commented.

At the same time the good doctor dispelled (for the record) any and all rumors about cats and babies leaving well-meaning husband Leland higher up in the air than a kitten on a hot, tin rooftop.

"There's no truth at all to the superstition," the doctor added. "Cats are, at times, known to be jealous and the only slight danger existing is that it may scratch the child."

The Englands (yes, even Leland is back in the search after realizing his wrong) can't get any satisfaction from Tom Justice, who heads the society, as to what may have become of the cat.

Justice maintained that records of a cat's disposition are kept for 30 days and that the Englands didn't come in during that period. The Englands, however, claim otherwise.

"We get some 8,000 cats here a year," added Justice. "We can only find homes for some 60 to 75 a month. The rest we put to sleep. I just can't say what happened to this one. I have offered to give the Englands another cat if they wanted one."

Alas, Judy won't settle for a substitute. "I've cried

Stork Ready To Go With Area Sewer Plan

Engineering plans were expected to be ordered this week for sections of a $3.8 million sewer system recommended to relieve flooding on the South Side.

Service Director Ernest H Stork announced the plans Saturday for what he termed "the most urgent" sections of the sewer system complex

Stork received a preliminary engineering report late Friday from Evans, Mechwart, Hambleton and Tilton, consulting engineers in Gahanna. City Council authorized the study last September.

The recommendations in the study cover former Marion Township and Hamilton Township areas, including existing drainage, drainage areas and proposed storm sewers.

The proposed sewer system covers 5500 acres bounded by the New York Central Railroad and Refugee-rd, on the north, the Norfolk and Western Railroad on the east, the city corporation line on the south and the Scioto River on the west.

About 1100 acres between S. High-st and the Scioto River with direct drainage to the river presents no problem and is not included in the report, the engineers maintained.

Engineers recommended a priority list to drain nine areas, to be done as funds become available.

First priority was given to the area north of Williams-rd and the Whittier ditch area north of Hilock-rd between Lewis and Lockbourne-rds.

Stork said he is favorable to this first recommendation but wanted to study the report before he orders engineering plans.

German Village Tour Excitement Is On The Upswing

Final plans are being readied for the German Village Society's fourth annual Haus Und Garten (House and Garden, for natives) tour on Sunday, June 23.

For the first time, hours will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. "Attendance at the tours has increased so greatly that it was necessary to extend the hours so that ticket holders would have ample time to visit all the homes," Scheurer said

Churches of every denomination in the German Village historical area have extended invitations to tour patrons to attend services in the morning, thereby enabling people to be on hand for the early hours of the tour

Eleven homes will be open for viewing, including:

Sarah Fisher, 1840 Reinhard-av; Dr. and Mrs. John Paul Stevens, 147 E. Deshler-av; Edith M Dacon, 246 E. Deshler-av; Mr. and Mrs. Phillip L. Milford, 540 S. Sixth-st.

W. R Baltimore, 593 Mohawk-st; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Long, 597-601 Mohawk-st; Ann and Molly McKinnon, 621 Lazell-st; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brantingham, 623 Lazelle-st.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fetch, 121 Beck-st; Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Stokes, 615 City Park-av and Anette Jackson, 541 City Park-av.

Peerless Saw Company, located for more than 30 years at 571 S. Third-st, will also be included in the tour. During the past year, the building has undergone extensive remodeling and is a fine example of a business firm's restoration to conform to the German architectural theme so prevalent in the area.

Shuttle buses will be available for transportation throughout the village. Ticketholders can board or leave buses at any of the homes on tour

Restaurants in the village will be open for the convenience of tour patrons.

As in previous years, houses being shown will be indicated by antique vehicles parked in front of them.

Ask MS Patients To Register

JAMES SMITH, 473 Hosack-st, is one of more than 200 patients being served by the Franklin County Chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society, a United Appeal agency. Smith is continuing to support himself as a television repairman.

Multiple sclerosis patients in the area are being served by the Franklin County Chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society, a United Appeal agency.

There are other MS patients, however, who may be missing out on vitally needed help because they are not known to the agency.

In an effort to get all MS patients registered for service, the MS Society this week is staging an educational program on use of its services, John M. Emery, president, announced.

Emery reported that 210 patients are now served by the agency, but possibly that many more in Franklin County are not yet being helped.

All MS patients not yet registered should phone 237-5449. The office is at 544 S. Drexel-av.

Depending upon individual need and circumstances, the MS Society offers such services as family counseling, transportation, clinic, physical therapy and orthopedic devices.

Agency officials explain that MS is a disease which strikes the central nervous system, causing a chronic crippling condition which keeps progressing. It hits primarily at young adults in the 20-to-40 age range.

Part of United Appeal's allocation to the MS Society goes for research which it is hoped can eventually find a cure. Rest of the funds go for the local patient aid program.

Employment Opportunities Needed For Youth: Gabele

Higher education and advanced training is being more universally recognized as a key to better career job opportunities, as evidenced by some 52.2 per cent of this year's local high school graduates who have indicated that they will be college bound.

However, local employment specialists and civic leaders voice a great concern for those graduates who will not attend college or technical schools and who are in need of immediate employment opportunities.

Of the 5910 youngsters graduating from Columbus and Franklin County High Schools this spring, an estimated 2500 will be actively competing for the available job openings, Ralph E. Gabele, Columbus Area manager of the Ohio State Employment Service, declared recently.

This estimate has discounted those graduates who have already secured employment and also those who will probably not seek jobs. It does not, however, include those additional graduates who will trek to the capital city from outlying sections of the state to seek employment. Neither does it include the undetermined number of high school drop-outs who are seeking jobs, Gabele said.

Employment for young people has always been an important factor in any community and it becomes increasingly so with the growing number of teenagers who will enter the labor market in this and succeeding years.

Although local employment and job openings are currently at a high level, many of the job listings are for special skills or experiences not possessed by young graduates. Gabele pointed out that some employers who have been unable to locate workers in needed skills might possibly find it advantageous to change basic job requirements and hiring practices in order to hire younger workers. In many cases this would enable an employer to build his organization for the years ahead which, statistics show, will have a heavy concentration of older workers over 45 and of younger workers under 20.

"Employment opportunities for our youth today are a very real investment in tomorrow's profits and should concern every business and industry in the community," Gabele concluded.

Nearly 300 job-seeking graduates took advantage of the local OSES "Job Opportunity Day," Saturday, May 18, to explore job possibilities. Special emphasis will be devoted during the next several months to the placement of 1963 graduates through local employment offices.

Senior Citizens Center

275 McDowell-st

One of a series of trips known as "Inside Columbus" planned for senior citizens during the spring months will be on Thursday, June 6. The group will take a bus to Riverside Hospital, where they will be shown the inner working of the institution. A guided tour especially for this group has been arranged.

Some of the other "Inside Columbus" trips already taken by this group were to the Worthington City National Bank, Lazarus, WBNS-TV and the Columbus Police Station.

The last trip of this series will be June 11. This trip will be of particular interest to the group, for it is to another senior center. First Community Village will show our center its very fine facilities in a guided tour. They will also go to the "House of Hope" to better understand the community in which we live.

Ceramics classes will be suspended during the month of June while Mrs. Behmer takes a well earned vacation before resuming this popular craft class in July.

A movie will be shown at the Senior Center on Thursday, June 13, when the Franklin County Historical Society and the Center will cooperate in bringing "Sayonara," starring Marlon Brando, a cinemascope color movie. This should appeal to all ages and anyone who is interested is welcome to see the movie starting at 1:30 p.m.

The regular Wednesday and Friday night dances will continue to be held throughout the summer.

Crabgrass Can Be Stopped By Using Long-Range Plan

By DR. W. A. LIDDELL

Last spring a contractor's bulldozer and shovel invaded our front lawn to dig up and replace a drainage bed. It was too late to reseed, so we let the area lie fallow the summer months. In no time at all a fine crop of assorted — or should we call them "sordid" — weeds had sprouted, where nothing but perennial grasses had been growing for many years.

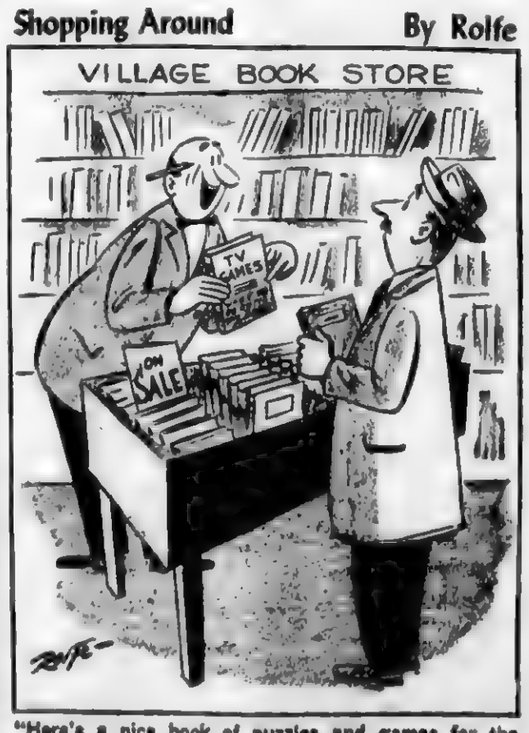
Where did the weeds come from, and what has this to do with conquering crabgrass? Just this: through countless eons of natural selection, plant specials have developed many built-in characteristics which enable them to survive and reproduce.

One of these protections enables seeds of many kinds of plants to lie dormant for years, waiting for the right conditions to sprout and grow into the next generation of seed-bearing parents.

Many of us, probably, have read of lotus seeds, which sprouted and grew into normal plants, after lying for hundreds of years in a Manchurian lake bed. And we know about the delicate flowers of the Southwestern desert which sprout and bloom only under special conditions of moisture and temperature.

Crabgrass may not be so romantic as these plants, but through the years it has demonstrated a sturdy ability to persist, even in the face of our stoutest efforts to rout it out, root and branch, from lawn areas.

It is an annual plant and thus must start from seed each year. But even a closely mowed crabgrass plant will make some seeds each summer, and not all the seeds will sprout the following summer. From casual observation of what happened on our front lawn last summer, we'd say they were capable of spending many years in the soil. When brought to the surface by the bulldozer's blade they sprouted.



Crabgrass starts with the advent of warm sunny weather, and the plants thrive on plenty of exposure to hot sunshine in lawns which are not well cared for, except for their weekly scalping by overzealous hoe-moaners. The closer they scalp the easier it is for the crabgrass to over-run the desirable turf grasses.

Does this mean that crabgrass control is hopeless? Certainly not! A dense growth of turf, if not shaved to within a half an inch of its life, is a most unfriendly place for crabgrass.

So, your main long-range program for conquering crabgrass should be to encourage the turf-making grasses in your lawn by a program of regular feeding and watering during the growing season. Early spring, early summer and early fall for the fertilizer; an inch of water every week or ten days through the summer.

A couple of seasons of this, combined with good mowing practices, will make it almost impossible for crabgrass to live in your lawn. While you are waiting for the turf grasses to take over, you can help matters with chemical crabgrass controls. Specially developed "pre-emergence" herbicides applied early in the spring will kill the young crabgrass seedlings. Post-emergence herbicides, applied later in the summer will kill growing plants, in case you don't use a pre-emergency material. Both types can be applied easily and safely with the same lawn spreader you use for fertilizer and other lawn products.

First Graders First Visit To The Farm

GIVE ME THE WIDE, OPEN SPACES

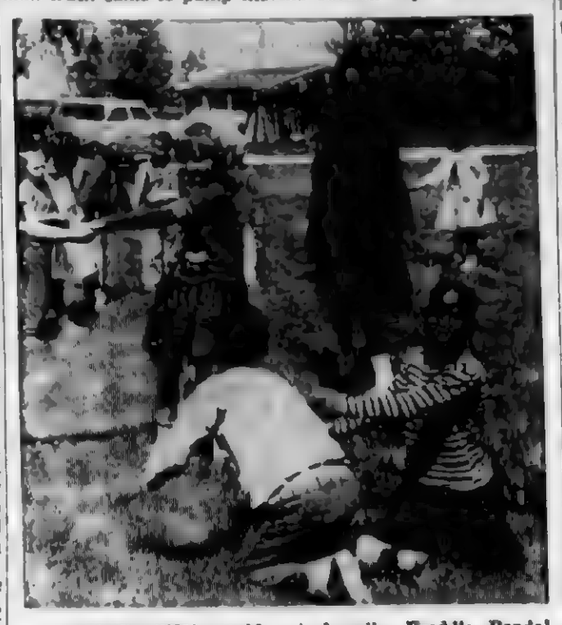
"And I like the elephants best," piped one young man when he was taken to a farm for the first time in his life.

He was a mite confused, as Floyd Barnhart, Hendron-rd near Groveport confines his stock raising to horses, cattle, hogs and chickens, with a few dogs and cats thrown in for pets.

But to most of the first grade children from Fulton School who went on the tour of the "milk parlor," it was a confusing and exhilarating experience.

Most of them did not know the difference between a colt and a calf before the Diamond Milk Company sponsored the trip down on the farm.



Some of the children said that they had seen the animals in pastures from the road, but never "set foot" on country ground.

The classes of Mrs. Donna Barrett and Mrs. Thelma Runkle were made up mostly of true "city slickers" with only vague ideas of the road milk travels before it hits a gallon jug.

Told that cows must be milked twice a day, every day, one child queried, "Well, how can you go to Sunday School?"

While they were there the milk truck came to pump the refrigerated "cow juice" into the tank truck while the children stood agape. They were equally fascinated by the suction cups, which they immediately converted to telescopes.

"They can think of nothing else," said Mrs. Runkle the next day, "and just are living to go back again."

CAMERA-SHY would not describe Freddie Randal who preferred to give his big grin to playing that "girls' game" ring around the rosy. Freddie said he liked the pigs on the farm better than the rest of the animals because "they eat like I do."

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH — THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

GREEN THUMB... is the way of describing those that have a way with plant life. The ones, who are so gifted, will tell you that to be successful with plants, you must see that they have plenty of water. God knows too, that a soul must be watered in order for it to mature and grow.

"...and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a spring of water, whose waters fail not." Isaiah 58:11

Seven No-Hitters Bright Stars In Bakenhaster's Success Story

In the realm of the sporting world, the compliment which is both most valued and difficult to acquire is that of the opposition.

Dublin pitcher Dave Bakenhaster had that and the respect of his County League rivals before he even threw his first baseball this spring.

BUT COMPLIMENTS on the part of the opposition aren't always impressive to major league scouts. Like the man from Missouri, they have to see for themselves.

Actually, representatives from all twenty major league clubs did see for themselves this spring and what they saw was impressive, to say the least.

In fact, better than half of the big league eagles had their eye on the Shamrock senior moundsman when he tossed what was to be the last complete game of his high school career two Fridays ago in the state tournament semifinals.

AND YOUNG Dave didn't let them down, pitching his seventh nohitter in two years with a 3-0 blanking of New Paris Jefferson — a clutch win that gave Dublin a spot in the state finals.

The statistics that 'Bake' has piled up in a three-year period, provided by coach Dick Close, are just short of fantastic

Warming up as a sophomore, Bakenhaster came close to achieveing no-hit fame five times as he recorded five one-hitters.

As an established regular on the Irish nine as a junior, Dave continued his climb toward pitching maturity with an impressive 11-2 won-loss mark which encompassed three no-hitters including a 'perfect game' against Rosary.

SIX OF HIS 11 wins were shutouts and Bake went 25⅓ innings straight at one stretch without allowing a hit. In fact, in a total of 94 innings pitched as a junior, Dave allowed only 38 hits, 38 walks and chalked up 181 strikeouts.

But his '62 effort was just openers compared to his showing this spring. Four more no-hitters went into the record books (Rosary, Reynoldsburg, Cardington and New Paris) as young Bakenhaster closed out the season with an unspotted 15-0 mark. Eight of the victories were shutouts.

BAKE'S IP level rose to 114⅓, allowing him opportunity to fan 263 batters with only 63 baserunners reaching first legitimately, 38 on walks, 25 on base hits.

Scouts could write something favorable in the 'hitting' column this year also as Dave raised his batting average from .274 (1962) to .329, which included five doubles, one triple and three homers. Bake paced Dublin in runs scored this spring with 32.

Dave Bakenhaster

Rival coaches could mention only one weakness when talking about the righthanded hurler this spring — his temper. But this apparently is not much of a problem any longer as even a bat-pounding Jefferson dugout failed to rattle Dave in his no-hit chore.

BAKE'S FINE spring performance gained him a berth on the County League team and an additional spot on the All-District nine, a selection which will send him to the 'A' All-Star game this summer.

Too say that Bakenhaster was highly instrumental in Dublin's baseball success this spring would be a gross understatement. In all, Dave recorded 15 of the Shamrocks, 21 victories.

And, believe it or not, baseball isn't the whole story. Dave also does an above-par job on the basketball court. Selected as the County League's "most outstanding sophomore" two seasons ago, he made the all-league club last season, thanks to his role as the team's leading scorer and rebounder.

SINCE HIS parents' death in 1953, Dave has resided with his older brother Paul and his wife at 5135 Post-rd in Dublin. Last week, the Bakenhasters became Dave's legal guardians.

As for the future, things look bright for the 18-year-old pitching phenom. Big league scouts are waiting in line for a chance to get Dave's signature on the dotted line now that he has completed his high school career.

Three scouts were scheduled to talk contract Saturday with three more due in Sunday with more likely to follow. Bake's journey along the road to possible major league stardom could begin at any time.

Do You Know Your Sports?

(Editor's note—This is the first of a series of short vignettes on sports popular in this country and abroad).

Bows and arrows go back as far as 25 000 B.C. as far as historians are able to determine. The hunting implements have survived the test of time and are used today by over 100,000 Americans, seeking deer or smaller game and fish

The arrows are 24-32" long of cedar or aluminum with brass tips. Targets are of four feet diameter with the bullseye centered in 9.6".

BOWS COST from 4 to $40 with arrows running from $3 a dozen up. Heavy paper targets can be purchased for as little as one dollar with $25 the going rate for the nilcloth facing with wood easel and baled grass back.

Basically the sport of archery, as we know it today, is reduced to target shooting and the number of participants engaged in sending arrows toward the bullseye this year has jumped up to six million as compared to less than one-third that amount seven years ago.

FOR THE INDIVIDUAL sportsman, it is one of the most challenging pastimes in all of sport.

Bows are commonly constructed from one of four materials - Fiberglas, lemonwood, aluminum or red cedar. The length is generally five to six feet and bows are strung with linen or nylon thread.

The U.S. championship will be held Aug. 1-9 at a site yet undetermined. The Hunters Division of the National Field Archery Assn will hold its field championships July 15-19 at Lake Arrowhead (Calif.

The Buckeye state had two champions in 1962 — Nancy Vonderheide of Cincinnati (Women's amateur - both national and world) and Margaret Tilliberry of Springfield (women's pro).

DON TOWNSEND copped the 50-lap Memorial Day race for the Super Modifieds at Columbus Motor Speedway. Townsend edged out Neal Sceva Sunday night to take the feature. Don Gregory was winner of the 35-lap flying stock feature Thursday at the Southside oval.

AFTER A feature win Thursday night at Columbus Motor Speedway Don Townsend was not satisfied and again came up a winner. He was followed by Bob Davis, Dick Diamond and Bob Smith.

Once again Paul Parks worked his way up in the late model feature to take the lead in the seventh lap, finishing in first place with Keith Weaver, Don Trees and Bob Bower close behind.

This week racing takes up at Columbus Motor Speedway on both Friday and Sunday nights.

The big auto race over the Memorial Day weekend was, of course, the big 500 at Indianapolis. The 47th running of the great event was won by Parnell Jones in his Offi-powered special. His average speed was 143.137 m.p.h.

At Charlotte, N.C., Fred Lorenzen of Elmhurst, Ill., went over the finish line of the World 600 Late Model Stock Race in a '63 Ford to win himself $117,000. Incidentally, he ran out of gas as he took the checkered flag.

Death came to one of auto racing's finest drivers Sunday at New Bremen Speedway in the 11th lap of a 30-lap sprint race—38-year-old Allen Crowe hit the wall and was fatally injured. Before Sunday's crash Crowe had four major crashes in more than a year but pulled through all of them.

Just Thursday at the 500, he hit the wall in the 48th lap, causing him to finish in 27th place.

There were two other cars involved in Sunday's crash, one Chuck Engle of Reynoldsburg.

OLD TIMERS

Yoli's Homer Sinks Planks

Tony Yoli blasted out a home run in the twelfth inning of a tie ball game to give Bow Wow a win over Planks, 9-8 in the top game of the Old Timers league Tuesday.

Planks tied up the game in the bottom half of the seventh inning, and both teams went scoreless until the 11th frame when both teams scored again to tie it, 8-8, setting up Yoli's winning slam.

In other games, Blatz blasted Old Landmark, 31-6, Dons Inn put down the Arena, 9-7, Duquesne bested Schoenlings, 13-7, and Diebels defeated Babberts 8-6.

HOME RUN hitters for the night were Bill Schwall and Paul Junk, Deibels; Bill Nicley, Schoenlings; Dick Pitzheimer, Planks Cafe; Virg Emswiler, Bob McGinnis, Al Andrews and Chuck Raymond, Duquesne; Rich Herbert and Herman Veit Arena; Frank Macioce, Tony Oddi, and Herb Ford, Blatz, and Bill Goodwin of Dons Inn.

Frank Macioce and Bob Close of Blatz led the hitters with six for seven at the plate while teammate Tony Oddi hit five for six. Bud Koehler of Arena and Al Andrews of Duquesne both hit four for four.

SO THAT'S HOW THEY DO IT

EVER WONDER how basketball referees keep in shape during the off-season? Dick Sheldon (right), assistant manager at Crystal Swimming Pool on S. Champion-av, has come up with a fool-proof method to prevent losing that touch he applies during the NBA and ABL seasons while serving his striped-shirt duty. Sheldon demonstrates his "to the showers" sign to Tim Reis which proves just as final to an over-zealous nine-year-old as it does to a Wilt Chamberlain. Pool managers remind young patrons around the area that rules are still being enforced at the local swimmin' hole this summer.

Hoover, Buckeye, Dillon Top Fishing 'Hot Spots'

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROD COCHRAN

A Hula Popper caught an eye-popper for Hugh Cox, 6493 W. Broad-st, Alton, when he was in Florida several weeks ago. This prize was an 11 pound largemouth bass, which he now has mounted in his living room. Scene of the epic battle was Lake Helen.

There is a lesson to be learned from this fish that will benefit us all. Hugh spent the first two days fishing in the conventional manner down there, slowly trolling large chubs (minnows) at the edge of the pads. The fishing was good but the catching was poor, as they say.

THEN HE NOTICED a disturbance in the pads — was it a bass coming after his bait? No. Just a frog crawling up for a sun bath. Then, whammo! A fish knocked the frog off his perch, and gobbled him down in a swirl the size of a wash tub.

Observing this, Hugh decided the bass must be feeding on the surface. So he began casting Hula Poppers, and his score improved. He took several nice bass, the best, of course, was the 11-pounder. The tip here, is that good fishermen are adaptable — they give the fish what they want at the time.

Fishing has picked up in tempo closer to home, too. Henry Cring, at Paul's Marine, reports that fishing for walleyes and crappies is good at Hoover Reservoir. Last week, John Hodapp, Rt. 2, Galena, took a 26-inch, five-pound two-ounce walleye, by drifting a night crawler.

"MOST OF THE walleyes are being taken on night crawlers," said Cring. "Quie a few anglers are using artificials on them, however, and some popular baits here are the Beno, Mirrolure and Shyster." Biggest walleye this season was caught about two months ago by Bax "Baldy" DeGood, Marysville, who came in with a six-pound, 12-ounce fish.

There have not been many big catches of walleyes from Hoover yet, and Cring thinks the best fishing is yet to come when the water warms.

Heavy stringers of crappies are reported from Hoover, some anglers taking up to 40 or 50. Most popular bait is minnows, and anglers have been successful all over the lake.

A FEW BLUEGILLS are being caught, and the channel catfishing has started and should improve with warmer weather. Bass fishing at Hoover has been rather spotty this season, although two weeks ago Neil Mann, Westerville, brought in a stringer of seven bass ranging from two pounds to five and one-half pounds.

Dillon Reservoir continues to be hot for muskellunge. As this column advised you nearly a month ago, this is the place to go for a trophy fish. Most muskies are being taken on artificials — some fishermen cast them and some troll.

The white bass run at Buckeye Lake has been on for about two weeks, and may be winding up now. It would be a good bet to try for them though during the next few days. Cranberry Island is a prime spot. More are taken on minnows than on artificials. Perch are still hitting at Buckeye, as are a few bass. The bluegills are expected any time now.

Sorry, but it's time to let this typewriter cool down while I go fishin'.

Middendorf Gains South All-City Spot

South's Joe Middendorf was the area's lone representative on the All-City baseball first team, selected by loop coaches last week.

The junior catcher joined nine other members of City League teams to fill out the All-Star lineup which was heavily dominated by CL champ Linden McKinley. The Panthers gained four berths.

SOUTH, Marion-Franklin and Aquinas each gained a spot on the second team. Senior third-baseman Rocky Roshon was honored for South, senior first baseman Roger Nisely was tabbed for Marion-Franklin and senior outfielder Pat Mentel got the nod for the Terriers.

Ten other baseballers made the honorable mention list. They were: Bill Honsid, Bob White, Bill Howard and Herb Klopfer of South; John Hobgood, Darrell Jones, Gene DeBolt and Steve Jackson of Marion-Franklin and Mike Welling and Pat Purcell of Aquinas.

There were no unanimous selections on the team.

Central's Ash Gets Otterbein Scholarship

Central athlete Kenny Ash added two more dividends to the end of a brilliant high school career last week as he became the recipient of the Agonis Club Award and the Parks-Scarfpin Scholarship to Otterbein College.

Kenny, who lettered in football (All-City), wrestling and track for the Pirates, was granted the Agonis Award for his achievements at Central in both the academic and athletic fields. It was the first time in three years that the award was presented at Central.

THE OTTERBEIN SCHOLARSHIP, which includes a first-year grant of $800, is awarded to the outstanding student or athlete of either Westerville or Central High School each year.

The scholarship was created in memory of the schools' late great football coaches whose names the award bears.

Ash received the West Side Kiwanis Club Scholarship just two weeks ago.

The federal reserve banks began operations Nov. 16, 1915, in the United States.

Critics Hit Jack's Lbs., Attitude But $'s Roll In

Personally, we're getting a little sick and tired of that pessimistic cloud that too many people seem content to place over 200 pounds plus of the greatest golfer that ever picked up a stick.

We're referring to Jack Nicklaus, and as far as we're concerned the qualifications that the public is setting on his "greatest ever" tab can be buried in the nearest sand trap or hooked into the rough.

THERE'S NOTHING wrong about being cautious, but we're starting to wonder what young Jack has to do to clam up the critics. Apparently some are waiting until the rotund slugger makes a clean sweep of the tour.

If that's what they're waiting for, they might as well make application for Bo Belinsky at the near monastery. Both possibilities are about equally remote.

Nicklaus' critics complain that young Jack is overweight, prone to physical ailments, too easy-going, distracted by too many business interests and snail-like in tourney play.

OK — SO AT 205, Nicklaus doesn't exactly match the image of the trim American athlete. Appearances never carded a birdie or eagle on a golf course and it's certainly possible that a dip in the scales could cut down on Jack's booming drives off the tee.

Physical ailments are about as predictable as next week's weather, so this argument doesn't hold enough water to get a camel across a sand trap.

Nobody on the tour hits the ball farther, more accurately and consistently than Jack Nicklaus. Anyone who can hit a 500-yard green in two shots has to have a distinct advantage. Noone has matched Nicklaus' consistently on the long par-5's.

Those who feel that Nicklaus is too easy-going probably wouldn't put their money on the likes of Tommy Bolt, whose aggressive temperament on the golf course never increased his trips to the bank.

OLD PRO SAM Snead discussed the problem of temperament in a national magazine a while back. He openly admitted that back in his early days the ability to remain calm, cool and collected actually sliced strokes off his game and vaulted him from approaching mediocrity to the limelight.

Business interests? Granted, a pitfall for many a successful pro. But Nicklaus' attitude of "win them all" seems to overshadow any early retirement from the circuit ranks. At 23 Jack is smart enough to know that stars lose their glitter all too often, once out of the public eye.

The time-tried adage of "Haste Makes Waste" should be answer enough for the complaint that Nicklaus takes entirely too long between shots. Tournament jackpots aren't enriched for the speedy finishers.

OTHERS SAY Jack is too conservative for his own good. But these are the same guys who win on the long shot once a year and then pay out the nose for the next 364. It might be exciting to take a chance, but the money boys still have plenty of respect for the odds.

Now let's take a look on the other side of the fence. At the tender age of 23, Jack Nicklaus already has his first Open and Masters titles tucked away. The balance of youth weighs strongly in his favor.

If you count his Akron winnings (it's still money, isn't it?), Jack claimed more tournament cash than any other pro golfer in the world last year and is setting the pace again this time around.

What's happened to Arnold Palmer, everyone's asking. Has he lost it? How about those trips to the doctor? The only thing wrong with Arnie, as far as we can see, is Jack Nicklaus.

Youth, tremendous power and determination are pretty strong arguments for golfing greatness. This fellow Nicklaus has all three. Stick with your "picture golfer;" we'll take the local lad—all 205 pounds of him.

BITS OF WIT(T) — President Kennedy might still be right about the lack of physical fitness among our nation's youth, but we're beginning to wonder.

After going through a lengthy four-hour basketball workout on Memorial Day with three 14-year-olds under the burning sunshine of Buchtel, O., we figured that that was enough vigah expended for anybody in one day.

Not so for the boys. They promptly departed on a three-hour hike through the local greenery. Chin up, Mr. President, I think we're winning the battle.

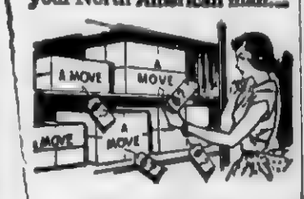
'Confederate' Jackpot Beginning To Climb

Again the "Confederate" money jackpot being offered by Hartley Newspapers is beginning to pile up. A total of $46 is now available to the lucky reader who finds the "5" insignia hidden inside the white space of an advertisement inside one of the 72,000 newspapers published this week. The insignia is always printed in a bright colored ink.

If the finder is a paid subscriber to a Hartley Newspaper the "5" emblem is worth the entire amount to the jackpot. If not a paid subscriber the emblem is worth $5 in "Confederate" cash.

All "Confederate" money will be accepted just like genuine U. S. currency, for goods or services, by any advertiser in a Hartley Newspaper during the week the emblem is discovered.

Twenty "1" emblems were stamped in bright colored ink inside an advertisement in 20 newspapers this week. These emblems are good for $1 in "Confederate" money if the page containing the number is mailed in to the Hartley Newspaper Office, 2465 W. Broad-st, before noon on Monday following delivery of the paper.



Finders of the "5" emblem must bring their winning newspaper in to the Hartley Newspaper office to claim their prize.

The single winner of one "Confederate" dollar in last week's contest was C. W. Hall, 788 Sullivant-av. This means $24 worth of emblems were not discovered and this money has been added to last week's unclaimed jackpot of $22 for the new jackpot total of $46. This is done each week until the entire jackpot is claimed.

This contest is not open to employes or carriers of Hartley Newspapers or their families.

Heading the list of foods in good supply at reasonable prices for June are: milk and dairy products, beef, broiler-fryers, eggs and early summer vegetables. These are items that will help keep food costs in line.

Mrs. Franks

As usual during June, milk and dairy products are featured often. June is Dairy Month and for good reasons. Milk production reaches a peak at this time. Plentiful milk also means plenty of ice cream, all kinds of cheese, butter, buttermilk, sweet and sour cream, and a host of other dairy related foods.

Supplies of top quality beef are expected to continue at high levels with plenty of cuts available that are suited to barbecuing and other forms of summer fun. The heavy demand for steaks and ground beef this month will cause retailers to mark chuck cuts and ribs at prices that will keep them moving. So, look for frequent good buys on all longer-cooking cuts.

Fresh pork supplies will be lower than for the last few months, but there are lots of hams and other cured pork products in storage. Bacon, pork sausage and Canadian-style bacon grilled over the coals are especially tempting for an early morning cook-out.

Marketings of broiler-fryers for the month are expected to be about the same as a year ago, and prices about the same also. Hens out-do themselves laying eggs at this season, and prices are probably at the lowest level for the year. Present low prices warrant the use of extra eggs . . . one of the best and most economical protein buys you'll find.

A host of summer vegetables are heading for markets in June. Among the bargains of fresh vegetables will be cabbage, new potatoes, sweet corn and carrots. Lettuce should be particularly abundant. Local greenhouses will supply us with good tomatoes throughout the month. We're sorry to see asparagus go. Next week winds up a wonderful "grass" season, when local growers will make their last cuttings for the year.

June is also the month for homegrown strawberries and this week heavy shipments are coming from California. We are also getting strawberries from several eastern states and Michigan market men say that, barring weather setbacks, their crop will be beautiful this year, with peak shipments coming after June 15.

Watermelon supplies are liberal, cantaloupes from the West are on the increase and pineapple quality is at a peak. The first blueberries are here and shipments of southern peaches are arriving from a larger and better crop than a year ago. California also expects a good peach crop and are shipping early varieties. So, it looks as though we will have plenty of peaches in spite of the fact that there will be a few local ones this year.

AID AT HAND FOR ADULTS WHO CAN'T READ

'OPERATION ALPHABET' BEGINS MONDAY ON TV

Help is offered to the adult who cannot read or write through Operation Alphabet, Karl F. Kessler, supervisor of Adult Education for the State of Ohio, has announced.

The series of 100 half-hour lessons being televised over WLW-C TV at 6 a.m. will begin Monday, May 27, and will continue until Oct. 11.

The educational series was developed by the Philadelphia Public Schools and after several years evaluation by reading experts has been scheduled by about 100 stations over the nation.

Kessler explains that a non-reading adult who follows the program should reach a third-grade reading and writing level which will allow him to understand signs and directions, with basic reading skills and give him the foundation for further education.

Pickaway County, at our back door, has the dubious distinction of having the largest percentage of adults over 25 years old with four years or less of schooling of any county in Ohio. While Franklin County is below the state average of 5.44 per cent with only 4.14 per cent, Pickaway has a shocking rate of 15.5 per cent of its adult population unable to read and write.

As efforts are made to re-train those who lose their jobs to automation, the adult who cannot read is considered untrainable. United States Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg made the statement, "The man with no education, with no skill, is bound to be a derelict in our fast-moving industrial world unless active efforts are made to reclaim him. He is an untapped resource both to himself and our society. He needs help."

Community service organizations are called upon by Kessler to identify non-readers and encourage them to participate in "Operation Alphabet."

Also, local groups are needed to raise funds to buy home study materials. For $2 from the National Association of Public School Adult Educators, a homework book is available.

It is also hoped that the possibilities of using volunteer workers to assist with viewing of the programs will be investigated, and the state is interested in learning whether the 6 a.m. time is appropriate.

Children from homes of the uneducated tend to follow their parents' footsteps, and according to the director of Carver House Settlement in St. Louis, without a special effort to help the adult, you will have the same "vicious cycle of poverty, ignorance and crime repeating itself generation after generation."

Today's "Outstanding Personality" is no stranger to reporters or interviews, for her position in Columbus is that of First Lady. Naturally the subject of today's profile is Mrs. Ralston Westlake, wife of the mayor.

As Helen Siegwald, she grew up in this area and attended its schools. Her early girlhood was spent in one of the German brick homes on Siebert-st, near Parsons-av, owned by a well-known family, the Toepfners. Her elementary education was received at Heyl-av School. The junior high concept of teaching was not then in use, so she took her seventh and eighth grade subjects at Seibert-st school, before entering the old South High School, which now houses Barrett Junior High School students. However, she moved to the West Side before graduating from high school, so is listed as a West High School alumna. It was at West that she met her husband.

Her father died when she was young and the family income was not large enough to include expensive diversions or amusements. She and her younger brother and sister had to rely upon their own resources for recreation.

She recalls that she spent much time in Schiller Park, enjoying its every feature. Vivid in her childhood memories are the remembrances of getting shoe boxes from Kuhn's Dry Goods Store and packing them with the day's lunch for a day at the South Side park.

While at South High, she worked at Wilson's Drug Store, Parson and Stewart-av which was then called Germonia-av, she recalls.

In recent years, when attending German Village functions with the Mayor, she has felt a warm bond with the youngsters who watch their every move, for she remembers she had done the very same thing, standing almost on the very same spot. She put it nicely when she said "Dreams do come true in America." As is to be expected, she is pleased that the German Village is being preserved for future generations.

While her father was alive, he was employed at the Winslow Glass Co. Indeed, glass-making has always been a part of her life, for she and Mr. Westlake have conducted their own business in this line since their marriage in 1933. The firm specialized in custom-made products, rather than in mass-produced ware. However, the Westlakes have suspended business in recent years, due to an understandable lack of time.

The Mayor and his wife have three children: Dave, Diane (Westlake) Corcoran, and Marilyn, a sophomore at Capital University who is majoring in speech and English. Five grandchildren are numbered in the family also, and Mrs. Westlake spends as much time with them as she possibly can. Dave is the father of two daughters, while Diane has three children to brighten the family gatherings.

California has proved inviting to three Columbusites, who are visiting relatives in the coastal state. Beulah Herbert enjoyed a month's vacation in Long Beach with her sister, while Mr. and Mrs. John Gwynn enjoyed a reunion with their son, daughter and grandchildren. The trip was made by plane.

Meetings, here and there: The final meeting of the current season will be held by the Women's Guild of the Hungarian E and R Church Tuesday, June 11 at 8 p.m. Hostesses will be Mary Komives, Sue Kristoff and Margaret Lulta.

A 6:30 p.m. potluck dinner will precede the business session of Trudea Guild 10 on Wednesday, June 12, in the home of Mrs. James Claar, 80 E. Frebis-av. The installation of officers will be held. Officers to be installed include Mrs. Don Thomas, chairman; Mrs. Sam Kleinlein, vice-chairman; Mrs. William Paulus, secretary and Mrs. Louis Whiteacre, treasurer.

Members of Ohio-av EUB will enjoy a picnic on Sunday, June 9, from 1:30 to 9 p.m. at the South Side "Y" Park. A potluck supper will be held at 5:30 and vespers at 7 p.m.

The Ladies Aid Society of the South Congregational Church will meet Wednesday, June 12 for a noon potluck.

The third tour of the Franklin County Historical Society will be held Saturday, June 8. Sites to be visited include the pre-historic earthworks at Miamisburg and a visit to the George Rodgers Clark Memorial Park near Springfield. For complete information, call 221-7487, or 228-6361.

The annual congregational picnic of St. Paul's Lutheran Church will be held Sunday, June 9, afternoon and evening, at Shelter House No. 3, of the South Side "Y" Park.

Weddings Planned

Two South High School graduates have chosen Saturday, June 8 as their wedding day, in the Brice-rd Baptist Church. Anita Sands, 413 Zimpfer-st, will become the bride of Ray Miller, 197 E. Innis-av at that time.

The end of the school year brings mixed emotions to many children, but one emotion is currently uppermost in the mind of these children: they'll soon be one year older! The birthdayites are: Tommy Davis, Robert Woodard, Roy Waddle, Dorothy Kukuloff, Carol Kukuloff, John Quidor, Patricia Nelson, Thomas Kukuloff, Peggy Snodgrass, Ronald Dameron, Judith Farris, Stephen Gillenwater, Betty Ramey, Judith Sickler, Lisa Edwards, Linda McKnight, R. D. Bivens, Kathy Skeen, Danny Cahill, Danny Anderson and Debby Blair.

A birthday hello is sent to these neighbors: Ann Seemueller, John Craggs, Arline Skeen, Mrs. Homer Doty, Dorothy Burton, Dolly Mattus, Dave Leonard, Cordia Devore, Bryon LaRue, Dorothy Wells and Mabel Grimm.

Wedding anniversaries to acknowledge include those of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Cooperider, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Fix, Judy and Bob Reall, Barbara and George McCready, August and Margaret Krause, Dorothy and Bill Wells and Mr. and Mrs. Conner.

The Helping Hand Class of Gates - Fourth Methodist Church will sponsor its annual Strawberry Festival today, June 6. Tickets are 50 cents for adults and 35 cents for children under 6. The Festival will start at 5 p.m., and extend until 9 p.m.

Bible School Schedule

With the conclusion of the school year, many churches will be sponsoring their annual Daily Vacation Bible Schools once again. Area ones we know about include the one at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, 322 Stewart-av, which begins Monday, June 10 and ends Friday, June 21. Starting time is 9 a.m., and closing time is 11:30 a.m. Washington-av EUB will also sponsor a Bible School June 10 - 21, hours 9 to 11:30 a.m. The South Congregational Church will be the host church for the Vacation School in that vicinity, and also has a June 10 - 21 schedule. Children, 4 to 14, will be taught in the June 10 - 21 classes at Emmanuel Lutheran Church. Southwood Church of Christ will also be conducting DVBS from June 10 - 21, with one exception of the time of day. As in previous years the school will be an evening one, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

The YWCA has scheduled a repeat trip to the Kahiki, for Thursday, June 13 at 6:15 p.m. Reservations and payment are due today, June 6.

The women of the Washington-av EUB Church will hold a rummage sale Friday, June 7, and Saturday, June 8, at the rear of 1628 Parsons-av. The doors will be open at 8 a.m. Patronage of the public will be appreciated.

The Parson-av School is in need of a piano, and would appreciate the donation of one greatly. They understandably hope to receive one in good condition. Pick-up will be gladly taken care of by the school. The principal, Mrs. Allen, will be at the school until June 14, after the semester's end and may be reached at the school by calling 444-8298.

The marriage of Sharon Kalb, a former area resident, will be an event of Sunday, June 9 in the Scottwood Community Church. The OSU junior will become the bride of Robert Allen Carter, 605 Maplewood-av. Sharon is the daughter of Irvin and Mildred Kalb, 3500 Walburn-rd.

OSU Mother's Club

The 40th anniversary of the OSU Mother's Club will be observed on Wednesday, June 12 with a 12:30 noon Rose Luncheon, in the Student Union East Ballroom. Past presidents will be honored. Two dresses of the 1920 and 1930 eras will be modeled by Mrs. Joseph Toepfner and Mrs. Edward Bray.

Membership of the OSU Mother's Clubs total 1000 women, in 24 individual units. These units meet once a month, then combine on the second Wednesday of the month at the Student Union Theater Conference Room. The Mother's Clubs give two medical scholarships and two music scholarships, help the International House, and donate to the Student Loans. Holiday tray favors for the OSU Hospital are made at unit meetings.

Trinity Lutheran Church will hold its annual Vacation Bible School June 17 to the 28th, from 9 to 11:30 a.m. each morning, for children 4 to 14 years. Miss Amanda Walch is in charge. Registration may be made by calling CA. 4-6818.

The ailing list includes these community residents: Louise Ramsey, Martha Horch, Goldie Jasper, Mrs. Harold Hill, Richard Harvey, William Cupp, Dorothy Goebbel, Donald Styers, David Harris. Cheerful cards would be appropriate at this time for Louise Smith, 3628 Seabrook-av. Kenneth Wells and Mrs. Shannon Bergmon have been patients in Mt. Carmel Hospital.

First Aid Classes are being held at Emmanuel Lutheran Church on Thursday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. A member of the church is the instructor for the course. Members of Emmanuel have bid good-bye to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Moxim, who will make their home in Morris, Minnesota for a year, while Jack serves his internship there. The Moxims were guests of honor at a party given by the Luther League of the Church. Members of the Emmanuel Lutheran Brotherhood will be attending the Brotherhood night at Jet Stadium, June 7. In case of rain, the tickets will be honored Saturday, June 8.

Practical Nurses To Make Tour

If the original plans of the Practical Nurses Association of Ohio, Div. 12, are still in effect, the members will tour the Rehabilitation Center of the OSU Hospital, on Tuesday, June 11, the regular meeting date.

The gremlins did it again . . . made away with last week's column. It was sent quite early, due to the Memorial Holiday. It pained us to have it lost, as we'd spent much time on it to make it an extra special one. Oh well, we're the ulcer-prone—type anyway, it's about time we acquired them, we're long overdue!

All former Camp Fire Girls and their families are invited to spend the day at Camp Wyandot, Sunday, June 9, from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. The pool will be open for swimming, and fires available for roasting hot dogs. Pop will be sold at the pool and in the dining hall. The Camp Fire Alumnae Committee has planned a full day of fun for all ages.

Columbus friends received word recently of the death of a former neighbor, Herman Isaly, who had made his home in recent years at Deland, Fla.

The evening's agenda includes a short business meeting, refreshments and dart ball contests. Martha Circle, of the church, will also meet tonight at 7:30, in the home of Barbara Tapia, 1754 Holburn, Apt. A. The choir will hold a 6:30 p.m. potluck supper Tuesday, June 11.

Evening Star Circle of St. John's Evangelical Protestant Church will meet today at the Central Community House.

Readers with long-time memories will recall this scribbler writing about her "Tomboy" and "Boy Scout", in years gone by. The years have a way of passing quickly so those nicknames must be retired this year. The "Tomboy," Priscilla Dicke, is now Mrs. Richard Roth as of Saturday, June 1. The ceremony was performed at the Southwood Church of Christ, by the Rev. Ellis E. Wesner, assisted by Rev. Charles Lee. The couple will reside in Cincinnati, as the young groom finishes his schooling at the Cincinnati Bible Seminary. The "Boy Scout," Donald Dicke, was also in the wedding party. His scouting days long past, he is now a nuclear physicist for NASA, at Lewis Research Center. His future plans include more schooling, as he will work on his doctorate at Western Reserve while employed at the space agency. Tempus Fugits!

ADD TO HOME

This past week, however, two of our party had the good fortune of landing a 16 lb. and 19 lb. Muskie, caught on Red Daredevils while casting.

It couldn't have happened at a worse time — the Muskie season doesn't open until June 20.

Lincoln Park Police Station Contracts Let

Construction of the Lincoln Park police sub-station cleared the final hurdle Monday evening as Columbus City Council authorized Ernest H. Stork, Columbus service director, to award contracts.

Stork reported that award letters were mailed Tuesday to those who had submitted low bids for the project.

Wagenbrenner Construction Co., 494 Cherry-st, is general contractor for the project, having submitted a low bid of $45,360. Plumbing, heating and ventilating work will be done by William H. Rinehart, Inc., 1284 Edgehill-dr, on a low bid of $18,500, and electrical work will go to Gustav Hirsch, 1347 W. Fifth-av, on low bid of $11,614. The three low bids total $75,474.

Stork said that contracts call for completion late this fall.

The couple have advertised in the newspapers but to no avail. They are getting some help from Mrs. Kathleen Brunson who is placement director for the Cat Welfare Association here.

The search is still going on with the Englands calling "here, kitty" throughout Franklin County. They're finding cats of all shapes and sizes — even a few stray dogs — but no "Puffs."

If you know the whereabouts of this cat with mixed colors of grayish black, yellow and white, you can reach Mrs. England, 70 Woodrow-av, at HI. 4-8692.

It's not so much that Judy wants "Puff" back but more that she wants assurance that the cat has a good home.

What self-respecting "mother" wouldn't?

Village—

Homes which were shown in previous years will be marked with banners of red, white and black, the society colors.

These homes will not be open for viewing, but will add interest to the tour for people walking about the area. Ladies attending the tour will find that wearing low heels will add to their comfort in walking, because of the brick sidewalks.

Beck Square, a new addition to the village, will be completed in time for the tour. This is an adult "relaxation area" and promises to become a popular spot with the residents of the village.

For entertainment, there will be a parade in the afternoon. The Lederhosen Five will play German music in the area, and the famous Maennerchor chorus will give a concert in Schiller Park's band shell.

The Village Art Colony, a recently established art school at 631 S. Third-st, will have open house and an exhibition of work done by students. There will also be art exhibits throughout the area by local artists, who will be painting and sketching during the tour.

Craft exhibits will be set up in various locations.

Tickets are $1.50 per person and can be purchased from members of the society prior to the tour. They will also be on sale at the German Village office, 624 S. Third-st, telephone CA. 1-8888.

Going Away? Don't Blab It!

Burglary Prevention Week in Ohio will end on June 8, but it is a pretty safe bet that burglars will not give up operations because a week has been set aside to thwart their efforts.

We agree with Columbus Police Chief George W. Scholer that, while there is no such thing as a burglar-proof home, there are steps that can be taken to keep the burglar's activity to a minimum.

If you're leaving for a weekend or longer, Chief Scholer suggests that you:

1. Notify your police department when you'll be leaving and how long you expect to be away.

2. Cancel all deliveries, such as milk, bread, cleaning, etc. Also, be sure to discontinue the newspaper or arrange to have it sent to your vacation address. (May we suggest the latter.

3. Have a neighbor, or your postoffice hold all mail until you return.

4. Arrange to have someone mow the lawn and sweep the sidewalk once a week. Arrange to have somepick up any circulars or handbills that may be left on your porch.

5. Leave your shades and blinds as you normally do; closed blinds keep the sun out, but also make an effective screen for the burglar.

6. Never advertise your departure with an item in the local paper. Give the story about your vacation to the newspapers after you've returned.

HOMETOWN AMERICA

Show 'Em A Way To Get Home

Summertime has a way of bringing out the wanderlust in our little four and five-year-old darlings. Many times, the return trip home is effected by way of the police station.

A child of this age generally knows, and will recite his full name. But he seldom knows, or can remember, his address, or the street name.

A long street name or address is difficult for a little child to remember. But there is an alternative bit of informaion that will help to identify the child—the first names of his mother and father.

Armed with the child's full name and the first names of his parents, police can generally determine the street address by consulting the city directory.

Drill your little ones on these three short bits of information. It may some day shorten the fright (for both child and parent) when a child is lost.

Vacation Jobs Then Back To School

It is the time; again, when many area high school youngsters will be making the rounds of potential employers for summertime jobs. It is good training for the teenagers and, for the most part, they are a productive work force.

But we can't help wondering how many of the job-hunting youngsters have no intention of returning to school in the fall. How many will use the jobs they gain as extra leverage to pressure parents into letting them drop out of school?

Employers would do well to give prime consideration to those students who provide reasonable assurances that they intend to complete high school. Such an attitude on the part of the employer would provide good "long run" protection. It would also protect the youngsters who are not yet sufficiently mature to realize the importance of a high school diploma.

Statistics reveal that the beginning of the fall term marks the period of highest number of school drop-outs. It seems to us that many youngsters would be less inclined to leave school if they knew there were no jobs for the uneducated. It is better that they learn this fact while they are still enrolled in school.

Frosting On The Cake

By

"UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

This crazy old wobbling world is suffering from the worst dose of "adventures in audacity" by countless professional soldiers of fortune, that rational people can only marvel about.

The papers are filled with "firing squad" news. Summary executions are taking place in localities all over the so-called backward countries. Hundreds of these fellows who started out to "sit in the seats of the mighty" are now dust in some unmarked six by six hole in the ground.

Pip-squeak Napoleons are a dime a dozen everywhere and poor old Uncle Sap is paying the shot. Every age in human social evolution has had both giants and midgets who were congenital pathological egos. They had to "feel important" as Dr. George W. Crane says so aptly, and therefore, being both audacious and articulate, these adventurers in knavery find it too easy to exploit ignorance and avarice and cupidity anywhere that temptation reared its ugly head. All of them, without exception, bear no love for the "common people." All they are interested in is rifling some sort of quasi-public treasury and for a brief period always, basking in the fake sun of prominence, and success.

The long suffering but still sacred Constitution, is now gasping for its very breath. Crooks get elected and then have the wit to fix and manage the right people in both parties and it is no wonder that our dollar is now worth less than forty cents and the Federal Government is actually bankrupt.

There is a cure for our own internal national sickness, but the people, not the politicians must apply the anti-toxin of work and faith and stop electing crazy spenders to any office, in either party. Reducing taxes and boosting the national debt is the high road to utter disaster. Allowing men like Hoffa and Bierne and Reuther to run the country is not doing the "poor working man" one bit of good. It is the very folly that will destroy even the legitimate labor movement. Give us a Congress that will put this insane dues collecting racket under the Anti-Trust laws, and we will see business begin to make some money and the unemployed get jobs.

Drive our own "political soldiers of fortune" out of office and Uncle Samuel will get well again awfully fast.

Off The Beaten Path

There are many places in Beautiful Ohio where you can go for a one-day drive. One such is one we made recently down the Scioto Valley.

You can take U.S. 23, a four-lane highway, or Ohio 104 from Columbus to Portsmouth. They coincide from Chillicothe to Waverly. From either just north of Chillicothe, you may see to the east, Mount Logan, the scene from which the Great Seal of Ohio was designed.

From Portsmouth you go west on U.S. 52 to Friendship. Turn to your right and there onto Ohio 125. You will pass Roosevelt Lake on your left in the Shawnee State Forest. In Adams County you will drive over several miles of new, well marked pavement. You will want to pull off to see the many magnificent views.

West Union, seat of Adams County, is a charming village. The 1871 red brick court house with its white cupola stands on a full square with stores, restaurants, and a newspaper office adjoining. It reminds you of the Plaza in Taos, N. Mex.

Backtracking a few miles, you take Ohio 348 to Lucasville, back in Scioto County. In Otway you will see an old covered bridge set aside in a recent program as a historical site. Traffic is diverted to the new 348.

Elevations are called hills, mountains, but mostly "knobs." They are from 1000 to about 1300 feet high.

Watch for chuckholes. They haven't all been fixed after the hard winter. Watch, too, for wild creatures. You may see at close range, as did we, a groundhog and a flock of turkey buzzards.

There are other roads and spots of interest, too, nearby. Choose as you wish.

It says here . . . .

You don't have to travel half way around the earth to see beauty.

Pope Enriched Our Age

Pope John XXIII is dead.

The 81-year-old pontiff of the Catholic Church completed his earthly stay Monday, but not before he had left an indelible mark on a world tormented by conflict, prejudice and fear.

As the first pope to emerge from the working class in more than a century, John XXIII quickly found his way to the hearts and spirits of the people who had come to view the papal visage as somewhat distant during the reign of his predecessor—a more austere Pius XII.

Visitors to the Vatican, including officials of the Russian government, returned home with positive impressions of the Catholic leader "with the benign expression and huge hands."

A man marked with humility, John XXIII's ascent to the papal throne came as much of a surprise to church hierarchy who pointed to his age as a distinct disadvantage to his assumed task.

Not much was expected of the venerable leader who was described at his coronation as a "transition pope."

But persons everywhere, from hospital beds to the high seats of world leadership, were soon to learn of the energy of the aging pontiff as he made frequent trips outside the confines of the Vatican to spread his word of peace among men.

A short time after John XXIII was elevated to the spiritual leadership of the Catholic world he launched his plans for the mammoth undertaking—the first Ecumenical Council in more than a century began to take form.

His own spirit became that of the council.

Pope John did not live to see either his council or hopes of peace bear immediate fruit. But the legacy of hope he has left behind will be revered long after the cries of "Viva Papa" echo through the Vatican chancels in honor of his successor.

For this, he may be remembered eternally.

Guest Pulpit . . Little Word Bears Great Significance

There is one little word in the Book of Acts you may not have noticed. However, the Revised Version capitalizes it; and so do Moffatt and Goodspeed in their translations. It is just the three - letter word "Way." In the Bible it is used hundreds of other times when it is just an ordinary noun meaning a road, or a path, or a customary form of doing something. But here it is distinguished apart by the translators.

Rev. Alexander

It is particularly used in connection with Paul. When he started as a persecutor of Christians, to Damascus it was that "if he found any that were of the Way he might bring them bound to Jerusalem." Some years later when Paul was preaching in Ephesus and persuading the people about the Kingdom of God some of his hearers grew stubborn and "spoke evil of the Way." Then when Paul's preaching was too much for the silversmiths who made images of and shrines for the great goddess Diana it is said, "there arose no small stir about that Way." Paul had found something which he had gone out to persecute and suppress but which now he preaches with power. It is called "the Way."

In his Roman letter Paul says it is Jesus Christ as the Son of God and the Gospel of God, declared to be such with power by "the spirit of Holiness and the resurrection from the dead." To the Corinthians he said, "I determined to know nothing among you but Jesus Christ and Him crucified." But read on and you will find that this one word becomes a volume of life and a way of life. It means a brave and reasoned and yet a childlike relation to "the God and Father of all, who is over all and through all and in all. It becomes an exhortation to love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness and self-control. There is no tribalism in it, no nationalism, no color lines, no sectarianism.

Yes, persecuting Saul found Christ and in finding Christ he found the Way. He, along with those other early Christians, was proud to be a member of the Way.

With Philip we have asked, "How can we know the Way?" Jesus has answered, "I am the Way and the truth and the life." Can others see by our lives that we belong to "the Way?"

An Editor's Outlook . . . by Jenkin Lloyd Jones
. . . Oh Well, Their Lamb Chops Are Good!

Just about every commentator who claims to be on the ball has done a piece about the inside of the Central Intelligence Agency. So here's mine.

When you call the C.I.A. the telephone girl doesn't admit that you've gotten through. She merely repeats the number. That has undoubtedly confounded many thousands of foreign spies.

Jones

When you drive out to the C.I.A., which is about eight miles along the super highway to Dulles Airport in Virginia, the turn-off is merely labeled "B.P.R." B.P.R. stands for Bureau of Public Roads, which, true enough, has its headquarters in the vicinity. But the modesty of the much more glamorous C.I.A. must confuse many foreign agents and when they inadvertently wind up at the airport it is hoped that some of them will simply take the next plane home.

One other thing—when I arrived at the front entrance the cop at the door greeted me conspiratorially as "Colonel." This no doubt indicates that colonels in the Army G-2 disguise themselves in business suits and drive around in dirty brown Chevrolets with Oklahoma licenses.

Oh, yes. And the security officer who takes you up to the executive wing unlocks the elevator with a key. And the lamb chops in the director's dining room are wonderful.

This about wraps up what I found out.

My "contact" in this expedition was my old schoolmate, Lt. Gen. Marshall S. (Pat) Carter, the C.I.A.'s deputy director and general manager. I had practically invited myself out to lunch. I was going to pump him.

While waiting for the general to appear, his aide, Col. Stanley J. Grogan, served up the first course and I yanked the pump handle on him a couple of times but nothing came out except some fascinating army reminiscences. He did admit that there are eight major sections to C.I.A. and his personal pass is good only for admission to three of them.

I thought he looked pretty reliable and should have been good for four or five, anyway.

Pat Carter came in in time for the chops and I really started to plow the ground. I mentioned all the books I had read about the Gestapo and the Russian M.V.D. and the British M-16 and then I adroitly speculated about the make-up of the C.I.A. and how so many people misunderstood it and that only a few newspapermen, like me, really sympathized with its problems.

Generally, this sympathy approach goes big and causes people to blubber, bawl and tell you everything they know. But from Pat and the colonel I received about the same number of yups and nopes that you get out of an old Gary Cooper re-run. It was soon apparent I was interviewing myself.

Well, the C.I.A. is the only agency of government taxpayers have to take absolutely on faith. You can't audit it. It draws its money from all kinds of vague appropriations. Like other intelligence agencies around the world 90 per cent of its work is "open." That is, it amasses information from published sources, translates, indexes it and scores this data in miniature photography and, so far, an estimated 40 million punch cards.

In short, the C.I.A. relies a lot more on clerks and diggers than on cloaks and daggers.

It's simple to record a mass of facts, but how to retrieve them when you want them is a huge stumper. In the amassing of facts the Russians have it easy because people in free countries publish just about everything. But in retrieval the C.I.A. thinks it's tops. If you want to know about a Red agent named Vladimir who lived in Marseilles in the 40's you're supposed to be able to press the proper buttons and out of 100,000 cards two or three will drop.

How can Americans find out if they're getting their money's worth—whatever that money amounts to? They can't. They merely have to assume that if the President and a handful of top officials are satisfied they should be satisfied, too.

Under federal law the C.I.A., alone of all agencies, doesn't have to reveal the number, names or salaries of its employes. It can enter into secret contracts without bids. It can hide its travel expenses. It can admit up to 100 aliens a year without accounting for them to immigration.

Strangely, we learn most about the C.I.A. from our enemies. It was the Russians who huffily revealed that the C.I.A. had tapped the cables in the main Russian communication tunnel in Berlin. They revel in C.I.A. bloopers, too. Most books about the C.I.A. are written from foreign sources. The C.I.A. neither confirms nor denies.

As President Kennedy said in his speech dedicating the new $42 million dollar building: "Your successes are unheralded—your failures are trumpeted."

Well, General Carter and I had a fine lunch reminiscing about old school friends. Then I descended with the security officer in the locked elevator, passed the guards in the great marble entryway, and when the cop at the door called me "Colonel" again I saluted smartly.

True, the note pad in my pocket was still fresh and clean. But the noon hour hadn't been entirely wasted. Those lamb chops were real thick.

Act Breeds Danger

To the Editor:

Sometime during the night of Wednesday, May 29, two flares were taken away from barricades on the southwest corner of Ogden-av and Grace-st.

They were placed there to protect passers-by and also to protect newly laid sidewalks.

Those responsible for same lifted the corner manhole cover and threw the flares into the sewer, leaving the manhole open. Anyone crossing the street could easily have fallen into the sewer.

It took a policeman valuable time away from other duties to rectify the act.

Was that act a smart thing to do — endanger the life of another person?

FUNNY BUSINESS

"Now I know why he bought that fierce-looking false face!"

BUSINESS REVIEW

THE JOB IS COMPLETED and the termite problem at this home has been corrected by Extermital Termite Service, 1229 W. Third-av. Hon Bailey, 2457 Wilson-av, left, and Bob Romans, 2545 Wilson-av, are preparing to place their concrete drills back in the truck and move on to the next job.

Extermital Termite Service Offers Insured Termite Control Program

Gaymon Wright, owner and operator of Extermital Termite Service, 1229 W. Third-av, says that termites will cost home owners more than $150 million in repair bills and control measures this year. In order to keep this cost down, he advises home owners to talk with an experienced termite control expert. "If you don't know termites, know your operator," he added.

Extermital Termite Service offers free inspection to home owners, with no obligation. If there is evidence of termite infestation, estimates of cost to treat and repair will be prepared and discussed with the home owner before any work is started.

Prospective home buyers and sellers or real estate dealers may obtain inspections, with written reports, from Extermital at a very small cost.

Since termites are found in every area of Central Ohio and since no structure is exempt from infestation, this service should be an important part of every sales transaction, according to Wright.

It has been found that termites have moved into homes that are less than two years old and have caused extensive damage before they were discovered. Because of this Extermital has prepared a pretreatment plan to eliminate the possibility of termites infesting a newly constructed home. "This plan not only eliminates the need for costly repairs at a later date but also offers peace of mind to the new owner," said Wright.

The Extermital Termite Service uses the Extermital Process, a system which the U.S. Forestry Service has tested for a period of 10 years without showing any signs of losing its termite killing properties. This chemical barrier strategy has been approved by the Veterans Administration and included in the minimum standards of the Federal Housing Authority to overcome the hazards of termites.

During all seasons of the year, due to the comfortable conditions man has provided by central heating, radiant heating in floor slabs and other sources, termites continue to feast on his choice prey, the nation's homes, hidden from sight the entire year, until nothing remains except a shell.

A call to Extermital could avoid this costly damage. This company offers experienced personnel, the best of equipment and chemicals available and a reputation for years of integrity and customer service. This is combined with Extermital's five-year guarantee, with option to renew in three years terms for the life of the structure, to provide customers with the best possible opportunity to insure their homes and properties against the menace of termites.

Jones Fuel Co. Now Specializes In Quality Top Soil Instead of Fuel

In the early 1920's the Jones Fuel Co. was started as a partnership to provide coal delivery service to the people living in the Columbus area. After several years of business one of the partners dropped out and the organization was taken over by John E. Jones, the second partner.

During the many years that coal was used as the primary source of heat for the homes and businesses of the Ohio capital city, the sight of a Jones Fuel Co. truck unloading into the basement of a home was a common thing. A picture of one of the early trucks, a 1927 model, still hangs on the office wall of the company at 161 W. Barthman-av.

The truck, fully loaded with coal, is surrounded by the men who served as officers of the company in those early years, wearing shirts with high collars and derby hats.

Today the company is no longer engaged in the selling or hauling of fuel and Manager Ken Forest, who has been with Jones Fuel for many years, points out that his company has been forced to find other sources of income in order to remain in business. He added "There's just not enough coal sold in the Columbus area today to keep us going."

The main source of revenue to the organization at present, besides some commercial hauling, is the selling of top soil to home owners and commercial builders. This keeps the 17 big trucks, that used to roll all winter, now busy in the spring and summer. Hundreds of tons of top soil are now contracted for and sold during the season when the trucks were idle at the terminal office.

Forest pointed out that most of the top soil now comes from a 1200-acre tract of land owned by the American Aggregates Company, south of Columbus off of Rt. 104. "We have found this to be top grade soil and very popular with our customers," Forest said.

Today the organization employs 23 persons and is headed by Robert Jones, son of the founder, and Mrs. Ruth Jones, daughter-in-law of the founder. Mrs. Jones' son, Dick, is also active in the business.

The problems of the home owner, who needs one load, to the commercial builders, who use dozens of tons of top soil, are gladly discussed by Forrest or members of his staff. Costs are kept at a minimum because of the large volume of business handled daily by the company and by the fact Jones Fuel Co. is equipped to specialize in processing and sale of this unique item.

The very fact the organization has been able to adjust to the changes which have occurred in their type of business testifies to the versatility and abilities of the persons who make up the Jones Fuel Co., suppliers of first-grade top soil.

County Children Society Makes Awards, Elects

Hartley Newspapers was awarded a special citation by the Franklin County Society for Crippled Children at its annual meeting May 22.

Special promotional help was received from the Hartley Newspapers during the recent Easter Seal campaign.

HIGH SPEED SLICING AND CARVING KNIFE

The 1963 Parade of Homes with "Picture Pretty . . . and Practical, Too" ideas in new homes will open Saturday, June 15, for a nine-day run at the Forest park area in northeast Columbus.

According to Jack Esper, chairman, 34 homes boasting the latest in home design and features will be opened for public inspection.

"All 32 builders in this year's Parade took the "Picture Pretty . . . and Practical, Too" theme to heart and came up with one of the most outstanding displays of new homes ever shown," Esper said. "Each has included the pretty things for the lady of the house and also the practical ideas that mean low maintenance costs for the man. In all, the 34 homes in the Parade represent more than $1 million in latest home ideas, features and materials."

Opening June 15, the Parade will run through Sunday, June 23. Daily hours will be from 5 to 10 p.m. with Saturday and Sunday hours of 1 to 10 p.m. Forest Park is located on Karl-rd between Morse-rd and Rt. 161.

Also on display in a special Home Idea Center will be exhibits of new techniques, materials and helps for building a new home or remodeling a present one.

Adding extra interest to Parade attendance is the offer by the Home Builders Association of Greater Columbus, sponsor of the Parade, to award to some visitor his or her height in silver dollars. Esper explained that if a man six feet tall has his name selected, he will win about $720. In addition, an Apache camping trailer by Pastorek Trailers will be awarded to another Parade visitor.
